Winter's arrival brings out smiles

Last week's snowfall led to the creation of this snowman at the Adeline Olson residence, 724 Horace Ave. N. Olson and her nieces Amanda and MaryJo Olson created this snowman Thursday night. Adeline Olson noted the ornamentation of the snowman took the most time. # Traffic lights at Casino intersection proposed

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Pennington County Engineer Mike Flaagen announced at the Dec. 28 Pennington County Board of Commissioners meeting that he recently met with officials from Red Lake Nation and the State of Minnesota about the installation of traffic lights at the intersection of CSAH 3 and Highway 59, west of Seven Clans Casino.

The proposed plan calls for the State of Minnesota to provide all four light standards and other equipment, Pennington County would be responsible for installation work and Red Lake Nation would be responsible for maintenance.

Construction could begin this summer.

County postpones decision on motor grader bid until Jan. 4 meeting. Pennington County Engineer Mike Flaagan and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell presented the transportation committee's findings in regard to motor grader bids that were opened at the Dec. 14 county board meeting.

Flaagen stated that all bids had come in over the county's budget of $120,000. He stated that the committee decided to wait and see if any low-hour graders would become available.

When questioned as to how much longer the county could get by with its oldest motor grader, Godfred Svir said that old one is running fine – it could run for a while or it could blow up tomorrow.

Flaagen stated that he didn't have a motor grader in the highway department budget this year (2004), stating that the department purchased a truck instead.

When the highway department first sent out bids, it was with the intention that the motor grader would be purchased for the 2004 state bid amount, using money from the 2005 budget.

County Board Chairman Bob Carlson told bidders that were in attendance the county is faced with budget shortfalls within other departments. He added that the lowest bid is $12,000 over budget. Carlson directed his comments to a representative of Sweeney Bros., the company that submitted the lowest bid stating that the county has accepted bids that are over budget in the past if the price is deemed reasonable.

Discussion turned toward low-hour machines. Purchasing a low-hour machine could mean a markoff of $7-12,000. The board agreed to further discuss the item at its Jan. 4 reorganization meeting.

Capital improvements studied

What capital improvements are in Thief River Falls' future?

by April Schelnoha
Reporter

City leaders have looked into their crystal balls and have assembled the 2004-09 Capital Improvement Plan for the city. The Thief River Falls City Council approved the plan at its Dec. 28 meeting.

With the exception of street and airport improvements, the following capital improvements are planned in 2005:

- Electric Department – An electric system upgrade for Robin Hood Drive and the Southtown shopping center, as well as Highway 59 street lighting (from the Burlington Railroad tracks west to Sixth Street). The $125,000 estimated cost would be covered by utility revenue.
- Sanitation Departments – Trucks with a packer. Utility revenue would cover the $75,000 estimated cost.
- Wastewater Department – For Sewer Lift #9, the cost is an estimated $15,000, which would be covered by utility revenue. For Lift #10, the cost is an estimated $10,000, which would be covered by special reserves for capital expenditures.
- Water Department – Roof repair. Utility revenue would cover the $20,000 estimated cost.

The council approved the Joint Powers Agreement for Mutual Aid. Under the agreement, a law enforcement agency would be able to help another law enforcement agency during an emergency situation.

"If we help another county or another county helps us, [this agreement] spells out liability issues," Police Chief Kim Murphy said.

Besides the Thief River Falls Police Department, the agreement includes the Pennington County Sheriff's Department, Lake of the Woods Sheriff's Department, Roseau Police Department and Roseau County Sheriff's Department. Pennington County and the other city and counties have yet to approve the agreement, Murphy said.

The agreement stipulates a law enforcement agency is not liable if it does not help the jurisdiction that is requesting assistance. Even though a jurisdiction may receive assistance, it will not pay the other agency's officers or pay for damages incurred by the other law enforcement agency.

City Council reaffirmed the city's current sidewalk snow removal policy. Under the policy, city employees remove snow from sidewalks along the First and Third Street bridges and public parking

Chamber plans banquet

Event scheduled for January 17 at new location in TRF

Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce 91st Annual Banquet will take place on Monday, Jan. 17, at the Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill. The social begins at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

This is a new location for the banquet. After a major expansion project at the Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill, it is now capable of accommodating larger crowds.

Julie Olson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that in the future they plan to move the event to different locations.

Olson also mentioned that there will be some program changes. This year, entertainment will be provided by Nick Bretz of Park Rapids. Olson said she had an opportunity to see Bretz's magic show last year and found it very entertaining. "It's funny and gets people involved," she said.

This is the second time that the annual banquet hasn't been on a weekend. Olson said they chose Monday night because it doesn't seem to conflict with any activity.

The purpose of these changes, of course, is to make sure people have a good time.

Certain annual activities will also take place at the event. Maryel Anderson, 2004 Chairperson, will pass the gavel to Dr. Jim Langland, who will serve as the 2005 chairman of the board of directors. Anderson will also present a few awards. In a recent address to chamber members, she announced that Barb Nativk will be receiving the Volunteer of the Year award.

The annual theme that will be unveiled at the banquet is, "We'll Grow and Strive in 2005." In the January edition of the "Chamber Express," Anderson said, "This year, the board made a conscious decision during its strategic planning session to take a slightly different path for the future, and I sincerely believe it is in the best interests of the Chamber. Our emphasis is going to be more on the issues facing our members rather than on public relations for the community. This is not to say," she said, "that the Chamber will not continue to be the first pleasant face a visitors sees or hears from, but it will not be

Annual Science Fair Jan. 8-9

LHS Annual Science Fair exhibits open to the public

The Lincoln High School 10th Annual Science Fair will be on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 7 and 8, in Thief River Falls. Over 100 students are expected to compete for an opportunity to go to regionals.

Patti Johnson, event organizer at Lincoln High School, said this is an opportunity for area residents to see the science projects students have been working so hard to complete.

The judging will be taking place on Friday, but spectators can view the projects from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday, and from 9 to 10 a.m. on Saturday. The public is also invited to attend the awards ceremony in the Lincoln High School Auditorium. The awards ceremony begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday. Maggie and Larry Anderson of Thief River Falls and their son, Russ, will be guest speakers at the awards ceremony this year. Maggie and Larry are employees of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. Maggie is the manager of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Larry is the prescribed fire specialist at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Russ, their son, recently completed a fire supression training course, and worked for the Bureau of Land Management last summer. Johnson said they will be speaking on the fire management program at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, which is located near Thief River Falls.

Students who win at this local level will qualify to compete at the Regional Science Fair, which will be at Bemidji State University on February 26. Students who win at that level will be eligible to compete at the Minnesota State Science Fair, which will be April 3-5 in St. Paul. Students who win at that level are invited to complete at the international science fair level. That event will be in Phoenix, Ariz., this year. Lincoln High School has had students compete at the international science fair level.

Over 100 students will be competing in the local competition. Their science fair projects will be judged by five judges. In addition, several event sponsors will be sending judges to the event. Those sponsoring organizations will select winners for various awards, too.

Paivi Young gets a poster and hockey stick signed by Finland defenseman Riska Filip after Finland's come from behind victory over Sweden Wednesday night.

Fan juggles daughter's engagement, and business with hockey games

Finland's biggest fan lives in TRF

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

One of the largest crowds to witness a game at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls was one that witnessed Finland skate to a 5-4 come from behind victory over Sweden on Wednesday night. Both teams had reasonably large followings considering the contest was staged on foreign soil, with each fan base providing both vocal and visual support.

Fans from both sides made the trip to Thief River Falls to cheer for their country. But the most vocal fan was already here.

Paivi Young, founder of Scandia House Floral Kaffe & Imports Ltd., is a native of Kuhmoinen, Finland, but she has spent much of the last 29 years in Thief River Falls.

She first came to the United States at the age of 16, as a high school exchange student at Grafton High School in Grafton, N.D. She returned to Finland to finish gymnasium, the last three grades of school that are the equivalent of junior college in the United States, then attended the University of North Dakota. It was at UND that she was engaged to Steve Young, a high school classmate whom she had fallen in love with during her first trip to the United States.

Paivi Young, who returns to Finland once per year to visit family, jumped at the chance to attend the World Junior Hockey Championships when they were held in Helsinki, Finland last year. This year the games came to her and she was able to set up a Scandia House Coffee stand inside the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls. Finland played three of its four preliminary round games in Thief River Falls, so Young was able to see her team in person.

After attending two World Junior Hockey Championships in a row, Young said she would like to attend next year's championships in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, but there may be some conflicts.

"My oldest daughter just got engaged and she said she wants to get married on New Year's Eve," Young said. "So now I don't know what I'm going to do. The games are over a period of two weeks, so I might be able to make it, I don't know."

Finland is a hockey country

Young attended last year's World Junior Hockey Championships in Helsinki, Finland, during which the host nation claimed the bronze medal. Most of the experienced players moved on from the Under 20 level and the defending bronze medalists were left with a youthful club.

Palvi Young

Age and inexperience were not apparent on Wednesday when Finland scored four goals in the final period of play against Sweden, winning the contest 5-4. During the rally Young was likely the most visible Finnish fan, waving Finland's white and blue flag, while sitting directly to the right of the Finnish bench. She led the Finnish crowd that made the REA-TRF seem like it was REA-Helsinki. After the Finnish victory she was given two game sticks by the Finnish coaches. A teary eyed youngster asked for a stick and Young, using her native language,

The fire occurred at the Paul and Evadell Tangquist residence, 923 Knight Ave. N. According to the Thief River Falls Fire Department, the fire was caused by buildup in a wood fireplace.

Two people injured in accident Sunday

Two people were injured Sunday after an accident west of Karlstad.

At the time of the accident, Raymond Kuznia was driving a 2005 Ford Escape eastbound on Highway 11 near mile marker 27. According to the State Patrol report, he attempted to pass a State of Minnesota snowplow driven by Anderson. The report indicated Raymond Kuznia thought he was passing a snowmobile at the time. In the snow fog, the two vehicles collided.

The Kuznia vehicle sustained extensive damage. The snowplow sustained minor damage. The State Patrol was dispatched to the scene at 12:38 p.m. Sunday.

Snowmobilers reminded about snowmobiling rules

After receiving reports of property damage and inconsiderate snowmobilers, the Thief River Falls Police Department is reminding snowmobilers about the rules of operating snowmobiles in the city.

Police Chief Kim Murphy noted the department received reports of property damage at Hartz Park, including damage to new trees. He added that some snowmobilers had driven in and around the play area. The department had also received reports of snowmobilers driving on boulevards as well as private yards.

Snowmobilers are reminded that:

- Snowmobile riding is not permitted on any state highway, county state aid highway or county highway. Qualified snowmobilers can only cross those roads at 90-degree angles.
- Snowmobiles can only be operated on streets and alleys while the driver is traveling en route to the river and/or open country, using the most direct route.
- The snowmobile's headlights and taillights must be on during both the day and night for it to be operated on streets and alleys.
- The speed limit for snowmobiles is 15 miles per hour on streets and alleys.
- Snowmobiles are not to be operated in parks.
- Snowmobiles should not be driven on sidewalks, private property or where prohibited by signs.
- Snowmobilers are not allowed to drive in the downtown business district between First and Fourth streets and Knight and Atlantic avenues.

For a map of designated snowmobile routes in the city, go to the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, 2017 Hwy. 59 S.E., or call 681-3720.

Minnesota traffic fatalities drop in 2004

Preliminary 2004 Minnesota traffic death figures reflect a significant reduction from 2003 with 60 fewer deaths, a 9.2 percent decrease, according to the Minnesota Department of Public Safety (DPS). Despite the decline, DPS officials decried the death rate as "unacceptable and preventable."

As of Jan. 3, there were 537 crash fatalities recorded in 2004, including the two New Year's Eve traffic deaths that occurred in Carver and McLeod counties. The total reflects motorists (444), motorcyclists (54), bicyclists (nine) and pedestrians (30). The final tally will rise as more reports are received from local police departments and county sheriffs, and as severely injured motorists die from their injuries within one month.

In 2003, 655 people died in traffic crashes - the second-highest number of deaths since 1981 when 763 people were killed.

DPS officials attribute the drop in deaths, in part, to public education and increased targeted law enforcement. Minnesota's seat belt use rate reached a record high of 82.1 percent in August 2004, an increase from 79.4 percent in 2003. The Minnesota Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) reported that about half of vehicle occupants killed in crashes were not wearing seat belts.

Additionally, Operation NightCAP (nighttime concentrated alcohol patrol), an enforcement program administered by OTS, continues to target the state's 14 counties with the most alcohol-related traffic deaths. According to OTS, about 40 percent of traffic deaths each year are alcohol-related. The legal alcohol limit for drivers will drop from 0.10 to 0.08 on Aug. 1.

"We apply extra focus to areas where the most preventable deaths occur," said Kathy Swanson, OTS director.

This is the third year of Operation NightCAP, and Swanson noted it continues to yield a high number of arrests of impaired drivers.

Swanson offered four principles, especially to young male drivers and those on rural roads who are disproportionately represented in the annual death total. She said, "Buckle up, drive sober, slow down and pay attention, and you'll probably get to your destination safely."

Arenas provide economic boost

by David Hill
Editor

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf handed out plaques and praise at the World Junior Hockey Championship games Thursday, Dec. 30.

Stumpf said he was impressed by the quality of skating at the games and commented that it was an inspiration for kids in this area. It may also be an inspiration for legislators. Stumpf said he saw the teamwork in play as a good example for the 2005 legislative session that begins on Jan. 4.

Arenas have been the subject of discussion on many levels in Minnesota. Thief River Falls officials have had their own issues, specifically with an early "understanding" with the state regarding whether it had to pay a sales tax on the materials used to build the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls. Sales tax on the arena would amount to over $300,000, if it isn't exempted. Stumpf said he believes that misunderstanding will be resolved this year and Thief River Falls won't have to pay that sales tax.

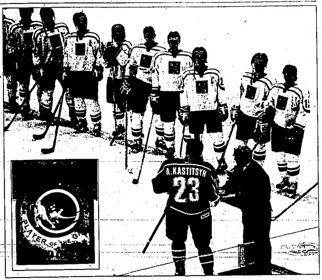
Arenas are an issue at the state level, too, Stumpf said the state is already seeing the impact of the Mighty Ducks legislation. Forty to 50 arenas received funding as a result of the the Mighty Ducks program. Even though they had to put up matching dollars, the response by communities has been impressive, said Stumpf. He believes a program like this puts Minnesota far ahead of other states.

Funding arenas remains controversial, however. Stumpf noted that the last two governors would only agree to fund statewide projects, such as parks, and downplayed community projects.

Stumpf said he personally believes a lot of community projects benefit the entire state. Dollars for community libraries, for example, benefit everyone, he said.

That's true also of arenas like the REA-TRF. People attending this event are from all over the world, said Stumpf. Those people pay sales tax on all sorts of products they buy while visiting the area. As a result, the state, Stumpf said, is paid back many times over.

Stumpf said he was enjoying the games. While present, he was privileged to hand out plaques recognizing the Player of the Game from each team. He even took the opportunity to practice a little of his German language skills with a German player. Stumpf said he was taking over for Thief River Falls Mayor Dale Wennberg, who came down with a cold.



Thief River Falls Mayor Dale Wennberg presented the Belarus Player of the Game award to Andrei Kastsitsyn as members of the Czech Republic looked on at the conclusion of the Christmas Day World Junior Hockey Championship match-up at the Ralph Engelstad Arena. The terra-cotta clay and stainless steel plaques, handcrafted by nationally-known designer Dave Badman of Grand Forks, N.D., were given to a player on each team throughout the tournament in Thief River Falls and Grand Forks. A specially-selected committee at each arena made the award selections.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and his daughter, Chrissy, were among the spectators at several of the World Junior Hockey Championship games played at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls.

Medical professionals keep players in the game

by David Hill
Editor

Just about everything that had to do with the World Junior Hockey Championship required special attention to detail and extra care. But then again, one really wouldn't expect it to be any other way, especially in regards to meeting the needs of injured players.

Anita Cardinal, nursing supervisor for the Worlds and nursing director of Inter-County Nursing in Thief River Falls, said participating in the event was beyond anything she ever really expected. "It was real interesting."

For Dr. George Nagobads, the event probably wasn't unusual. In fact, the physicians and staff said there weren't as many injuries as they had anticipated.

Cardinal said several cuts required sutures, and there was one serious shoulder injury, but that was about it. It wasn't much of a challenge for the assembled medical professionals. In addition to Nagobads, there were two physicians from Dakota Clinic in Thief River Falls at each game, ambulance crews from Great Plains EMS, and each team had its own physician. No, Cardinal was referring to the people rather than injuries when she said the experience was real interesting.

Dr. Nagobads, she explained, is the supervising physician, and, as Cardinal pointed out, he was the doctor for the United States' 1980 gold medal team. He was also the team doctor for the University of Minnesota hockey team and the North Stars. Now, he travels with the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF).

Cardinal, who also has had little, if any, experience with dope testing - of athletes - also enjoyed working with Karen Matters and Richard Bowman of the United States Anti-Doping Agency, the national anti-doping organization for the Olympic movement in the United States. The independent national agency tests athletes for performance enhancing substances, promotes the health of the athletes, and provides research and educational information.

During this interview on the concourse of the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls on Thursday, Dec. 30, Nagobads, Matters and Bowman, suddenly stopped talking and turned in mass to watch the game taking place on the ice at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls.

It's nothing, reassured Cardinal to this reporter, who felt the interview had ended rather abruptly. She explained that they were watching the player who they had selected for testing. According to the Web site for the United States Anti-Doping Agency, the selection criteria varies from sport to sport, or event to event. At this event, the selection is completely random, said Cardinal. If an injury occurs during the game to the player they selected, an alternate is selected. That's why they turned to watch the game, she said.

Matters then explained that while they had made their selection before the game, team doctors and athletes are not notified of who was selected until after the game. At that point, the athlete and team doctor are escorted to the "doping room" where a sample is taken. The results are then sent to a World Anti-Doping Agency accredited laboratory. There's quite a bit of security involved with the samples. The samples are packaged for shipping to ensure that the security of the sample is tracked, and inspected upon arrival at the laboratory to ensure that there is no evidence of tampering. In addition, the laboratory does not know the identity of the athlete, rather reports all results based on the unique sample code number of the collection kit.

All of the athletes know that they may be selected for testing and have agreed to that stipulation as a requirement for playing in the World Junior Hockey Championship, said Cardinal.

Once the sample is analyzed at the laboratory, the test results are sent to the Anti-Doping Agency, where the sample code number is matched with the documentation from the doping control process. The athletes and representatives are notified of the results.

"They've all been fun to be with," said Cardinal. "They've told all sorts of interesting stories, and really, have been all over the world." Cardinal pointed out that in three weeks, Nagobads will be going to Budapest.

While Nagobads will be going to Budapest, Cardinal and the other volunteers will be back at their jobs in Thief River Falls.

No security worries for World Junior hockey fans in Thief River Falls

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Hockey fans didn't have to worry about their safety at World Junior Hockey Championship games in Thief River Falls.

"On our end, it went really nice," said Kim Murphy, Thief River Falls police chief, about the tournament. He added that the most serious law enforcement issue involved a carful of kids calling the German team names and swearing at the team members. The kids drove away before law enforcement could talk to them.

A few beers were confiscated from people over the age of 21 entering the arena, Murphy said. There were also incidents involving fans reaching over the glass, trying to get autographs from players while teams were practicing or playing.

However, Murphy said, there were no traffic or disorderly conduct issues during the World Junior games here.

At the tournament, law enforcement's responsibilities included checking passes; checking bags for weapons and/or alcohol being brought into the arena; watching the crowd for any problems; and providing security for the teams.

Nine to 11 law enforcement officers worked at each game, Deputy Police Chief Craig Mattson said.

Four law enforcement personnel from the Thief River Falls Police Department or Pennington County Sheriff's Department were paid for their work, Murphy said. Two other officers/deputies were paid for working before and after games at the arena.

The World Juniors will reimburse the departments for personnel who were paid for their time at the arena, Murphy said.

The remaining law enforcement personnel were volunteers from other agencies. "I can't thank them enough for helping with the event," said Murphy, who noted their help led to a combined cut of 6-1/2 planned, paid shifts.

Murphy also thanked Boy Scout Troops 57 and 59, which handled traffic duties, and team hosts, who alerted law enforcement about the teams' arrivals and departures.

Besides working with groups here, local law enforcement was in daily contact with Grand Forks, N.D., law enforcement. That proved helpful when weather conditions led to the closure of the Canadian border Dec. 29 and 30. The tournament's emergency plan was enacted to find hotel rooms for the 4,000 Canadians who hadn't planned to stay overnight after games in Grand Forks, Murphy said. The arenas worked together to see whether hotel rooms were available in Fargo, N.D., and Thief River Falls. The Alerus Center was also opened for those hockey fans.

Thankfully, not all legislative bills will pass

In a few days, the legislative session will begin in Minnesota. Legislators will introduce thousands of bills. Most of the bills will never reach the floor, much less pass, which is a good thing.

Any idiot can introduce a bill, and many do. A legislator who wants some attention might introduce a bill to give 12-year-olds the right to vote, for example, knowing full well that it will never pass, but also knowing that if the media picks it up, interviews by the dozen will follow.

Of course, the bill will immediately disappear into the bottom drawer of some committee chairman, never to be seen again, but that doesn't prevent the media from highlighting the measure as "a proposal now before the legislature."

The merchants of outrage in the media pick up ideas they know will inflame their audience. They say, "Now, look what they're trying to do," without identifying the "they."

Yep, now "they" are trying to ban jet skis. Now "they" are going to force lentils onto school lunch menus. Now "they" are going to imprison kids who pray before football games.

However, the "they" that has all these awful ideas is usually one attention-starved but powerless legislator eager to stir the pot. By presenting the idea as a "proposal now before the legislature," the media gives the silly idea far more attention than it deserves.

The time to get alarmed about a bill is if it is brought up before a committee. A hearing in committee means somebody with power is taking the notion seriously.

Most bills never get a hearing. That's how the system is supposed to work. The whole purpose of our complicated legislative system is not to get things done, but to thwart people who want to do something silly.

Part of the game is to allow wackos of all sorts the chance to blow of steam. The media joins in the game with its thirst for controversy. If there is no news, the media stirs one up by highlighting some poor doofus who says, does, or proposes something stupid.

Beyond the legislature, high school principals are frequent victims. As they face the daily trauma of running a human zoo, principals often make controversial errors, like suspending a kid for wearing a Packers t-shirt on Vikings Day, or for praying for their lunch, or for having a strange hairdo.

Last spring, one principal in New Jersey decided to limit the number of times students could go to the bathroom per month.

Soon the aggrieved kid with a small bladder showed up on the "Today Show" alongside his indignant mother and a lawyer for the ACLU. The besieged principal was forced to peek out the curtains at the media horde on his lawn. Ratings soared.

Professors at elite universities are also a good source of outrageous ideas that have no chance of passage into law. With their impressive titles, big words and tweed jackets, they scare the bejiggers out of people out in the sticks by suggesting things like reparations for slavery, turning North Dakota into a big buffalo refuge, or by advocating free love.

Never mind that nobody takes them seriously except for some reporter thankful for a story designed to induce panic and raise ratings.

With the Internet, the extremes have become even more polarized. For example, there is always somebody on some obscure Web site willing to call our president a Nazi, or to deride his opponents as left-wing pacifist pigs. You can spend hours per day watching these whackos toss mud at each other online.

Some say we should ship minorities across the border, or force them to speak English at home, or give all illegal aliens free medical care, or ban all Muslims from teaching positions, or put the Ten Commandments up on every gym wall, or burn all Nativity scenes.

The only time to get upset about these people and their marginal ideas is when one of their bills actually gets a hearing. When that happens, and it almost never will, then and only then it is time to get on the phone and call St. Paul.

Speech team prepares for upcoming season

Preparations began this week for a new season of competitive speaking, with two teams in School District 564.

The Franklin Middle School Speech Team recently completed pre-season activities, while the season began Jan. 3 at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, with tournament invitationals beginning in February.

Speech is a Minnesota State High School League (MSHL) activity, with competition in thirteen categories including humorous interpretation, poetry, original oratory, creative expression, informative speaking, extemporaneous speaking, great speeches, extemporaneous reading, storytelling, discussion, prose, drama and duo interpretation.

Team members participate individually and as a team, with a series of Saturday invitationals hosted by schools across the region beginning in February. Sectional competition is in late spring with the State Speech Tournament in April.

Coach Julie Desrocher says the team has enjoyed growing success. "The numbers coming out for speech this season at the high school are almost overwhelming. Our team this year has incredible talent and potential, with some very strong categories. Last season we placed several speakers in final competition at the Sectional Tournament, almost all of those speakers are returning this year."

Desrocher says the district is also committed to a strong program at Franklin Middle School. "The middle school team travels with the varsity team and competes at all of the invitationals. Our middle school coach is Key Teeters, and she is still looking for presenters in exemp. speaking, storytelling and poetry."

Although the varsity program is very nearly full, Teeters says the middle school program will remain open.

"Usually, Franklin students are trying this for the first time, so we take on new team members any time during the season. I honestly don't think there is any program a parent can promote that will increase the confidence and speaking skills of your child more positively than the speech team. To be able to stand in front of an audience and speak with confidence is a skill your child will use forever - there is no better investment."

Because speech is a MSHL activity, a white card is required from the LHS activities office. For more information on competitive speaking, contact Desrocher at Challenger School or Teeters at Thief River Falls Radio.

Local students win World Juniors essay contest

Two local students recently won tickets to the World Junior Hockey Championship. The tickets were awarded to Sarah Matter and Dana Ranum, winners of the Thief River Falls School District's World Juniors essay contest.

Matter and Ranum both won two tickets to the tournament. Matter, a Franklin Middle School seventh grader, received her tickets after winning first place in the sixth through eighth grade division of the Thief River Falls School District's World Juniors essay contest. Ranum, who is a Lincoln High School sophomore, won first place in the ninth through 12th grade division of the essay contest.

Both Matter and Ranum wrote on the topic "If you had a conversation with a person from one of the 10 countries attending the World Juniors tournament, what would you tell them about Thief River Falls and what the community has to offer?"

With the exception of spelling errors and errors regarding plural words, the essays are reprinted as they had been written.

Welcome! DabrO pozhAlovat'!

Thief River Falls wants you to have a great visit. Our town has so much to offer. We have many parks, restaurants, and attractions.

Thief River Falls' restaurants have such a variety. China King, The Lantern, and Lopeka's Eatery are all nice sit-down restaurants. If you don't have much time McDonalds, Hardees, or Dairy Queen are great too. If you want to go to the movies, Galaxy Twin Theater is very nice. If not, Arnold Avenue store and Mr. Movies are excellent movie rental places. Want to go swimming? Seven Clans Casino and Water Park is a great place to go have fun. When you need to relax and enjoy the quiet of the outdoors the gazebo is very peaceful. Every winter they light up the big pine tree. Whether it's a big game or just for fun, the Old Arena, the Huck Olson, and the Ralph Engelstad Arenas all are great arenas and have their own special qualities.

Thief River Falls has something for everyone. It doesn't matter who you are or where you come from. Come and see the wonderful Thief River Falls for yourself.

Dana Ranum

In Thief River Falls there are lots of things to see. We have forests and rivers. You can find many interesting animals here. At night you can see the stars unlike in big cities and sometimes you can see the Northern Lights.

Our winters are full of cool temperatures and white snow that is a lot of fun to snowmobile in. We have the one and only Arctic Cat factory that makes snowmobiles and ATVs. Right next to the Arctic Cat factory is Digi-Key. Digi-Key is a distribution center for electronic parts.

In the fall, our trees have a great variety of exquisite colors. The summers are warm but not too hot. Springs bring new beautiful plants and leaves back to the trees.

We have admirable parks, some with playgrounds to amuse the children.

Our Lincoln High School choir is delightful to listen to. We have one of the most energetic and passionate directors in the country. She is one of a kind.

Since our town is a hockey community Ralph Engelstad donated the money to build the nicest youth hockey arena in the world. He grew up in this town. That shows how hard we work and that we strive to be somebody important. Thief River is a warm friendly community.

Lincoln High School sophomore Dana Ranum received first place in the ninth through 12th grade division of the Thief River Falls School District's World Juniors essay contest. She received two World Juniors tickets for her first-place effort.

State Legislature to convene on Jan. 4

The 84th Minnesota Legislature is scheduled to begin the 2005-2006 biennium at noon, Jan. 4.

This is the first year of the biennium, which is traditionally reserved for consideration of the state budget. During the second year, the Legislature typically considers bonding for new projects. Because no action was taken on a bonding bill during the 2004 session, it might be up for consideration early in the session.

During 2005, legislators must constitutionally complete their work by the first Monday after the third Saturday or May 23. The House and Senate will establish three deadlines governing when bills must pass out of the appropriate policy committees and when omnibus budget bills must be out of the House and Senate Finance committees

The state constitution limits the number of days the Legislature may meet over the course of a biennium to 120. Those days, called legislative days, are defined as any day when either the House or Senate meets in session. Committee hearings do not qualify in that category. All bills that raise revenue (such as the bonding bill, the tax bill and the K-12 education funding bill) must originate in the House of Representatives. Then it must be considered by the Senate. Each body's version is compared for discrepancies and when one document is agreed upon, it is sent to the governor for approval or veto.

Information about the legislative process and the Minnesota House of Representatives can be accessed through the House Web site at www.house.mn.

More information about the auditions can be obtained by contacting the college's music department, Bangsberg Fine Arts Complex, Bemidji State University, 1500 Birchmont Drive N.E., Bemidji, MN 56601-2699, or 218-755-2915.

Minnesota Web site on prescription medication will stay open

Following news reports that Canada may move toward preventing American patients from receiving prescriptions from Canada unless they are examined by a Canadian doctor, Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty sought to reassure Minnesotans that his administration would seek a way to keep its MinnesotaRxConnect.com Web site operational.

"The Canadian government should not slam the door on American consumers seeking more affordable prescription medicines from safe Canadian pharmacies. The proposed change in Canada's prescription drug policy would have serious effects on the pocketbooks and well-being of the more than 2 million Americans who buy their prescription medicines from Canada.

"In the unfortunate event that Canada changes its policy, we will seek a way to keep our MinnesotaRxConnect.com Web site operating by facilitating purchases from European countries with safe pharmacy systems."

Hockey players and fans attending hockey games at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls couldn't expect better medical attention. Several physicians and medical professionals were on hand for every game. Some of the professionals included: (from left) Richard Bowman of the United States Anti-Doping Agency, Anita Cardinal, volunteer and director of nursing at Inter-County Nursing, Dr. George Nagobads, supervising physician from the International Ice Hockey Federation, and Karen Matters, United States Anti-Doping Agency.

Volunteers provide law enforcement expertise at the World Juniors

by April Schelnoha
Reporter

They may have worn different uniforms, but their goal was the same – to keep everyone safe at the World Junior Hockey Championship.

Eighteen people affiliated with various law enforcement agencies volunteered at the World Juniors, said Craig Mattson, Thief River Falls deputy police chief.

Law enforcement agencies represented at the tournament included the Ada Police Department, Beltrami County Sheriff's Department, Lake of the Woods County Sheriff's Department, Mahnomen County Sheriff's Department, Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Minnesota State Patrol based in Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes, Red Lake County Sheriff's Department and Twin Valley Police Department.

Mike Roff, a deputy with the Red Lake County Sheriff's Department, summed up their duties as "basically making sure everyone behaves themselves."

The chance to see World Junior hockey was the reason many law enforcement personnel volunteered their time.

"I figured it was a once-in-a-lifetime chance to do something with hockey," said Jody Bueng from the Ada Police Department. A volunteer at both games Dec. 30, he worked in the locker rooms between the games and in the lobby area before the games. During the games, he watched the eastside of the arena.

Jim Rystad also noted it was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. He took advantage of it – volunteering Dec. 25, 26 and 30. While volunteering, Rystad had the chance to watch the games.

"It's excellent, excellent hockey," said Rystad of the Red Lake County Sheriff's Department. "It's fun to watch. They're very talented people."

When asked why he volunteered his law enforcement expertise, Joel Hopps said, "Well, I just enjoy hockey."

Hopps, who is employed by the Lake of the Woods County Sheriff's Department, wasn't the only Hopps family member at the Dec. 30 games. Hopps and his father, Greg, were both watching the crowds for any problems. Greg Hopps, a special agent with the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, also worked at the World Junior exhibition games.

Making sure everyone was safe and being able to watch hockey at the same time weren't the only benefits. "It's a good way to stay involved with other communities in your area," Rystad said.

Their work was appreciated. "Volunteer security is a terrific help," said Ryan Kezar, a Thief River Falls police officer, while working at a Dec. 27 game.

And the law enforcement volunteers appreciated the opportunity to help. Saying he "jumped" at the chance to be a World Juniors volunteer, Rystad thanked the city of Thief River Falls and the Thief River Falls Police Department.

After all, Rystad noted, it takes a lot of people to cover an event like the World Juniors, and he was glad he could help.

...Courage or Cowardice?

Of course, there is something more important than hamsters this week. The hamsters can wait until next week.

I first heard about the earthquake early last Sunday morning. I had fallen asleep with the television on, as usual. Since it was on very low, I could barely hear it, and with my glasses off, I couldn't see much. I just heard "earthquake" and other words that indicated a large area had been involved.

I struggled out of my warm, comfy bed to get closer to the television so I could see, muttering, "Where is it, where is it?" The relief I felt when I heard the quake and the following tsunami were half a world away from the U.S. was short when I saw what poorly protected countries were involved. As I watched the destruction unfold, I realized how it easily it could just as well have been the U.S.

Of course, any catastrophe could happen here. Our affluence and power do not make us exempt from acts of nature. We know that and that is what is scary. Nature obeys its own rules and does not care one bit about what we expect from it. Man must adapt to it, or not, as he wishes, and it doesn't care whether he does or not.

We are very aware of nature's power in our area. We know that blizzards can be deadly, with the combination of wind, snow and freezing temperatures. Taken individually, those things also can be deadly if we are not careful. As we saw this weekend, even a rather gentle snowfall can accumulate over time and create difficulties. Most of us saw the frightening flood of 1997, when calm, gentle rivers overflowed their banks and turned deadly. Lately, we have seen the horror of hurricanes, tornadoes, forest fires, floods, volcanic eruptions and other deadly and destructive acts of nature in other parts of this country and the world.

Now we have seen the destruction in Southwest Asia over and over, until we are almost tired of it. But it would be a mistake to forget it. We need to remember the power of nature and be prepared for it as we watch the courage of the gentle people there.

I heard many speak of the nature of the people of that area, their kindness and caring for others before themselves. Even when they are starving for food, and must be suffering greatly from the effects of the catastrophe, they make sure that their brothers and sisters are being helped too.

Acts of courage and cowardice: I don't know if you heard about it, but there was a family of three on a sailboat that rescued nearly 40 people from the ocean water, taking a boatload into shore and then going back for more. When asked why they did it, the mother replied, "Because it had to be done." What courage! And what cowardice was shown by those in other boats in the area who did nothing but watch them.

I wonder which I would be under those circumstances - courageous or a coward? Which would you be?

Anyone who attended the World Junior Hockey Championship games at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Grand Forks knows that the fans were as interesting as the games. These two fans are Ross Lund of Grand Forks, N.D., and Heidi McMillan of Carberry, Manitoba, Canada.

PARENTING TIPS
Winter or The Cold Weather Blues

Most of us stay inside as much as possible when the weather gets cold. Often we do not get as much physical activity as we should. Children as well as adults need some kind of physical activity on a regular basis. In fact, as children's muscles and bones grow and develop, they may feel a strong urge to move, climb, jump or run. In the winter when we are inside so much, this "urge" can cause problems.

On those days when your children are rather "wild," won't cooperate or are fighting with each other, it could be that they are in need of some physical activity! If your children have an opportunity for regular physical activity, you should notice that they eat and sleep better. So how can we provide physical activity when it is cold out? Following are some suggestions:

•Whenever the temperature is warm enough, bundle up, and take your child outside to run, jump and climb, even if it is only for 15 minutes.

•When you can't go outside, try these ideas inside:

•Play a game of "Catch Me" by crawling on the floor. Take turns: sometimes you chase your child and sometimes have your child chase you. Remember you can always set up limits and rules as to when and where this active play will take place in your house.

•Make an obstacle course. Use things in your house to go over, under, around and through.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the weather outside, the cold temperatures, the wind or the snow. Look at the thermometer to see what it says. Talk about what kind of clothes are needed outdoors at different temperatures.

Know your rights if hit by electronic financial fraud

by Greg Tullis
FBM instructor, Moorhead

Online banking is becoming more popular in the United States with about 55 million people banking online this past year. With this growth comes criminal activity to steal money from your accounts.

How do people steal from your accounts? One of the most common ways is that they send an e-mail that looks like it comes from your bank, asking you to reaffirm your bank log-in information. This is called "phishing," and no legitimate business would ask for that information by e-mail, however, it is estimated that over two million consumers have been tricked into giving out their information or other personal data last year by this means.

If you are attacked by electronic fraud, your rights as a consumer are spelled out by the Federal Reserve Board's Electronic Funds Transfer Act of 1979 or known as "Reg-E" in the banking industry. "Reg-E" does not cover credit cards, only your transfers in and out of your bank accounts whether by paper checks or debit card.

When a debit card or other access device, such as online password information, is stolen or lost, consumer liability is capped at $50 for those who notify banks within two business days of the loss. Consumers who notify the bank within 60 days have their liability capped at $500, and after 60 days, the losses become the consumer's responsibility. If a debit card or password were not lost but charges mysteriously appear on a consumer's account, the liability clock begins when the bank notifies its consumer of the activity, usually through regular monthly statements.

One important note for farmers: This "Reg-E" act only covers personal consumer bank accounts. If you set up your bank account using your personal Social Security number, it should be considered a personal account even if you use it for your farming business. However, if you are in a partnership or corporation with a business tax ID number for your checking account, it is not considered a personal bank account and does not offer the same protection. Be extra cautious doing business online with your business account.

To protect your online activities, do not give out your log-in information or passwords to anyone, no matter how legitimate it looks. Change your passwords regularly, and monitor your accounts frequently. Report any irregularities as soon as you discover them.

For more information, call Northland Community and Technical College at 1-800-959-6282 and ask for the Farm Business Management instructor nearest you.

Mary Tandberg, 88

Thief River Falls - Mary Tandberg, 88, died Monday, January 3, 2005, in the Palliative Care Unit of Meritcare Hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Memorial services will be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, January 8, at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Newfolden, with Rev. Raynard Huglen officiating.

Mary Charlotte Keogh was born on December 26, 1916, in Ramsey County, about 12 miles from Lawton, N.D. She was the eldest child of Thomas Vincent Keogh and Hattie Marsh Keogh. The Keogh family moved to Fort Yates, N.D., where her father ran a gas station.

Mary graduated as Valedictorian from Standing Rock Community School in Fort Yates, N.D. in 1934, and earned her Bachelor of Science degree in English from the University of Minnesota in 1938.

Mary was teaching in Newfolden, when she met Peter Tandberg. She and Pete were married on November 13, 1942. Mary and Pete raised wheat, potatoes, barley, oats, and four boys on a farm near Newfolden. Mary earned her library certificate from the University of North Dakota and resumed her career in education in 1967, serving as the high school librarian in Newfolden until 1978. In retirement, Mary and Pete found their ideal climate and community in Mesa, Ariz. Peter Tandberg died in 1983. Mary continued to reside in Mesa until the fall of 2002 when she moved to the Linden Tree Circle wing of Eventide in Moorhead.

Mary was an avid reader and had great curiosity about the natural world. Mary had a strong competitive streak, and played golf and bridge accordingly. At Eventide, when her golf and bridge skills were on the wane, she proudly displayed her cup of dimes as proof of her prowess in bingo. Mary relished her Irish heritage and passed her zest for all things Celtic to her family.

Mary Tandberg is survived by her sons, Ralph of San Jose, Calif., John (Jane) of Moorhead, Paul (Charlene) of Newfolden and Gary (Bridget) of Bloomington; two brothers, Bernard M. Keogh of Boulder, Colo., Curtis R. Keogh (Edith) of San Antonio, Texas; and a sister, Kathleen Carsten of Antioch, Calif.; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: With the new year, how much can I earn in 2005 and still receive all my Social Security retirement benefits?

A: Your year of birth makes a big difference for this. Earnings limits for Social Security, known as the annual earnings test, vary based on your age now, not the age when you actually started your retirement benefits.

The following information is for a person that started receiving Social Security retirement or survivor benefits before 2005. While the same dollar amounts generally apply for people starting SSA benefits in 2005, special rules do exist to help adjust for the year's earnings before you start to receive Social Security. None of the following applies to anyone receiving benefits because of their own disability. If receiving disability or any Supplemental Security Income, contact your local SSA office for current information.

In 2005, a person under their full retirement age (FRA) can earn $12,000 gross wages or net self-employment before monthly SSA benefits are impacted. One dollar in benefits will be withheld for every $2 in earnings above this limit. For example, wages would not lower your 2005 SSA retirement benefits if you are age 62-64 and earn $12,000 gross wages or less but if you earn $13,000 gross wages in 2005 you are $1000 over the limit so $500 will be withheld from your benefits. Full retirement age (FRA) is the SSA term for how old a person must be to receive retirement without age based reductions. Formerly age 65, full retirement age is slowly moving up to age 67 based on year of birth. For people born in 1940, FRA is 65 plus six months. FRA was age 65 plus 4 months for those born in 1939.

A person reaching full retirement age in 2005 can earn $31,800, but for them the annual earnings test applies only to earnings for months prior to reaching the FRA. During this period, one dollar in benefits will be withheld for every $3 in earnings above the limit. There is no earnings limit beginning the month a person attains FRA. People's plans change during the year, and you can update your estimated earnings as changes occur by contacting your local office or the SSA national toll-free number 1-800-772-1213. More information about working while receiving SSA is on the agency Web site, www.socialsecurity.gov.

A great save was made by Switzerland goalie Michael Tobler, who stopped Enver Lisin (26) of Russia on this point-blank stop during Thursday's World Junior Hockey Championship game in Thief River Falls. Others in the picture are Dmitri Pestunov of Russia (12), along with Switzerland's Gianni Ehrensperger (3), Alain Birbaum (24) and Christian Haldimann (18).

Russia has a 3-0 run in TRF

Alexander Ovechkin scored two goals and Enver Lisin collected four assists as Russia skated to a 6-1 win over gutsy but overmatched Switzerland in a final round Group A World Junior Hockey Championship game Thursday.

It was the third Team Russia victory on Thief River Falls ice during the 2005 tournament that completed its schedule with medal round and relegation games the Ralph Engelstad Arena in Grand Forks, N.D. Russia headed into the medal round with a 3-1 pool play performance - the lone loss on opening day to the USA in Grand Forks. Switzerland had a 1-3 Group A run. Thursday marked the lone Swiss appearance in Thief River Falls.

Russia opened the scoring with a Dimitri Vorobiev power play goal at 4:58 of the first period. It took the powerful Russians just 14 seconds to score on the game's first penalty.

Dmitri Pestunov made it 2-0 with a nifty move in front of Switzerland goalie Michael Tobler at 17:20.

Switzerland broke into the scoring column when Marco Kaser intercepted a clearing pass and put the puck behind Russia goalie Anton Khudobin 1:09 into the second period.

Ovechkin scored his first goal on a power play at 27:07 to rebuild a two-goal Russia edge.

The Swiss had a golden opportunity to make it a one-goal game again when Alexei Emelin was awarded a penalty shot at 28:41. But Khudobin made the save and 56 seconds later Alexander Galimov's power play goal put the Russians up 4-1.

Georgi Misharin became the fifth Russian goal scorer at 51:12, and Ovechkin, the NHL's top draft pick, finished the scoring at 58:16.

Khudobin made 16 stops. Tobler had 32 saves.

With the win, Russia clinched first place in Group A and advanced directly into the medal round semifinals. Unbeaten Canada was the Group B semifinal qualifier.

Gators win W-H-A tournament

Unbeaten status of a Badger/Greenbush-Middle River girls high school basketball team that is ranked No. 3 (behind Elgin-Millville and Fosston) in the Class A state polls was not challenged at the Walker-Hackensack-Akeley Invitational, where the Gators went to 11-0 with a three-game championship performance that featured an average victory margin of more than 33 points.

The Tom Neibauer-coached Gators beat Laporte 80-41 in the Tuesday quarterfinals, defeated Walker-Hackensack-Akeley 75-49 in the Wednesday semifinals, and smothered Park Rapids Area 53-18 in the Thursday title game.

Kierah Kimbrough scored 45 points in the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River first-game victory over Laporte. The Gators jumped out to a 30-5 first quarter lead, had a 42-20 halftime advantage, and opened up a 62-30 third quarter spread.

"We got off to a real good start," acknowledged Neibauer.

Between Kimbrough, Kaley Mekash (20) and Missy Bruggeman (12), the Gators got 77 front-line points.

"We got real good post play," confirmed Neibauer. "They couldn't stop us on the inside."

The Gators were 34-for-77 from the field (44 percent) and 12-for-14 at the free throw line. Laporte went 9-for-19 at the line.

It was a 38-point, 23-rebound semifinal for Kimbrough as the Gators led host Walker-Hackensack-Akeley at the quarters 19-5, 38-19 and 59-30.

Mekash (16) and Bruggeman (14) added another 30 points to the Gators' Day 2 offense that at one time had built a 40-point scoreboard difference against a top ten-ranked team that had lost just one game.

"They're (W-H-A) very quick," pointed out Neibauer.

The Gators were 32-for-65 (49 percent) that day. Both teams had trouble at the free throw line, where Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 11-for-24 and Walker-Hackensack-Akeley went 13-for-24.

Only two Park Rapids players put their names in the score book during the one-sided championship game that featured Badger/Greenbush-Middle River quarter leads of 15-2, 26-8 and 39-16.

"They (Panthers) are a real good defensive team," noted Neibauer. "They gave us as much trouble as anyone this year on that end. But they couldn't score against us. They're not used to seeing a full court press like our's. We took them out of their game."

Kimbrough had a 20-point, 10-rebound double-double in the finals. Mekash netted 12 points.

The Gators went 21-for-50 from the field (42 percent) and 11-for-20 at the line, where the Panthers were 4-for-14.

Belarus/Germany will return to IIHF Division I in 2006

Elevated to the World Junior Hockey Championship for players under the age of 20 in 2005, Germany and Belarus will find themselves back in the International Ice Hockey Federation Division I tournament in 2006 after finishing ninth and tenth, respectively, in this year's competition at Thief River Falls and Grand Forks, N.D.

Top eight finishers in the ten-team event return to the field the following year. The No. 9 and No. 10 teams are supplanted by two qualifiers from IIHF Division I play.

While the top three teams in each pool play group compete in the medal round, the four non-qualifiers play in the relegation round – where the top two earn the right to return to the tournament the following year.

In 2005, Russia, Czech Republic, USA, Canada, Sweden and Finland were medal round participants. Switzerland, Belarus, Slovakia and Germany went into the relegation games, where Switzerland and Slovakia survived the weeding-out process.

Norway and Latvia have already qualified for the 2006 World Junior Championship, filling the spots vacated by Germany and Belarus.

Members of Team Sweden gathered around goalie David Rautio following their 3-0 Thursday win over Slovakia in Thief River Falls that clinched a berth in the World Junior Hockey Championship medal round.

World Junior Hockey Championship...

Sweden wins, earns a medal round spot

A 32-save shutout by David Rautio did two things Thursday: it clinched a World Junior Hockey Championship medal round berth for Team Sweden, and at the same time dropped Slovakia into the relegation round of the 2005 International Ice Hockey Federation tournament for players under the age of 20.

Heading into the final round Group B pool play match-up at the Ralph Engelstad Arena in Thief River Falls, Sweden needed a win to make the six-team medal round. Slovakia could also make it with a win or a tie, and would advance even with a loss - as long as they didn't lose by more than two goals. But with Rautio stopping everything in sight, the final 3-0 victory margin not only sent Sweden to Grand Forks with a shot at a medal, it sealed Slovakia's non-qualifying fate.

Johannes Salmonsson scored the only goal Sweden would need for the win 3:11 into the game.

Slovakia saw its medal hopes shattered during a space of 1-minute, 43-seconds in the second period when Carl Soderberg scored at 31:51 and Salmonsson came right back with his second goal at 33:34 to make it 3-0.

Slovakia pressed for at least a two-goal difference, but simply couldn't get the puck past Rautio.

Team Slovakia goalie Jaroslav Halak also played well, making 27 saves.

Not surprising, Rautio earned Sweden Player of the Game honors. His Slovakia counterpart was forward Marek Zagrapan.

It was the tenth and final World Junior Hockey Championship game in Thief River Falls. Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday match-ups were all scheduled in Grand Forks, N.D.

Scoring

First period - Sweden, Johannes Salmonsson (un.), 3:11.

Second period - Sweden, Carl Soderberg (Linus Videll), 31:51; Sweden, Salmonsson (Kalle Olsson, Robert Nilsson), 33:34.

Third period - no scoring.

Goalie saves - Sweden, David Ratio 12-10-10–32; Slovakia, Jaroslav Halak 9-9-9–27.

HOME DEPOT

A goal was signalled by the official after the puck settled into the net behind USA goalie Al Montoya as Alexander Galimov of Russia (11), along with USA defensemen Ryan Suter (7) and Jeff Likens (5) looked on during Sunday's World Junior Hockey Championship semifinal game at the Ralph Engelstad Arena in Grand Forks, N.D. Russia defeated the defending champions 7-2.

Is more regulation of high school hockey needed?

A story about new youth hockey rules which reward fair play has been sitting on my desk since it came on Dec. 9. The story describes new rules proposed for youth hockey that would award points for fair play. The purpose, of course, is to discourage misconduct, whether it's by the players or their parents.

I'm not sure I agree that awarding an extra point for fair play will make much of a difference. Rather, I think enforcement of penalties on and off the ice and in the arenas, would eliminate a lot of the problem.

After watching several World Junior Hockey Championship games, I have to admit that fast-paced and skillful skating is much more enjoyable to watch than the rugged hockey we have become accustomed to watching in America.

After watching one skillful display of fast skating and skillful passing at the arena in Thief River Falls this week, one hockey fan, who has seen a lot more hockey than I will ever see, said, "People don't know what they're missing." He's right, and unless players, parents and fans realize that, we'll continue to see poor skating, bad injuries and poor judgment on and off the ice.

Snowmobilers should stay out of Hartz Park

Other than the fact that there are so many snowmobilers in Thief River Falls, and that they contribute so much to the economy, the only reason I can imagine for allowing them to continue operating snowmobiles within city limits is because there hasn't been a serious accident or injury that would incite public outcry.

One would think that now, with an abundance of snow, snowmobilers would rather snowmobile outside of the city limits - out in the fresh air, on clear trails, or on frozen rivers and lakes - not in city parks. Remember, I have already mentioned that the only reason I could think of for allowing snowmobile use within the city was because there hasn't been a public outcry against that practice.

Well, take a hint.

There's one specific violation that's beginning to incite public outcry - snowmobile travel within city parks, specifically Hartz Park.

I'm told Hartz Park is off limits. It should be off limits to snowmobilers for two very good reasons that I can think of: The safety of snowmobilers, and the safety of children and adults sliding down the hill.

In the past few years, the city has added new playground equipment and decorative elements (like boulders), to the gardens at Hartz Park. Certainly, the playground equipment and the gardens are things one would normally expect to find in a park. They add to the enjoyment of people who use the park, unless I suppose, you're traveling at a quick pace on a snowmobile and manage to hit one that is submerged under a foot of soft snow.

There's one hill in the city of Thief River Falls and it's in Hartz Park. In the winter, children and adults use it for sledding. I have yet to see anyone riding a sled weave his or her way through an obstacle course. There is very little control one can exert while sliding down a hill that would influence the direction of a sled. And, I can't think of anything that would incite a public outcry against snowmobiles more than hitting a young child in a public park with a snowmobile.

Snowmobilers: Exert a little control. Use a little common sense. Stay out of Hartz Park.

There are designated trails in and through the city. If you don't know where those trails are, follow the signs or better yet, visit the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce and pick up a map.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A good ATV trail system is needed

Why aren't ATV's allowed on DNR land?

Dear Editor

It has been a long time since I used the media to inform the readers about what is happening, or not happening, with the ongoing struggle with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) regarding the regulation of travel, either all travel or certain types of travel, on ditch dumps and other established trails on land regulated by the DNR. I know there is a lot of interest in this matter because no matter where I go, the subject comes up.

Just a short comment on what has taken place: The DNR has been closing off ditch dumps and other trails that have been used for nearly 100 years for travel, which are now being used by All-Terrain Vehicle (ATV) riders, and in some instances all motorized vehicles. Yet, our governor and commissioner of Natural Resources have made statements that they want to make the state owned land more accessible to the residents. It doesn't add up.

The closing of these trails, which started about three years ago, is what got me going. I have had the privilege of visiting with the commissioner, District Director Paul Swenson from Bemidji, Attorney Craig Engwall from St. Paul, and several other DNR representatives. I have appreciated very much that joining us at some of these meetings are Rep. Maxine Penas, Sheriff Kenny Hultgren, County Commissioner John Anderson, Troy Schroder from the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) and Odeen Anderson. They are very supportive and vocal at the meetings. Also, there is a group of individuals from the Thief River Falls, Marshall County and Roseau County areas, who are as concerned as I am.

It is my understanding that in this country we are innocent until proven guilty. With DNR, it is the opposite. They aren't sure that they have the authority to restrict travel on all of the locations, but they aren't about to remove any of the signs, either. WE MUST PROVE THEM WRONG. How? Discussing it with them doesn't do any good. They say they don't want to go to court, but it might take just that. One problem with that is that we would be paying our attorney, and through state taxes, we would also be paying the attorney opposing us.

At our last meeting, I suggested that land owners post trails and ditch dumps on their land stating: "No DNR Vehicles Beyond This Point." According to DNR, the DNR has the authority to control the travel on even these trails. Private land owners should have the same authority. My suggestion wasn't too well accepted.

Why aren't ATV's allowed on the trails through DNR land? There are a couple of reasons. One, they might make ruts if it is wet, and hurt certain plants. Yet, on many of those same trails travel by four wheel drive pickups (weighing a couple of tons) is allowed, making ruts a foot deep. Does this make sense? Another reason is that bird watchers do not want ATV's traveling into the area where they might find birds. The bird watchers I have talked to would like to be able to use a vehicle to get into the area, then walk from there. In eastern Kittson County, if a person was to get to the center of the DNR land, there would be a minimum of three to four miles to walk, depending on which direction they came from. How many people are going to walk in there, whether it be for hunting or bird watching?

Isn't it nice to know that the state of Minnesota is so interested in making OUR land accessible for the residents to use? Did you know that you can't even ride a horse on DNR lands? There is another reason for that, which I will not get into.

My approach to the DNR was to state that these trails are "Common Law Roads." A "Common Law Road" is established when a landowner has allowed travel on his or her land and the public has accepted it by using it as a travel route. It continues to exist even when the land is transferred from one person to another. In my correspondence with DNR, the response I got from the commissioner is that "it does not appear that other ditch dumps meet the criteria of a "Common Law Dedication road." I was also told that the "Common Law Dedication" provision does not apply to land owned by the state. I have been unable to get an answer as to why it doesn't. If it is either statute or a court ruling, I would like an answer.

The answer we get as to why we cannot ride an ATV on ditch dumps is that the riders might "be tempted to drive off into the brush." That's a good one. I am not restricted from carrying my gun in that area during off-hunting season. Might I not be tempted to "do some shooting" when I am in there? My answer to that is to penalize the persons doing it, just as all other infractions of the law is handled, not penalize every law-abiding citizen. Again, we're guilty until proven innocent. If someone were speeding on the highway, that individual must pay, they don't shut the whole highway down because someone might not follow the law. As you can see, they've got my goat.

Our newly formed Agassiz Trail Riders Club submitted a map showing our proposed route for Grant-in-Aid Trails in Kittson County. It works much the same as the snowmobile trails. However, one of the locations that we had planned on using for our trail was on the Roseau-Kittson County line, again which being a ditch dump, is very high and usually dry. This ditch dump has been traveled on by all sorts of vehicles for many years. Now, even before our trail map was discussed with us, it is signed restricting ATVs. Another area that we would have on our trail system is State Ditch No. 85, also a high and usually dry travel area. We have now been informed that this ditch will be restricted next year. Where are ATVs to travel? The law requires that all ATVs must be registered, which includes a substantial payment, with the DNR. What is the purpose of having to pay DNR and we get absolutely nothing out of it? If I recall, we can't even ride on our own land without registering the vehicle with the DNR.

I suggested, at the last meeting in Warroad, that we hold a public meeting in Kittson County, and the DNR personnel could explain to everyone, as it was explained to us, why the restrictions are going on. That was turned down pretty quick. I also questioned why, if the Wildlife Management Areas had been in effect for 50 years, were restrictions put in place now when we have lived without them for 50 years. I don't believe there is too much damage to be seen in the 70,000 plus acres of land owned by the state. If collectively there was one acre of "damaged" land, that still leaves 69,999 undamaged acres. Not bad.

A good trail system in Kittson County could have a very positive result on tourism. ATV riding is a big business, and it is growing. With help from the DNR, we could get on the bandwagon and utilize the large area of state owned land in Kittson County.

What's the next step? I don't know. I know there is a lot of support from Rep. Penas, Sheriff Hultgren and Commissioner Anderson, as well as the Agassiz Trail Riders, but it will take more than that. I think it is going to take many more people and money to put a stop to this. The people who are concerned must do more than talk to each other; they must become active. Write letters. Let the people at the top know what our feelings are in Kittson County. Letters signed by one or two individuals is much more effective than one letter with a number of signatures. Talking about it over a cup of coffee, or other beverage, won't do the job. The money requirement will come when the DNR is challenged in court.

I would like to see the commissioner of Natural Resources get 500 letters from residents of the county. He would then understand that there is more than one person who is not satisfied. (This all started with a Letter to the Editor in December 2001). Send copies of the letter to the Governor, DNR in Bemidji, Rep. Penas and Sen. Stumpf. Addresses are as follows:

Commissioner Gene Merriam, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, 500 Lafayette Rd., St. Paul, MN 55155-4037; Gov. Tim Pawlenty, 130 State Capitol, 75 Rev. ## Minnesota's population growth is changing

by Lisa Hinz,
U of M Extension Service

Minnesota's population is growing, but in different ways. According to state demographer Tom Gillaspy, 20 years ago Minnesota was mostly a "home-grown state" with births of people who lived here fueling population growth. Back then, most of the population was born here (more than three-quarters), and most of the remaining people had lived here 20 years or more.

Today, most of the growth in the state's population (12 percent in the 1990s) is coming from other states and other countries. This is more like 100 years ago, when nearly 30 percent of Minnesota population was born in another country. While not simple, this immigration comes in part from need – for workers to fuel growth – and in part from what Minnesota has to offer as the regional hub for the upper Midwest.

Growth will continue. By 2030, the state's population is projected to grow 27 percent, passing six million in 20 years. Household numbers will grow, too, by 40 percent and mostly in the Twin Cities. How do you get 40 percent growth in households with only 27 percent growth in population? Smaller sized households--almost one-third of all households are projected to have just one person in them. Average household size is projected to fall from 2.52 in 2000 to 2.3 in 2030.

Gray will be more common, too, as the median age is projected to increase from 35.4 years in 2000 to 40.2 years in 2030. By 2015, we'll already have a 36 percent growth in numbers of 45 to 64 year olds as large numbers of the baby boomers age. Imagine the impact on the workforce, products, and services needed in your community.

Minnesota is becoming more diverse racially and ethnically, but is still less so than the nation. In 2000, about 10 percent were of a minority race or ethnicity, compared with 28 percent nationally. Although immigration rates are difficult to predict, the needs for our state's tight labor markets and desire for economic growth suggest the continued need for newcomers to keep our state growing economically. Imagine what the state would be like without the value that immigrants of all sorts have brought.

Where might people live? Even more will be in the Twin Cities suburbs. They now include about 45 percent of the state's population. Over the next 25 years, 68 percent of all growth is projected for the Minneapolis-St. Paul metro area. That still leaves 32 percent growth in other parts of the state with all but 13 counties projecting growth. Imagine what these changes mean for livelihoods, transportation and services.

More people, older, more racial and ethnic diversity, and more suburban — that's a glimpse of Minnesota's future. Can you imagine yourself and your Minnesota community 25 years from now?

'55 Ford Tractor To Be Shown On Friday

"The Ford Motor company's new farm tractors for 1955 will go on display Friday, January 7, in the showrooms of the Tunberg Motor company. Wallace Tunberg said the new line of Ford tractors features five models in two power series. The full three-plow tractors are the most powerful ever built by Ford. All five models -- in two-tone red and gray -- have Ford's three-point implement hitch with advanced hydraulic implement control.

"'We extend a most cordial invitation to everyone to come in and see these new tractors,' Tunberg said. 'Our showroom opens at 8 o'clock Friday morning.'

"Mr. Tunberg said that the new tractors represent a major break with the past, as far as Ford is concerned, inasmuch as Ford has been a 'single model' producer for nearly a half-century."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER JANUARY 5, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

They Want Free Homes
Settlers Petition Congressman Steenerson to This Effect

"A number of the settlers in this section are getting up a petition addressed to Congressman Steenerson asking that the free homes bill apply to ceded Chippewa land that was opened for settlement after May 17th, 1900, under the old Nelson act. The way the law now stands these settlers will have to live upon the land for a term of five years and pay $1.25 per acre. Congressman Steenerson has introduced a bill which will allow these settlers the privilege of making proof in fourteen months, but it is very doubtful if he could secure the passage of a bill which would give them land without the paying of the $1.25 per acre, as the policy of the government now is to have the settlers pay the Indians for the land."

Soon to Know

"It is again given out -- for about the seventh time -- that the state supreme court will render a decision as to the outcome of the contest for mayor of Thief River Falls about the 16th of January. The people will then find out for sure whether Mr. Kratka or Mr. Richardson was elected mayor of this city at the election in November 1903. About the only question now involved, however, is who will pay the cost of the contest."

Don't Understand Delay

"As yet no mail has arrived for Thief River Falls over the Soo line, and the local post office does not understand the cause of the delay. Several weeks ago the superintendent of railway mail recommended that the Soo carry the mail. Postmaster Richardson says that he should have at least one week's notice before the change is made."

It is the intention of Mr. Nelson to conduct the business alone in the future. Mr. Thorkelson has not yet decided what he will do or where he will go, but it is not probable that he will be a citizen of St. Hilaire much longer."

Creamery Annual Meeting

"The annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Creamery association was held at the village hall last Monday afternoon, there being a very large attendance. # Traffic lights at Casino intersection proposed

Jensen and Charles Naplin will meet with Flaagen and County Auditor Ken Olson to set the 2005 ditch levy.

• Flaagen read a summary of Governor Tim Pawlenty's transportation proposal. The proposal consists of a constitutional amendment to permanently dedicate 100 percent of the motor vehicle sales tax (MVST) to transportation, a 60-40 split between highways and transit, providing an additional $2.56 billion for transportation through 2017. The proposed amendment would be on the ballot in 2006, with transfer of MVST beginning in 2008.

Pawlenty's plan also calls for a $4.5 billion, 10-year bonding package that will accelerate construction of major highway projects. Each Mn/DOT district would submit a list of priority projects for acceleration.

Commissioner Bud Comstock presented updated plans for the Pennington County Human Services parking lot that will be constructed in 2005. The lot's dimensions are 140 feet east-west by 100 feet north-south. Twenty-nine spaces, including one van and one accessible space will be available for parking. The board will request that a variance be granted that will allow for a 15-foot buffer strip on the north part of the lot. The plans also call for a 15-foot buffer strip on the south end of the lot and 30 feet in the middle for maneuvering of vehicles.

Jan Kaspari and Brian Malone met with the board to discuss building setbacks on rivers within the county. Kaspari said that setbacks are measured from the ordinary high water line. Kaspari, who currently works for both Marshall and Pennington counties, will work only for Marshall County next year. She asked to meet with the board so that in the future there will be a consistent measurement.

Kaspari said that depending on interpretation, the county's ordinance can be more restrictive than the state standard. Discrepancies include whether to measure from the regular high water mark or the top of the bluff.

No action was taken on defining ordinary highwater line. The board asked Brian Malone of Pennington County SWCD to meet with DNR officials to determine an official definition.

Other items

• The board approved the Human Service Committee's consent agenda.

• The board approved 3.2 liquor licenses for Carpenter's Corner, Kruse Inn and DW's

• County Auditor Ken Olson reported that Deb Zak had dropped off nutritionalist board information requesting county support. The board approved providing in-kind support through the use of Extension office space.

• The board approved a motion that will allow Olson to transfer ditch funds to the Highway department.

• The board approved an additional motion to allow Olson to transfer funds to bring ditch funds into balance.

• Minutes from the Nov. 23 Pennington County Board meeting were approved.

• The board authorized county employees to receive flu shots that will be covered by the county.

The Pennington County Board of Commissioners held an organizational meeting on Jan. 4, 2005. The next meeting of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners will be Jan. 25.

lots, as well as other areas.

However, city employees will first remove snow from sidewalks near city-owned buildings, Mayor Dale Wennberg said.

The council approved a 2004-05 contract with Management, Administrative, Professional and Supervisory (MAPS) employees.

The estimated cost of the two-year package is $59,233 or a 6.6 percent increase, said City Administrator Jodie Torkelson. She noted the percentage increase is similar to contract increases for non-union and Teamsters Union employees.

The increases would occur Jan. 1 and July 1. Another increase would be retroactive from Jan. 1, 2004.

Other contract issues for the 15 MAPS employees pertained to life insurance and the vacation schedule.

The council approved a 2004-05 Memorandum of Understanding with the city administrator and finance director.

The two-year package's estimated cost is $8,796 or a 6.57 percent increase, said Torkelson, who noted the memorandum is similar to the MAPS contract.

The increases would occur Jan. 1 and July 1. Another increase would be retroactive from Jan. 1, 2004.

City Council approved a preliminary plat for the Valley Home addition. Valley Home Corporation plans for the property's zoning to remain General Residential (R-2), according to information provided to the council.

The council approved a preliminary plat for Meadowlark Estates Second Addition. Midwest Minnesota Community Development Corporation plans to ask for a zoning change to General Residential (R-2) for that area near Sherwood Avenue and Cartway Drive. The area is currently zoned Multi-Family Residential District (R-4).

The next council meeting is scheduled Jan. 11 at 5 p.m. at City Hall.

Palvi Young, a resident of Thief River Falls and native of Kuhmoinen, Finland, was arguably the most dedicated supporter of Team Finland during Finland's 5-4 victory over Sweden on Wednesday. Z was able to comply, asking the Finnish coaches for one more.

Young was able to get Finnish players to autograph sticks and posters, all the while telling bystanders that this team would win gold.

"We are a hockey country, Finland is hockey country, major hockey country," Young said.

Young later modified her statement, saying that the 2005 version of Team Finland is young. Most of the players will be back next year and many of them will be eligible to return the following year as well. She predicts gold for the 2007 team.

Young said Team Finland's discipline is what ultimately helped it come from behind to defeat Sweden.

"None of them misbehave ever," Young said. "They have such discipline, they never get in trouble anywhere they travel."

Young said the come from behind victory is typical of Finland fighting to the end. She said that Finland had many fights against Russia, each time being persistent and not giving in. She said Finland is the only country bordering Russia who kept its independence after World War II.

That same persistence can also be seen on the ice.

"Even if they are losing, they play hard until the very end," Young said about Team Finland.

Young shares the same persistence as her countrymen, having operated Scandia House for the last seven years. It took some of the Finnish persistence and optimism for Young to open the store after teaching German at Lincoln High School for a number of years. She said the key to success for that business is to sell a variety of things, not just coffee.

"It hasn't been the easiest thing to open up a coffee house in a small town," Young said. "All the other coffee houses went under."

Swedes meet American Swedes

by Laurel Johnson

Though few in numbers, it was literally a meeting of a lifetime. With the World Junior Hockey Tournament in town, we were hoping, but not holding our breath, that we might be able to meet with the Swedish Hockey Team.

Our wish came true Wednesday afternoon in a meeting room at Seven Clans Casino. A handful of Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society members were able to come for this last-minute, informal get-together. We'd brought a large map of Sweden with us, and some of the Team Sweden teenagers pointed out on the map where their homes are. My brother, Lyndon Johnson, shared informally about the Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society (ASHS) and life in northwestern Minnesota. ASHS President June Mosberg of Red Lake Falls presented the coaches with buttons from the ASHS. I had the honor of giving all the Swedes and Americans present, with Thief River Falls lapel pins as a gift from the Chamber of Commerce and city.

One thing the team had done in preparation for coming to America was to visit a museum in Växjö, Sweden, to give them some perspective of what life was like for their fellow countrymen and women who left their homeland for America in the late 1800s through the early 1900s. And here, 100 years later, they were meeting American Swedes, some of whom may have been their neighbors had our ancestors stayed in Sweden.

It's not rare for Swedes to visit relatives in Minnesota, but here were some Swedes who had no connection to "us" and would possibly never come to our small corner of the world were it not for the World Junior Hockey Championship games.

After taking some group pictures, there was a little time to talk in small groups or individually with the young men whom we found to be as interested in learning about us as we were them. I was left with a very positive impression of these young, articulate, engaging hockey players and their coaches.

Best wishes to all the teams competing for the Gold. The Swedish team already has three golden crowns...on their jerseys, and they have every intension of going for the medals to match. Game on!

Hey, how come it's so cold?

Grace Mayta of Thief River Falls was concerned enough about her electric heat being turned off that she recently decided to write the local newspaper. Mayta is not alone. A growing number of area residents on dual-heat systems are wondering why their electricity has been turned off so much.

In her letter, Mayta wrote: "Could someone from the City of Thief River Falls explain what is happening to the dual heat system set up by the city? When we joined, we were informed that the electric heat would never be off for more than four hours at a time. Last year, the electric heat was off all day many times, and we seem to be going the same direction this year. Isn't there enough electricity to keep the system running the way it should? and, is this year going to be a repeat of last year with the electric heat off all day as it has been today? Of course, we have a back-up system but it isn't as comfortable as the electric heat.

"I have also talked to people living in other parts of town and find that their electric heat has not been off at all. What is going on here?"

Brrr!

Winter means heavy electrical loads in TRF are being managed

Minnkota will be exerting more control over the city's electrical load management than the city in the future. Monday, Utilities Director Arlo Rude announced that the city of Thief River Falls is in the process of replacing the city system with controls that operate directly from the Minnkota system. Another change is taking place, too. Customers with four-hour control systems will be switched to the uncontrolled rate. Only loads that are able to be off for an indefinite period of time will be controlled and receive the load control rate.

Rude said that the amount of hours on load management probably won't change very much. Thief River Falls has been following the lead of Minnkota since 1979. When they exercised load management, he said, the city utilized load management. This change, he said, is only expected to eliminate another level of control.

He also noted that the city has been increasing the rate for four-hour load control systems for years, and customers will see very little change.

Rude released the following statement:

"The city of Thief River Falls originated its load management in 1979 with the purchase of a load management system. The city has been operating the system to reduce the total demand for the power purchased and thereby save on the cost of purchased power. This control has been exercised in conjunction with the Minnkota Power Cooperative Inc. load management system.

"In 1981, the city, as a member of the Northern Municipal Power Agency (NMPA), started to purchase all power from NMPA. NMPA owns 30 percent of a power plant in North Dakota. Minnkota Power Cooperative and NMPA have contracted to form a joint system for the transmission of power to the cities that are members of NMPA. The city has a contract to purchase power from the joint system for the next 30 years. As part of the joint system, the Minnkota load management system is used to control loads to reduce demand, and the city load management system operates when load control is needed by the joint system.

"At present, customers in the city of Thief River Falls have control that are operated by the city system or by the Minnkota system. The city is in the process of replacing the city system with controls that operate directly from the Minnkota system. The city system is no longer supported by the original manufacturer, and parts are difficult to replace.

"When control was started in 1979, the city was a winter-peaking system with the highest amount of load occurring during the winter. Load control during these peak periods generally lasted three to four hours. The joint system of Minnkota and NMPA had generation capacity to supply power when the peak

County Board organizes

Naplin selected as new chairman

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

The Pennington County Board of Commissioners held its state mandated organizational meeting on Jan. 4. Commissioners Don Jensen and Oliver "Skip" Swanson were sworn into office by Pennington County Auditor Ken Olson, for their fifth and sixth terms respectively.

Olson then called for nominations for chairman. Commissioner Charles Naplin was nominated by Jensen, seconded by Swanson, who moved that nominations cease, A unanimous ballot was cast for Naplin to serve as chairman for 2005.

Naplin then called for nominations for vice chairman. Commissioner Bob Carlson nominated Commissioner Arden "Bud" Comstock as vice chairman, seconded by Swanson who moved that nominations cease. A unanimous ballot was cast for Comstock to serve as vice chairman.

The board approved the dates for regular meetings being the second Tuesday of each month beginning at 10 a.m., and the fourth Tuesday at 5 p.m. Certain circumstances will dictate changes in the dates and times of County Board meetings such as the first meeting in January.

Clarification

In last week's edition of the Times it was stated that a meeting was held between Red Lake Nation, the State of Minnesota and Pennington County, discussing the installation of traffic lights at the intersection of US Highway 59 and CSAH 3. The traffic lights referred to are for illuminating the intersection, not controlling traffic.

Board rejects all motor grader bids. Three bids were received by the board and opened at the Dec. 14 county board meeting. The mean average bid amount of $143,264 was over the county's budgeted amount of $120,000. The lowest bid was submitted by Sweeney Bros. at $132,232.53 for a Volvo G720B. All three bids included trade-in value ranging between $36,000 and $43,475.

Swanson made the motion that the board reject all bids, while keeping options open for a low-hour machine, which is what the Highway Department was

New garbage collection system in county

A Curbtender is already being used for trash collection in some parts of Pennington County. Response from most customers has been positive, with the only complaints pertaining to a lack of space in the portable garbage tubs.

Les's Sanitation starts new semi-automated collection system

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Last month, Les's Sanitation began using a garbage truck with a mechanical boom and clamp to collect garbage from county residents. Close to half of Pennington County's residents have been issued a portable trash tub to use in place of garbage bags and early reports are mostly positive.

"I think its a good move for us," Les's Sanitation president and owner Steve Nordhagen said. Nordhagen added that this is the direction solid waste collection is heading. "People need to be educated. It's not like it used to be where you can throw everything in a big can and it goes away."

When switching, residents are able to choose between a 62- or 96-gallon tub to be used for solid waste storage and disposal. The tubs are essentially garbage cans with wheels, that can easily be picked up and emptied using a garbage truck called a Curbtender.

The Curbtender has two steering wheels, so it can be drived from either side, but operators generally drive from the right side, placing them closer to garbage tubs. An arm, with pinchers, extends from the side of the truck that can pick up either size tub and dump its contents.

Nordhagen explained that the decision was made because all of Les's Sanitation's customers were required by state law to purchase bags from Les's Sanitation. The time had come for Les's Sanitation to purchase new bags for distribution and it was an ideal time to upgrade to tubs, which are easier to use in volume based garbage collection.

"We'll know exactly how many

TRF Christmas Eve Dinner serves 325

The Thief River Falls Community Christmas Dinner served about 325 people, according to event Co-Chairperson Tim Loeffler. That number was slightly down from 2003 when 350 to 375 people were served the meal.

"It might have been because of the time change, the place change, the hockey tournament," Loeffler said about the decreased number of people being served.

For more than 20 years, Thief River Falls has provided the community dinner. Supported by freewill offerings and donations, it is open to anyone in the community. Residents can either attend the dinner or have the meals delivered to them.

The dinner was held at St. Bernard's Catholic Church, a location change from previous years. The dinner was also scheduled earlier — at noon instead of in the evening.

"It went real smooth," said Loeffler, who noted the time change meant that more volunteers were able to help with the dinner than in 2003. He added that St. Bernard's was easily accessible and provided enough space for the dinner.

In the past, the dinner was held at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. Organizers have not yet met to determine where or what time the Christmas dinner will be held in 2005.

"I'm sure it will be held next year, where we don't know," Loeffler said.

Pennington County commissioners Oliver "Skip" Swanson and Donald Jensen were sworn into office by County Auditor Ken Olson prior to the start of the Jan. 4 Pennington County Board meeting. Swanson is beginning his sixth term as a commissioner, while Jensen is beginning his fifth.

Award-winning war correspondent to speak at BSU

Chris Hedges, an award-winning war correspondent with nearly 20 years of experience covering conflicts around the world, will present a lecture on war reporting and ethics at 7 p.m. Jan. 25 at Bemidji State University (BSU).

The program, which is the second annual Don and Gladys McDonald Philosophy Lecture in Applied Ethics, will be held in room 100 at Hagg-Sauer Hall and is open to the public at no charge.

A reporter for the New York Times, Hedges covered crises in many conflict-ridden locations, including El Salvador, Nicaragua, Algeria, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, Iraq, Sarajevo and Kosovo. He was captured and later released by the Iraqi Republican Guard during the Persian Gulf War, fired upon by snipers in the Middle East and Bosnia, strafed by MIGs, and bombarded by heavy artillery.

Hedges was a member of the New York Times team that won the 2002 Pulitzer Prize for Explanatory Reporting for the paper's coverage of global terrorism. He also received the 2002 Amnesty International Global Award for Human Rights Journalism.

His experiences created a personal relationship with war that eventually led him to author the book "War is a Force That Gives us Meaning," which was a finalist for the National Book Critic's Circle Award.

Hedges noted he is not a pacifist, with wars justifiable at some juncture but tragic at all times. He cited the first Persian Gulf War as well as interventions in Bosnia and Kosovo as necessary in today's world.

"But I also understand what war can do, especially when you fall into the dark intoxication that war brings: That process of dehumanizing the other, that ecstatic euphoria of wartime, that use of patriotism as a form of self-glorification, that worshiping of the capacity to inflict violence – especially in a society that possesses a military as advanced as ours," he said once in an interview.

Hedges began writing his book on war after leaving Kosovo and while he was at Harvard on a Nieman Fellowship during 1998-99. Then 9/11 and a stunning perception hit.

"I woke up and realized in New York that we'd all become Serbs," he remembered. "That all of that flag-waving, all of that jingoism, that mass suppression of individual conscience which I had seen in countries in war around the globe, was now part of my own society, part of where I lived. And it frightened me," he said.

Prior to beginning his career in journalism, he received a bachelor's degree in English literature from Colgate University and a master of divinity degree from Harvard. Hedges has taught at Columbia and Princeton universities. He has also been interviewed on many national news programs, including "CBS Sunday Morning" and National Public Radio's "Talk of the Nation."

His second book, "Losing Moses on the Freeway: America's Broken Covenant with the Ten Commandments," will be published in June.

His appearance on the BSU campus is part of the McDonald Philosophy Lecture Series that brings nationally and internationally active philosophers to the BSU campus to discuss issues in applied ethics. The series was established by Dr. Judy McDonald, dean emerita of the College of Arts and Letters, and named after her parents.

More information is available by contacting the Philosophy Department at (218) 755-2880 or Hagg-Sauer Hall, BSU, 1500 Birchmont Dr., Bemidji, MN 56601-2699.

Swenson House Recital Series continues Jan. 13

The Swenson House Recital Series continues into the new year with the third performance slated for 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 13 at the Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) Swenson House, located at 1020 Centennial Dr., Thief River Falls. Admission is freewill, and light refreshments will follow the performances.

The recital is comprised of NCTC students, faculty and alumni. Performers include Jane Anderson, vocalist and faculty member; Phyllis Dalager, accompanist and alumnus; Heidi Hoks, vocalist and alumnus; Philip Hoks, vocalist and current student; Brenda Hanson-Williams, pianist and alumnus; Vanessa Martell, vocalist and faculty member; and Catherine Hagen, accompanist and faculty member.

The evening is not just for entertainment, but also for the promotion of the NCTC Music Department and NCTC Foundation. Donations raised will go to NCTC music scholarships. Currently, there are three music scholarships offered through NCTC in the spring each year for acknowledgement of music ensemble participation and musical ability: Vocal Performance ($50), Instrumental Performance ($50), and the NCTC Music Scholarship ($100). The hope is to raise enough money to make these self-sustaining scholarships and to offer them before the school year begins to assist in recruiting new students to the NCTC Music Department.

The final performance in the Swenson House Recital Series is scheduled for May 5.

2005 tax filing seasons begins

Last week, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) opened the 2005 tax filing season, highlighted by expanded electronic services, easier tax filing rules and new tax law changes. The IRS also expects to surpass a milestone in the e-file program by the April 15 filing deadline.

The IRS mailed almost 29.5 million tax packages to Americans last week, but, increasingly, taxpayers are swapping their pencils for their mice.

The IRS projects the number of individual taxpayers filing their taxes electronically will surpass 50 percent for the first time. More than half of the expected 133 million individual tax returns will be filed through IRS e-file in 2005. Last year, almost 62 million Americans used e-file.

"We expect many Minnesotans will continue to file their taxes electronically," said Eric Erickson, IRS spokesperson in Atlanta. "Many Minnesotans e-file because it is fast, secure and reliable. Taxpayers who e-file will get their refunds in half the time."

Taxpayers who use IRS e-file have a higher satisfaction rating than those who still use paper returns, according to the American Customer Survey Index, which rates private and public sector service industries.

The IRS is taking steps in several areas to help taxpayers. Many of these features can be found on www.irs.gov, including:

- Added Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) help. The EITC Assistant, available in English and Spanish, will allow taxpayers to type in information and follow directions to determine if they are eligible for the EITC.
- Expanded 1040 Central. Taxpayers again will find a one-stop shop for their tax return needs by visiting 1040 Central.
- "Where's My Refund?" – This function allows taxpayers to answer the most frequent question they pose during the tax year.
- Simpler forms for more taxpayers. The income limits for using the form 1040EZ and Form 1040A increase, meaning more people can file using these forms.
- Simpler forms for the self-employed. The limit on business expenses for self-employed individuals using Schedule C-EZ also increases, allowing an additional 500,000 small business owners and self-employed taxpayers to use the simpler version of the expense form.

Recent tax law changes

In addition, there are recent tax law changes that affect tax returns filed in 2005 for the 2004 tax year.

One of the changes involves the new sales tax deduction. Taxpayers who itemize deductions will have choices of claiming state and local tax deductions for either sales or income taxes on their 2004 and 2005 returns. Optional tables are available for determining the deduction amount in Publication 600, which can be found on www.irs.gov.

Other tax law changes affect such areas as charitable donations, child tax credit and combat pay issues. More information is available online.

The IRS also reminds taxpayers to claim all the credits, deductions and other tax benefits to which they are legally entitled. The IRS also urges taxpayers to be on the lookout for tax schemes and scams that can cause costly problems for unsuspecting taxpayers. When in doubt, ask the IRS or a reputable tax professional for help.

TRF blood drive set for Jan. 19, 20

The Thief River Falls Women of Today (WOT) are joining with United Blood Services (UBS) to conduct a community blood drive in Thief River Falls. The blood drive is set for 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 19 and 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 20 at the Eagles Club.

Blood and blood products are used by people suffering from cancer, heart disease, severe anemia, and bone and joint disorders. It is also needed by those injured in automobile and other accidents. Nationally, about four million ill and injured patients need blood transfusions each year.

"Start off the new year with a good deed and donate blood!" said Lisa Moellenkamp, UBS donor recruitment representative.

UBS and WOT encourage anyone who is interested in becoming a blood donor to call Sarah Engelsrud at 683-3523 for more information or to schedule an appointment for Thief River Falls' upcoming blood drive.

Minnesota state park customers can begin reserving camp sites

Minnesota state park customers, who, in the past had wished they could reserve a particular site in their favorite state park campground, will see that wish come true in the new year.

Site-specific reservations are available for sites in state park campgrounds, group camps, horse camps and lodging facilities. Park campground site maps and brief site descriptions are available on the individual state park pages and state parks reservation information on the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us under the state parks button.

"Beginning Jan. 3, the public will be able to choose a specific site when they make their overnight camping and lodging reservations in Minnesota state parks," said Courtland Nelson, director for the DNR's Division of Parks and Recreation. "We are happy to provide this new service to better serve the public. The ability to reserve a specific campsite was a feature state park customers have requested and, on Jan. 3, our customers will be able to do that by phone or online."

"With this new feature," said Nelson, "customers will be able to find out if their favorite campsite is among those that can be reserved in advance, check when the site is available and reserve it for their getaway."

Other improvements made to the system include shortening the lead-time for making last minute camping and lodging reservations. Customers now will be able to make reservations a minimum of two days ahead of the arrival date if payment is made by credit card. If payment were made by check or money order, the shortest lead-time for making reservations is 10 days in advance. Camping reservations still can be made as far in advance as 90 days ahead of arrival.

In order to streamline the registration process at the park, the non-refundable reservation fee of $8.50 and camping fees for the full length of the stay are due at the time the camping reservation is made. This also applies to camper cabin rental that will require the reservation fee of $8.50 and the fees for the full length of stay be paid when the reservation is made. With a pre-paid reservation, customers who arrive at the park when the park office isn't open can proceed directly to the specific campsite or camper cabin they have reserved.

Lodging and group camp reservations are accepted up to a year in advance. For lodging, one night's lodging fee is due when the reservation is made. The $8.50 non-refundable reservation fee is included in the deposit. Any remaining balance due will be paid upon arrival at the park. For group camps, a deposit of one night's camping and the $8.50 reservation fee must be paid when the reservation is made. Both these group camp fees are non-refundable.

Reservations can be made online at www.stayatmnparks.com or by calling 1-866-857-2757 toll free in the United States and Canada. The TDD toll free number is 1-866-290-2267 and the international number is 1-605-718-3030. Operators are on duty seven days a week from 7 a.m. – 10 p.m., CST. Some campsites in each state park will continue to be kept available on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information or a free brochure that includes reservation information and fees, contact the DNR Information Center at 1-888-646-6367, or visit the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us and click on the state park button.

World Junior gold medal game draws viewers

TSN's live coverage of the Canada vs. Russia gold medal game from the 2005 IIHF World Junior Hockey Championship attracted a national average minute audience of 3.2 million viewers, according to Nielsen Media Research. This makes it the second most-watched program in TSN's 20-year history. Audience levels peaked at 3.8 million viewers during the final 30 minutes of Canada's 6-1 victory.

TSN's coverage of Team Canada's six games averaged a record-setting 1.6 million viewers, making it the most successful World Junior tournament in TSN history. This six-game average surpasses the previous high from Team Canada's six games at the 2003 tournament in Halifax, which averaged 1.5 million viewers.

TSN scored record-breaking ratings throughout this year's World Junior tournament covering several games.

RDS's live coverage of the gold medal game attracted a national average minute audience of 348,000 viewers.

TSN and RDS are the official broadcasters of Hockey Canada at both international and domestic hockey events.

Modern technology is keeping us apart

One striking feature of modern life is the loneliness many people seem to experience even while in a crowd - even while they are busier than ever and more connected than ever by electronic devices.

In fact, the myriad gadgets that connect people only seem to make loneliness worse. One person may have called today, but 10 others did not. Three people e-mailed today, but 20 other people were silent.

The disappointment of not hearing from somebody, anybody, used to be limited to the daily trip to the mailbox. Now, you can check your e-mail and be disappointed as many times per day as you wish.

A letter in the mailbox used to make a person's entire day. Nowadays, if you got a nice e-mail in the morning, the pleasure of it wears off by noon when you check again only to find nothing but junk.

Instant communication disappoints in other ways. Absence makes the heart grow fonder, the saying goes, but when you are in constant contact, irritation is the most likely result.

If people actually wrote their own e-mail notes, that would be fine, but the frequent forwarding of unoriginal jokes, political rants, chain mail, tear-jerking tales, or warnings about child-stealing scams can quickly erode one's respect for the discretion of the sender.

Modern gadgets not only make people more lonely, but they take away opportunities for solitude. Solitude is loneliness made good, the beneficent calm which arises when one is deliberately and completely out of touch with the world.

Solitude is rare these days, possibly because people aren't trained to enjoy it. They're too busy scrambling to ease their loneliness by being in constant contact with others. In fact, most people seem to find the prospect of solitude terrifying.

I have a theory that humans are genetically programmed to exist in self-sufficient nomadic clans. We are at our best when relying on each other, not just for companionship and gossip, but for survival. We feel most engaged in our life's purpose when our quest for survival is a daily affair for our entire clan, not just ourselves.

The easy sense of community which existed when our area was being settled arose because times were tough and people had to lean on each other on a daily basis.

Now we are prosperous, at least in comparison with the other 98 percent of the world. But one price we pay for our prosperity is a form of loneliness that can't be cured even by the presence of others.

There is no event which stirs more nostalgia in old-timers than threshing bees. I assume threshing was hard work, but all that the old-timers seem to remember is the big meals and the fun of a neighborhood gathering.

The invention of combines made threshing bees obsolete. Just as combines eliminated the need for a neighborhood gathering, most new developments in technology have made us more self-sufficient. It takes a natural disaster for us to experience the beneficial effects of working together in order to survive.

Perhaps the popularity of hunting comes from the fact that killing wild animals is a throwback to a time when we gathered food as a group. Many hunters say they don't care to shoot deer, but they sure enjoy getting out there with the clan and acting neanderthal.

Of course, almost nobody hopes for hard times or a return to gathering berries for breakfast. Yet, by making us self-sufficient, prosperity and technology have robbed us of the satisfying camaraderie of necessary neighborliness.

One bit of technology we could do without, however, is the television. It has no redeeming value. It keeps people from conversing. It keeps people from getting together by permitting them to spend evenings inert and alone.

What's worse, television programming seems devoted to raising people's suspicion of the outside world to a fever pitch. Don't go out, you might get mugged, have your identity stolen, lose your children, or get food poisoning.

Nobody's likely to give up the benefits of prosperity. By turning off the television, however, we might gain back a little of what we have lost.

Resolve to nothing

Warning: This is not a test. As we wholeheartedly dive into another new year, many a thoughtful idealist will fashion an itch in their cerebral cortex that will trickle down the spine, deftly maneuvering around slightly overused internal organs to plunge into the pit of their Starbucks' mocha latte-crowded stomachs. The inhibition of behavior, unfulfilled with last year's feeble attempt at living, will be reenacted by some. An impulsive effort will be exhausted at a moment's notice.

May I have your attention: This is not a test.

This, ladies and gentlemen, is the fine art of creating a New Year's resolution. Most of these assertions will never even be put into action. Some will be violently hurled out of the gut along with the New Year's Eve whiskey cokes to lie in a Christmas tree-colored heap upon a bathroom floor. Others will fester inside the abdomen. Rotting away the digestive tract. Mourning the loss of a perfectly good life. Making a mess of the host and leaving the clean-up to room service.

This is not a test.

In my personal opinion, life should not be measured in achievements and goals. People merely display themselves as martyrs for disappointment Instead of looking at the glass as half-empty or half-full; smash it against the pavement; then there will be an ocean. Life should not be measured in quantity, but only in quality.

I repeat, this is not a test.

Don't panic. We as individuals are to not be held responsible for this mindless suffering and discontent. Society as a whole has completely misconstrued the entire concept of what people should think about themselves. Instead of being content with who we are, we are led to believe that every time the earth makes one revolution around the gigantic ball of gas we call the sun, we should find one or more things that we don't like about ourselves and try to change them. If we don't, we will be cast into the outside realms of mediocrity. Or we will never become movie stars or supermodels. We just plain won't fit in without making a resolution. We can show up to the party and slip the bouncer a crisp Washington, but, without those resolutions, our names will never be put on the list.

So, collect what's left of your sanity and run for the hills. Sweep it up off the floor and empty the contents of the dustpan into a Zip-Lock bag. Don't stop until your legs burn, your fingers twitch, and your lungs are ready to bleed, begging to explode. Flail like a dirty mop all the way there.

Warning: This is not a test.

The stupid things lurking in our pasts

All of us have done a "dumb" thing sometime in our lives; perhaps more than once. I'm thinking of something you did that when it was over, you said, "Cheesh, I can't believe I did that!" I suspect that many of us are not willing to admit to or willing to share such an experience with others. I spoke to quite a number of friends and acquaintances before I found a couple who willingly admitted to doing something stupid in their past and were willing to share it. Here are some accounts of their activities. It's interesting to note the accounts all involve young men and cars.

I spoke to an old friend, Vern Eide of Sioux Falls, S.D., who related a dumb, if not laughable, incident that took place when he was a senior at Lincoln High School. One day, Eide's buddy, Homer Matheson, asked his mother if he could use the family car. She was agreeable to that but specifically told Matheson he was not to take the car out of town.

Well, boys don't always listen to their parents, so Eide and Matheson took the car and before long they were headed down Highway 59 to Plummer. At Plummer, they stopped at a local watering hole, probably to have a bottle of pop. It was then they realized they had put 18 or so miles on the car and would add the same mileage to the odometer by the time they got back to Thief River. How would they explain those 40 or so miles on the odometer if they hadn't left town?

On the vehicles in those days, you would unwind the odometer when you backed up, so they decided they would back off those miles on the odometer by driving in reverse all the way back to Thief River! They did just that. Back in those early 1940s, the traffic was not near as heavy as it is today, so that helped. To avoid any problems as they proceeded backward down the highway, they would pull off on the shoulder when they saw a car approaching. It took them quite a while to get home in reverse gear, but they made it. Can you imagine what a passing motorist must have thought when he or she came upon this car driving backwards?

In my own case, I think an incident that took place in Duluth over 60 years ago is a classic dumb thing, perhaps bordering on stupid. Three friends and I were in Duluth after graduating from high school. We were all enrolled in a war production training school that provided the students with a skill necessary to get a job in war production to help in the war effort. Courses of study included mechanical drafting, electrical, welding and so on. We stayed at the West End YMCA. One of our buddies, Dennis Urdahl, owned a car, which we used to get around town. I believe it was of 1934 or 1935 vintage.

The lug nuts on one of the front wheels were stripped, so we had to be very careful how they were tightened in order for them to firm up and stay on. Well, we being indestructible youth, or so we thought, we tooled around the city regularly without regards to the precarious situation with the front wheel.

Anyone who is familiar with Duluth knows about the steep declines on the east and west avenues. One day, we were driving down one of the avenues about three blocks up from Superior Street. We had slowed for an intersection, intending to turn right. Just as we came to the corner, the front wheel came off. The wheel turned the corner and wobbled for a few yards before flopping on its side. I don't recall how we went about getting the wheel back on so that we could proceed to the next destination.

It wasn't until years later when thinking back on that incident that I realized what might have happened had that wheel gone straight ahead down the steep decline of the next two or three blocks. That wheel could have picked up a speed of 25 miles per hour or more. It could have broadsided a car going through the intersection; it could have wiped out a pedestrian crossing the street or perhaps veered off into the front of a store building, causing all kinds of destruction. I cringe when I think of how lucky we were that nothing serious came out of that incident. I would classify that episode as dumb, if not inexcusable and irresponsible.

At about that same time, there were three lads in Thief River who decided to pool their resources to buy a car. These miscreants, whose names I will not divulge since they were guilty of some felonious activities, bought a late 1930s model Chevrolet. This car was seen a great deal around town and got to be known as the ABC car. Those letters were the first letters of each of their last names.

One recurring problem was that their gas tank was often running on empty. It was World War II, and gas was rationed, so vehicle owners were allowed just a few gallons per week. If you used up your ration, your vehicle sat until you got your next gas allotment unless you could find a way to talk somebody out of a few extra gallons.

The ABC boys found a way to augment their weekly ration of gasoline. The car they owned had a trunk mounted on the outside above the rear bumper. In that trunk, they carried a five-gallon gas can and siphon hose. When their gas supply was running low, they did what they felt they had to do. Under the dark of night, they would drive down an alley, find a car parked in a driveway and siphon off a few gallons of precious petroleum. Apparently the ABC boys believed in sharing resources. In this case, it was sharing someone else's gasoline. This activity could be called dumb, but it could also be called devious.

PARENTING TIPS

Conflict and Anger

Both conflict and anger are inevitable in family life. A family is, among other things, a collection of individuals, each unique, whose ideas and behaviors will be slightly or greatly different from one to another. Even your child has his/her own unique personality. Therefore conflict will be part of every family. Our task is to learn how to deal with it and to teach our children how to deal with it. Unfortunately, many of us have a tendency to try to avoid conflict. Family conflict seems to give us all a case of fear, rather than realistically looking at what might happen. Relationships are more resilient than we often give them credit for.

In reality, careful confrontation is far more respectful than avoidance of conflict. It is more respectful to share opinions and feelings than to hide them. Studies of strong families show that openness in communication is an important factor. Keeping family members informed and up-to-date includes the sharing of irritations, differences and anger. In a word, conflict is part of healthy communication.

This does not mean that we allow family members to be disrespectful of one another. It does mean, however, that we have to learn how to share irritations, differences and anger without being disrespectful. And that may be easier said than done! The key to this is in the phrase "careful" or "caring" confrontation. It is an attitude recommended for all families!

(More on "careful confrontation" next week.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Be honest and talk about your feelings even with young children (at their level of understanding).

Farm Management Minute

Will higher interest rates affect you?

by Greg Kalinoski
Farm Business Management

Farmers are large borrowers and have enjoyed the low interest rates for the past few years. However, interest rates have edged upward, and the cost of money is higher than last year. While the majority of the producers focus on direct production costs of fuel, fertilizer, rent, etc; interest expense is often overlooked and can be a significant item for highly leveraged borrowers.

We have heard many times that interest rate increases have a multiplier affect. How does this actually affect farmers? Whenever more dollars are spent for interest expense, net farm income drops, thereby increasing the interest expense ratio. This, in turn, reduces net farm income. Other effects of higher interest rates will be increased interest costs paid per acre on operating, intermediate-term, and long-term loans or increased costs per livestock unit.

What does this mean to you? Producers with high debt to asset ratios who are subject to all variable or floating rates will be affected the most with higher interest rates. It is estimated from the latest statistics that the majority of agricultural liabilities are subject to variable rates. According to Dr. David Kohl, a well known professor of ag economics at Virginia Tech, a 1 percent increase in interest rates can equate up to a 6 percent decrease in net farm income.

Because higher interest rates will impact many producers in 2005, it is important to take the time to review your cash flow plans for the coming year. This will help you determine what effect interest has on your farming operation.

For more information, contact an instructor in your area by calling Northland Community and Technical College at 1-800-959-6282.

...The Hamster Surprise, Part II

(This is a continuation of the story of the year I gave my youngest son a hamster for Christmas. To our surprise, the hamster, Herman, had babies one morning, and I told my son he would have to sell them or give them away when they got bigger. Then...)

To make a long story short, the whole hamster thing backfired on me. As soon as they were weaned, we sold as many little hamsters to my son's second grade classmates as we could, but some of them grew up faster than we thought and other morning surprises happened.

Soon we were selling hamsters to the entire school, as well as advertising on the radio and in the paper. We learned to separate the boy babies from the girl babies as soon as we could figure out which was which, but mistakes were made and more morning Herman surprises appeared.

We became the major hamster sellers in town and people often came to us to buy two or three (I was so good at it by now that I never gave them a girl when I said it was a boy or vice versa). I kept special Cool Whip containers with punched out holes in the lids ready for giving away the hamsters. However, it wasn't long before I had four or five different hamster cages: one for the boys, one for the girls, and at least two others for the crabby hamsters, who needed to be in "time out" because they attacked everything they saw. Talk about a crash course in raising hamsters!

Some of the teachers at St. Bernard's Catholic School had taken hamsters for their classrooms, and we sometimes had to take them back - for various reasons - mostly because the school had hamster overload, I think. Sometimes the school kids would come and get a hamster, take it home and come back with it again that evening when their parents found out what they had done. My house was overrun with hamsters.

For a year or two, we had hamsters at our house. We would probably still have them if it weren't for the various things that happened. For one thing, I figured out how to tell the boys from the girls really early and that helped. It also helped that hamsters don't live very long.

And there were other things that helped to eradicate the hamster problem at our house, like mass hamster jailbreaks (those things are nearly impossible to find once they get out in the house - some of them were never found - never mind the cat and dog). I also found that the open sump pump in the basement was very attractive to hamsters, no matter how I tried to cover it up. And, since they were so small, it was possible for them to hide by the door until one child or another came in or went out and hamsters could sneak outside.

The worst thing that happened, and something I swear to you I never did on purpose, eliminated a whole cage full of hamsters. I often set the hamsters outside on a warm day so they could "take the air," so to speak. They loved going outside. I could clean their cages out there (carefully putting them into containers while I hosed out the cages, replaced the bedding and cleaned food and water dishes), then set the cages in the grass in the shade where they could nibble clover and such. As I said, they loved it.

But one day I forgot they were out there in the fresh air. Sun isn't good for hamsters. When the children came home from school, the hamsters were still outside. Sadly, they had gone to the hamster cage in the sky. The children have never let me forget it. But I swear to you, I didn't do it on purpose.

Needless to say, I can tell you there are many little hamster graves among the dog, cat, rabbit, fish and birds in our backyard "Pet Cemetery." I did like the little things, but don't even think about giving me one for my birthday, thank you very much!

Ardith Schuster, 86

Thief River Falls - Ardith Schuster, 86, died on Tuesday, January 4, 2005 at the Good Samaritan Center in Warren.

Funeral services were held on Friday, January 7 at Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, with Rev. Nancy Jewell officiating. Casket bearers included Richard Larson, Danny Larson, Mike Larson, Munro Poole, Jason Schuster and Gene Kauppila. Interment will be held at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls.

Ardith Eleanor Larson was born October 4, 1918, in Thief River Falls, the daughter of Andrew and Mary (Brekke) Larson. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Faith. She moved with her parents to Crookston, where she lived and graduated from Central High School in Crookston in 1937.

Local couple attends CHS Leader Institute

Todd and Cortney Christensen of Thief River Falls, recently attended the CHS (formerly Cenex Harvest States Cooperative) New Leader Institute in Minneapolis to learn how their active involvement in their cooperative and community can help strengthen their cooperative and community, and position them to add value from producer to consumer each day.

The Christensens represented Northwest grain, St. Hilaire, at the new CHS New Leader Institute, held in conjunction with the regional cooperative's meeting, which carried the theme "Resources." The Christensens were among nearly 100 participants from 13 states who attended the four-day institute. The program's goal is building skills in individuals who show promise as future leaders in their rural communities and cooperatives.

During Institute workshop sessions, participants heard from three leading authorities on agriculture and cooperatives. Presenters included Mark Mayfield, former National FFA president, who discussed leadership in the cooperative and community. Dr. Barry Flinchbaugh, Kansas State University, reviewed leadership roles in global marketplace. In addition, Jolene Brown, certified speaking professional, shared the mindset necessary to thrive in a world full of change and explored the relationship between laughter and business.

The Institute featured a special evening with the CHS Board of Directors and management. The Institute also included participation in the two-day CHS Annual Meeting.

New Leader Institute participants also had the opportunity to attend local workshops, including:

- "The Top Ten Stupid Things Families Do to Break Up Their Business." Jolene Brown provided insight and practical ideas to improve farm family communications and prevent many of the daily aggravations and farm family catastrophes.
- "Marketing Update 2005." Staff from the cooperative's Country Hedging subsidiary provided a market outlook for grain, oilseed and energy for 2005.
- CHS Resource Center Mini-Sessions. Eight "how-to" mini-sessions, including: Building a winning organization; Partnering with a PEO; Grow begins with propane; All adjuvants are NOT created equal; It sounds so simple! Moving commodities from here to there; Making lubricants a lucrative business; and Managing crop nutrients supply and risk.

During annual meeting sessions, participants heard updates on the regional cooperative's activities, and learned how CHS is positioned financially and strategically to add value from producer to consumer as a grain-based agricultural foods company. Participants also heard from Rulon Gardner, a 2000 and 2004 Olympic medalist in wrestling, who shared his personal challenges in the moving presentation, "Never give up, never stop trying."

CHS Inc. (www.chsinc.com) is a diversified energy, grains and foods company committed to providing the essential resources that enrich lives.

Snowmobile greats inducted into Hall of Fame

Dave and Durmont Wahl of Greenbush will be inducted into the Snowmobile Hall of Fame in St. Germain, Wis., on Jan. 13.

The Wahls will be among four luminaries from the sport of snowmobiling at its annual Induction Banquet in Eagle River, Wis., on the evening of Jan 13, 2005. The four individuals include the Wahl brothers from Greenbush, Ted Otto, and Myron Herrick.

Dave Wahl

Dave Wahl, the youngest member of the Greenbush family, got involved in the sport from its earliest days. Wahl got his first taste of racing snowmobiles competing on the family's 340cc Arctic Cat Panther in the early 1970s. After a brief run at cross-country racing, riding a John Deere 295S, Dave found his true calling in oval racing campaigning on his older brother Dennis' 1973 EXT 340, several Arctic Cat factor 250s and 440Z racers, before branching off into his highly successful series of racing specials.

Establishing what would be long-lasting ties to Arctic Cat, Dave began his sled building career in the factory race shop where he created an IFS special that scored a Super Mod 440 win in its debut outing at the Sno Pro opener in 1978. Ready with another new sled in 1979-80, Dave qualified for the World's Championship for the first time. Innovation was always part of the game for Wahl. His 1981 Special finished second at the derby in a season that ended with the young designer/driver in the top 20.

Taking the number 74 that would thereafter be associated with the Wahl family, Dave and brother Durmont established Wahl Brothers Racing in 1981, beginning a dynasty that would produce hundreds of custom fabricated race sleds and a record number of competition titles including three World Championships, several high-point titles and even a win at the Derby in 1998 by his nephew, Terry. Oval racing's most successful driver and sled builder, Dave Wahl retired from racing in 2000 to contribute to the sport as part of Wahl Brothers Racing.

Durmont Wahl

Influences come from many places in a person's life, but few find a more perfect match with their opportunities than Durmont Wahl. Part of a Greenbush family heavily influenced by the proximity of the Arctic Cat and Polaris snowmobile factories, Wahl grew up with welding and tools, design and fabrication. In the early 1960s, Durmont was a young man racing the family sleds and fabricating parts for early Arctic Cat suspensions before being offered a spot as a fabricator and tuner on the first Arctic Cat factory racing team in 1970 by the legendary Dave Thompson.

Making the most of this opportunity, Wahl became a mainstay of the Arctic Race Department, specializing in engines and chassis. A key tuner and set-up master, he was part of the famous team that produced Arctic Cat Hall of Fame champions like Charlie Lofton, Larry Coltom, Dave Thompson and Bob Elsner. Durmont was one of the speed wizards who kept the team sleds alive and always in the hunt throughout the Sno Pro oval track racing era until the team was disbanded in 1981.

After a long factory racing career, Wahl turned his skills and experience to building racing sleds in partnership with his brother, Dave. Starting in his garage, the brothers began building racing sleds and components for oval and drag competition. Realizing perhaps even greater success in this family venture, Durmont was a key part of the Wahl Brothers racing successes in the 1980s and 1990s that included four World Championships and countless high-point titles for Wahl sleds in oval and drag racing.

Swanson caps motocross season with top award

Logan Swanson, youngest son of Jim and Karla Swanson of Thief River Falls, finished an exciting and successful season of motocross racing in 2004.

At the Manitoba Motocross Association banquet, Swanson was awarded the trophy for overall high-point winner among all ages and racing classes. The winner of this award is kept secret until the banquet. Swanson is the youngest racer to ever receive this award. His name will now be engraved alongside the name of pro rider Earl Reimer and many other talented racers. Swanson was also awarded the high-point trophy in the division for 7 to 8 year olds, and won championship plaques in three different classes. He took first in the 50cc A class for both spring and fall, and first in the 65cc 7- to 9-year-old division. Swanson started racing on a 65cc in late summer just to get some practice and experience racing on the bike before full competition next year. He ended up racing so well on it that he was able to clinch a fall championship.

Swanson competed in 36 races over the summer and fall race season, and will start his fourth season of racing this summer. He also races in the local FANS circuit and Motocity in Staples.

Logan is 8 years old and in second grade at Challenger Elementary School, Thief River Falls. He was sponsored by Genereux Reality, Paint and Glass Interiors, Anderson Power, Sorvig Oil Inc., Budget, Pennington Main, and Big Johns.

Funding provided for MN Early Childhood Initiative

The Mardag Foundation recently provided a $25,000 grant to the Minnesota Initiative Foundations (MIFs) in support of the Minnesota Early Childhood Initiative (MECI).

"We are pleased to partner with the Mardag Foundation to help rural communities strengthen resources for young children and their families," said Lynn Haglin, vice president/KIDS PLUS director, Northland Foundation.

Through the MECI, each MIF is developing six early childhood coalitions within its respective region. These early childhood coalitions receive a combination of technical assistance, training and financial support from the MIFs. As part of the initiative, the MIFs have linked the 36 rural coalitions through a statewide network. This network provides an avenue for coalitions to share information with one another as well as participate in training opportunities. It also serves as a catalyst to move Minnesota's early care and education agenda forward by providing a mechanism for rural communities to have a statewide voice.

"The early childhood coalitions are making great strides in addressing issues and building on opportunities by engaging diverse sectors of community," said Haglin. "Through broad use support, coalitions are creating local early childhood visions and action plans to ensure young children thrive and have a healthy life of learning, achieving and succeeding."

Resources from the Mardag Foundation will be used to support the community visioning and action planning process.

Funded in part by a $3.2 million grant from The McKnight Foundation, the MECI is directed by the six MIFs. The MIFs seek additional funding to match a percentage of McKnight's grant. In addition to the Mardag Foundation, other contributors to this statewide campaign include the Sheltering Arms Foundation, Jay and Rose Phillips Family Foundation, Otto Bremer Foundation, Buuck Family Foundation, and the Robins, Kaplan, Miller and Ciresi LLP Foundation for Education, Public Health and Social Justice.

Oakland Park Nursing Home honored its employees Dec. 10 for their years of dedicated service. # County Board organizes originally after. Swanson cited over budget bids and potential shortfalls in other departments as reasons why the board should refuse the bids.

Barzen Ave. improvement meeting held. County Engineer Mike Flaagen and Jensen met with officials from the City of Thief River Falls, Digi-Key and Arctic Cat recently to discuss upgrading Barzen Ave. to a nine-ton route. Digi-Key offered to pay for as much as 50 percent of the cost of upgrading the gravel portion of Barzen Ave., a north-south road located west of Digi-Key and Arctic Cat. Nothing was finalized, but Arctic Cat reportedly would pay up to $25,000. The project will cost an estimated $150,000 to complete.

Contract for LEC operating system. Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby told the board that he had sent a letter of intent to purchase a new records and operating system.

The new operating system would include a $140,500 software package that includes various 911 jail and records system programs, and an $11,574 server package. An additional $29,043 will be used to set up 21 workstations. The $196,383 project will be paid for, using money from the 911 fund, Canteen fund and 2005 budget. The board granted approval to send a letter of intent to purchase at its Dec. 14 meeting.

Curbtender

Garbage is emptied from a 65-gallon garbage container into the Curbtender. The Curbtender, currently used in portions of Pennington County, uses a mechanical arm and pinchers to essentially make garbage collection a one-man job.

tons we haul from our residents," Nordhagen said.

A Minnesota state law, enacted in the mid 1990s, required that all garbage collected be measured by weight or volume. Collecting by weight would require trucks to be fitted with scales, so most collectors measure by volume and are also required by the state to use tubs or bags with the collecting entity's name on them. The plan was enacted to encourage recycling so customers paid a fee based on volume of trash.

Les's Sanitation began using a bag system in 1994. Nordhagen said that bags were measured to hold 33 gallons when filled to the very top, an unlikely measurement, Nordhagen said.

Nordhagen said that when the bag system was implemented in 1994 the policy was pretty strict and customers followed it. Over the years, customers started to bend the rules a bit, trying to throw out more garbage than they had paid for. With the tubs, essentially all garbage must fit in the tub.

"It needs to fit in this tub. Anything over and above that we'll pick up, but that's an extra charge," Nordhagen said.

Tubs and bags are priced similarly. Nordhagen said because the "average" family was billed for four 33-gallon bags per week under the old system, he anticipated that most families would opt for the larger 96-gallon container. The larger container, he reasoned, could realistically hold between four and five bags of garbage depending on contents. Instead, most of his customers opted for the 65-gallon container. He suspects that they opted for the 65-gallon container in an attempt to save money. That container can realistically hold between two and three bags. They may not be saving much, if anything. The larger tub costs $24.97 per month after tax, while the 65-gallon tub costs $20.85 after tax. The charge for additional tubs is $11.25 each.

Nordhagen believes that in the long run, the Curbtender will save residents money.

"We were at the point where we needed to hire someone or go more automated," Nordhagen said.

Purchasing the Curbtender essentially made about half of Pennington County's garbage collection a one-man job. Nordhagen also noted that the Curbtender allows garbage to be collected safely in bad weather and in a much faster manner. For customers, this may mean their garbage will be collected every week, instead of every other week as it was under the old system.

The City of St. Hilaire was the first customer to be converted to the new system of garbage collection. St. Hilaire City Clerk Diane Johnson said that overall the response has been positive. She said that there were a few minor complaints dealing with a lack of space, but most comments have been positive. She added that residents prefer the look of the tubs to trash bags and help to keep pets from occasionally rummaging through garbage. She also feels that the tubs have boosted the city's recycling program.

times were over.

"The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has ordered the wholesale market of electricity to be deregulated to allow access to the transmission system and generation plants open to anyone desiring to be a wholesale supplier of electricity. This started in the mid 1990s. Since then, the load on the joint system has grown to require the purchase of power by the joint system during longer periods of time. This occurs when the total generation capacity of the joint system is in full operation or a joint system power plant needs to be shut down for repair.

"With the wholesale electric transmission system and generating plants allowed to sell electricity at a market price, there is an increase in purchased power cost and the need to do more load control. The joint system has set a cap on the maximum to pay for purchased electricity through the wholesale power market. The electricity purchased is from the highest-cost plants. Lower cost plants are used to sell electricity to the customers of the generating utility. The market price will rise above the cost cap set for the purchase of electricity and control is required to reduce demand and the amount of power purchased.

"The demand for electricity has increased in the United States creating congestion on the power transmission system. This congestion will cause the cancellation of scheduled purchase power and requiring load control. In the past, cold temperature was the primary cause for load control. Now, the wholesale power market is a controlling factor along with temperatures.

"We are now in a condition that requires more hours of control than when load management was started. This control allows the reduction of purchased power costs by the control of certain types of loads. The customers who allow control of loads receive a rate reduction for those systems that are controlled.

"There was no guarantee that control times would not exceed four hours of control. The intent was to have control as needed to reduce power cost and that was, in general, a four-hour control. Dual heating systems are not considered four-hour control loads. Certain loads were set up for four hours of control. The four-hour control loads in the city are no longer controlled due to the number of control hours now needed. Only loads that are able to be off for indefinite periods of time are being controlled. The electric rates for four-hour control loads has escalated in the past two years, and will be at the uncontrolled rate after this summer. Most residential customers that were controlled for four hours will see an annual increase from $50 to $100 per year after the rate is changed to the uncontrolled rate. All customers who are on the rates for dual fuel systems - systems with a secondary heating system - will continue to be controlled.

"A budget pay plan is available for electric heat customers. This will allow the customer to make equal payments each month and reduce the high bills for high heating months. For more information, contact the utility billing office for details at 681-4145."

December initial unemployment claims down

Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development. Commissioner Matt Kramer announced recently that the number of Initial Claims for Unemployment Benefits dropped in December compared to 2003. Total claims decreased by 3,019 (6.7 percent) to 42,261.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, initial claims rose slightly, up 338 (1.4 percent) over November, but fell 4.7 percent (1,181) from a year ago.

On an annual basis, claims dropped by 11.8 percent to 284,948, the lowest annual total since 2000 when 203,480 initial claims were filed.

"The significant improvement in the number of initial claims this month and during 2004 is a positive sign for Minnesota's business and workers," Kramer said.

Eagles give Vern Johnson his 300th coaching victory

A milestone was reached Friday when Vern Johnson of Grygla-Gatzke notched his 300th career coaching win in the Eagles' 68-51 boys high school basketball victory over Lake of the Woods in a game played at Baudette.

Johnson is in his 25th year as head coach – all at Grygla-Gatzke. He spent three years as an assistant at Erskine before taking over the Eagles' program. His 300th win came almost six years to the day after he hit the 200-win plateau.

"It's a nice accomplishment," acknowledged Johnson. "I look at it not so much an individual thing, but as an overall reflection of our program."

Johnson's Eagles had a Section 8A runner-up finish in 1994-95 and put together back-to-back 22-5 seasons in 2001-02 and 2002-03 – first setting, then matching the school record for wins in a single season. They were 17-10 a year ago and are off to a 9-1 start this winter.

"It (300 wins) says a lot for our basketball program – about the sacrifices and the hard work put in by the players and the assistant coaches over the years," mentioned Johnson.

The latest win came with Tomas Loberg scoring 19 points, Andrew Holte 14, Tim Polansky 13 and Adam Sparby 9.

The Eagles led at the quarters 21-15, 36-22 and 54-36.

"It was a good effort," said Johnson. "We got off to a good start. We kept switching defenses on them and that made them (Bears) a little hesitant offensively."

Todd Perala scored 16 points and Adam Lund had 11 for Lake of the Woods.

Grygla-Gatzke shot 43 percent from the field (27/63) and got by with an 11-for-25 free throw night. Lake of the Woods shot 47 percent from the floor (20/43) and went 8-for-10 at the line.

The Eagles finished with a 25-19 rebound edge. The Bears had more turnovers, 15-10.

TRF ties team record at Pine-to-Prairie Invitational...

Four Prowlers win mat titles

Four individual titles highlighted Thief River Falls performances Saturday during the annual Pine-to-Prairie Invitational high school wrestling tournament.

First place finishes by Zach Anderson (140 pounds), Dan LeDuc (152), Adam Lian (171) and Andrew Peralta (heavyweight) tied a team record for most individual tournament titles for the Prowlers originally set during an invitational at the University of North Dakota in 1966, according to Thief River Falls coach Kenny Geiser.

Other Thief River Falls place finishers at the meet hosted by Fertile-Beltrami included a second by Manuel Peralta (215); thirds by Kyle Iverson (119) and Thain Abrahamson (145); along with fourth place showings by Jordan Engen (103), Kevin Fynboh (130) and Ben Poissant (189).

"A great final round performance," was the way Geiser described the Prowlers' day. "This was the most intense I have seen our team. We dominated in the finals. Zach, Dan, Adam and Andrew all controlled their final matches."

Anderson handled Jeremy Hagan of New York Mills 13-2 in the finals to extend his winning streak to 15 matches. He is 17-1 for the year and ranked No. 5 in the state in Class AA.

LeDuc defeated No. 6-ranked Cody Salo of New York Mills 7-2 in the title match. LeDuc has also won 15 straight and with a 16-1 record, is ranked No. 7.

Lian out-scored Trent Oftedahl of Fertile-Beltrami in an entertaining championship match. He won his first-ever title by getting a final takedown with three seconds remaining.

Andrew Peralta recorded a first period pin against Danny Swenson of Fertile-Beltrami in the finals to avenge a double-overtime loss at the hands of the same wrestler two days earlier. With three pins, Peralta was recognized as the tournament's pin champion. He is currently 16-3 and ranks No. 5 in the state.

Mancy Peralta reached his first tournament final before losing to a 5-1 decision to Cory Detloff of Staples-Motley. Peralta is 12-7.

Iverson beat No. 9-ranked Jeremy Weller of New York Mills 8-6 in the third place match, boosting his record to 13-7.

Abrahamson edged Matt Essig of Fosston/Bagley 5-4 in two overtimes for his third place finish. He is 12-7 for the year.

At 13-9, Engen rounds out the eight Prowlers with records above .500, pointed out Geiser, who also said Poissant wrestled well, recording two pins, despite being hampered by a severe knee injury.

New York Mills led the team race with 214 points, followed by Fertile-Beltrami with 196.5, Thief River Falls 167, Barnesville 161.5, Red Lake County Central 93.5, Staples-Motley 92, Menahga/Sebeka 59.5, East Grand Forks 46, Lake Park-Audubon 35 and Fosston/Bagley 32.

Thief River Falls will wrestle in a pair of duals this week when they go on the road Thursday to face area Class A power Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and return home to host Section 8AA rival Hibbing Friday.

The Prowlers vs. Bluejackets contest will feature varsity and junior varsity going simultaneously on adjoining mats starting at 4:30 p.m.

NCTC warms up for division play with pair of wins

It turned out to be a perfect script for the Northland Community and Technical College men's basketball team. The Pioneers, who lost straight three games going into the holiday break and hadn't played in nearly three weeks, not only needed "game time," they sorely needed a shot of confidence heading into their 2004-05 Minnesota Community College Conference schedule. By playing and winning two games in the Friday/Saturday NCTC-hosted Minn-Dak Tournament, coach Rick Nikunen's crew accomplished both goals prior to their Northern Division opener Tuesday at home against Rainy River.

Northland, idle since losing 98-94 to Ridgewater and 96-88 to the Grand Forks Air Base in the Dec. 17-18 Central Lakes Tournament, resumed play with victories over North Dakota schools Lake Region State 78-69 Friday afternoon and Minot State University-Bottineau 86-76 Saturday night.

Those results put the Pioneers at 8-5 for the year. Twelve of their final 13 regular season starts will be home-and-home dates against Northern Division rivals Rainy River, Vermilion, Mesabi Range, Central Lakes, Itasca and Hibbing.

"I'm really pleased," said Nikunen after beating the Royals to kick of the series of eight weekend men's and women's games in the Northland gym involving teams from Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba, Canada. "We played so terrible going into the (holiday) break. We couldn't stop anybody. We needed something like this."

Lake Region led 39-34 at halftime. A 3-pointer by JuWaun Bowman 2 1/2 minutes into the second half gave the Pioneers a 44-43 edge. They didn't give up the lead until back-to-back baskets by the Royals' Costa Rica combination of Jefny Anderson and Kay Martinez put the visitors ahead 60-59 with 7:11 remaining.

That's when two key players in the Northland line-up showed their big-play ability as sophomore forward Mike Howard hit 3-pointers from the same spot on consecutive trips down the court and freshman guard Jason Koch followed a Lake Region turnover with a drive through the middle as the Pioneers quickly reestablished control, 67-60, with 5:24 left.

Bowman finished with 20 points. Howard and Cyrin Shaffer both had 17, while Koch netted 12. Lake Region was led by Keith Jarrett, a 6-5 sophomore from Birmingham, England, with 19 points.

"It was a nice win," acknowledged Nikunen. "We've got a lot of kids who are sick. They gutted it out and found a way to get it done."

Northland was 24-for-61 from the field (39 percent) and a produced 23-for-30 at the free throw line. Lake Region went 30-for-78 from the floor (49 percent), but had a quiet 6-for-9 free throw game. The Royals out-rebounded the Pioneers 48-37 and topped the turnover charts 20-17.

Michelle Halvorson of Lake Region beat Northland's Tara Blazejewski down the floor for a fast break lay-up during Friday's women's basketball game in Thief River Falls. A former Red Lake County Central High School standout, Halvorson is a sophomore starter in the Royals' backcourt. She scored 10 points as the Devils Lake, N.D., school beat the Pioneers 89-42.

Northland Community and Technical College women's basketball team was able to shake off the effects from an 89-42 Friday drubbing at the hands of Lake Region to beat Minot State University-Bottineau 86-58 Saturday for a split against North Dakota foes in the women's portion of the Minn-Dak Tournament hosted by the Pioneers.

Thirty-nine turnovers sealed the Pioneers' fate against the Royals. Twenty-seven of those came in the first half when Northland fell behind by 50-22.

"That's a very good team," said Northland coach Missy Majerus in describing Lake Region. "We've struggled all year bringing the ball up the court against a full-court press. That's been our achilles heel."

Five Lake Region scorers hit double-figures, led by 5-9 guard Rebecca Mercer, a freshman from Perth, Australia, who scored 22 points. Katie Schafer netted 11, while Taryn Runck, Michelle Halvorson and Shonna Soeby had 10 each. A 5-6 sophomore guard, Halvorson played her high school basketball for Red Lake County Central and had a good fan following on hand.

Northland got a 10-point game from Chelsey Fering and 8 out of Kamae Larson.

Even when they did manage to hold onto the ball, the Pioneers struggled through a 29 percent 15-for-51 shooting performance. With an 11-for-23 figure, they weren't a whole lot better at the free throw line. The Royals' turnover-led fast break offense turned in a 73 percent 36-for-49 shooting performance, thanks to a bundle of lay-ups. Lake Region was 15-for-19 at the line. The winners finished with a 35-29 rebound advantage and turned it over 18 times.

Larson scored 21 points, Alisa Costin 13, Fering 11 and Rochelle Nelk 9 in the Pioneers' second-day win. Northland led 34-22 at the half.

Jenna Marquardt and Keera Ackley scored 17 points apiece to lead Bottineau. Brittany Allard contributed 11 points to the visitor's offense.

Northland's shooting shot up to 50 percent in the win (33-for-66). The Pioneers also improved to 14-for-17 at the line. Bottineau shot 34 percent from the floor (25/74) and had a 4-for-6 free throw game. The Pioneers won the rebound battle 34-23, but still turned it over 28 times.

"We played better," said Northland coach Missy Majerus after beating Bottineau. "Of course, we didn't play the caliber of team we faced the day before, either. We cut our turnovers down and we were able to clean up some things defensively."

It was Northland's first outing since the Dec. 17-18 Pioneers Invitational. The split put Northland at 6-6 heading into the Pioneers' 2004-05 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division opener Tuesday at home against Rainy River. They will be at Vermilion Friday and Mesabi Range Saturday.

"The biggest thing was that we were able to bounce back Saturday after getting beat like that Friday," explained Majerus. "That showed a

Grygla-Gatzke wins by a 66-32 outcome over Red Lake Falls

Grygla-Gatzke started with a 15-2 first quarter lead and went on to beat Red Lake Falls 66-32 Thursday in boys high school basketball.

"We got going after the first couple of minutes," explained Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "We pressured the ball and converted a few opportunities."

The winners had a 34-8 cushion at halftime and were up 53-13 through three quarters.

Tomas Loberg scored 14 points, Andrew Holte 12 and Geoffrey Satre 10 to lead the Grygla-Gatzke offense. Pat Leines had a team-best 10-point night for Red Lake Falls.

Grygla-Gatzke shot 48 percent from the field (30/62), but went only 4-for-15 at the free throw line. Red Lake Falls shot 35 percent from the floor (14/40) and had a 4-for-9 free throw game. Grygla-Gatzke finished with a 27-23 rebound edge. Red Lake Falls had 16 of the game's 20 turnovers.

Thief River Falls girls win 54-53 basketball game...

Prowlers edge Lumberjacks

Nichole Gryskiewicz got her points, as usual. But this time she got some help, and as a result, Thief River Falls emerged a 54-53 winner over Bemidji Saturday in girls high school basketball.

The win evened the Prowlers' record at 6-6. They're .500 against Section 8AAA competition, too, with a 1-1 mark heading into a Tuesday sectional test at Detroit Lakes. The Lakers won 49-26 when the two teams met earlier this season in Thief River Falls.

Gryskiewicz has shouldered most of the Prowlers' scoring load in 2004-05, and Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe has said repeatedly that to be successful, the points needed to be distributed. Saturday, he got what he asked for.

With Bemidji employing a box-and-one while chasing Gryskiewicz around the floor, it was critical others take advantage of the offensive opportunities. Shawna Rogalla sure did, scoring 14 points. And other pieces of the puzzle fell into place, too, as Jessica Gustafson (6), Becca Larson (6) and Mandy Thompson (5) combined for another 17 points.

"This was a great effort by our girls," said Loe. "I was pleased with the balance we had. We challenged the team to step it up offensively. We needed more players than Nichole to be an offensive threat. When you look at the statistics – we had good numbers spread throughout the team."

With Gryskiewicz given special defensive attention, the Prowlers waited until the open shots appeared, according to Loe. "I thought we did a good job being patient and allowing Nichole to get open, as well as looking for shots themselves," he said.

Thief River Falls had a 16-11 first quarter lead. Bemidji went ahead 30-26 at halftime, with the Prowlers regaining a 39-38 third quarter edge. It stayed close the rest of the way.

"We challenged the girls to come out and challenge Bemidji, as well as challenging themselves," noted Loe. "It was a huge confidence boost for us going into a tough week."

Brittany Mayclin led the visiting Lumberjacks with 13 points, while Matea Elhard had 12 and Mara Johnson collected 10.

A 4-for-20 showing from 3-point range dropped the Prowlers' overall shooting performance to 20-for-68 (29 percent). Bemidji was 21-for-49 from the floor (43 percent).

Both teams could have pulled away with better free throw shooting. The Prowlers were 10-for-23 on foul shots; the Lumberjacks 11-for-22. Bemidji won the rebound battle 45-35.

Second half nets Fergus Falls win

Fergus Falls wiped out a five-point halftime deficit by out-scoring visiting Thief River Falls 40-18 in the second half Friday for a 61-44 Section 8AAA boys high school basketball win.

"They switched defenses on us in the second half, and we didn't handle it very well," explained Thief River Falls coach Chris McLean.

The half-court zone trap employed by the Otters in the second half helped force 21 Thief River Falls turnovers. In addition, Fergus Falls' rebounding led to a game-turning fast break that more than took care of the Prowlers 26-21 halftime edge.

Out-scoring the Prowlers 20-5 in the third quarter, the Otters began the final eight minutes with a 41-31 lead.

"We probably played our best half of basketball all season in the first half," noted McLean. "All that changed in the second half. We didn't handle their defense. We turned it over, and those turnovers led to points. We've got to find a way to play 32 minutes. We've got to find a way to finish."

Paul Sjoberg led the 5-5 Prowlers with 17 points. Nick Lewis and Andrew Larson both scored 14 points, while Aaron Klein had 13 for the Otters.

Thief River Falls shot 43 percent from the field (17/40) and went 8-for-11 at the free throw line. Fergus Falls shot 48 percent from the floor (24/50) and had a 12-for-17 free throw game. The Otters won the rebound battle 31-28. The winners limited their turnover total to a dozen.

Fergus Falls beats TRF 49-32 in boys JV game

Shut out in the first quarter, Thief River Falls ended up losing a 49-32 boys junior varsity high school basketball game at Fergus Falls Friday.

The Otters led at the quarters 8-0, 26-10 and 34-28.

Adam Rodahl and Kyle Trontvet led the Prowlers with 7 point each.

Defense sets up B/G-MR offense in win vs. 'Pack

Kaley Mekash scored 30 points and Kierah Kimbrough had a 25-point, 18-rebound double-double as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River went to 12-0 Friday with an 89-51 girls high school basketball win over visiting Kittson Central.

It was the Gators' first victory over the Wolfpack since the 1999-2000 season.

Neither team spent much time running a set offense, explained Gators coach Tom Neibauer. "It was an extremely fast-paced game," he said. "Eighty-nine (points) is a good number against a team of that quality."

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River used it's pressure defense to set up its transition offense. "Our fast break was very efficient," said Neibauer. "We got quite a few points before Kittson Central could get back on defense."

That's where Mekash, a 5-10 sophomore, excels, noted Neibauer. "She does a great job finishing the fast break," he said. "She never misses those shots."

Missy Bruggeman added 16 points to the offense as the Gators shot 55 percent from the field (35/64) and 83 percent at the free throw line (19/23). Kittson Central had a quiet 2-for-5 free throw game.

Kittson Central did not have a double figure scorer, but the Wolfpack stayed in the game by hitting seven 3-pointers.

Pioneers sweep Minn-Dak contests

The Pioneers, after opening the match-ups Friday afternoon, closed the competition Saturday night with the win over Bottineau behind 23-point games by Shaffer and Bowman. Howard and Koch contributed 17 and 14 points, respectively. Also getting 23 was Eric Rongen of Bottineau.

Northland had a 37-35 edge at halftime and an eight-point second half scoring advantage added up to the 10-point scoreboard difference at the end.

"We played well, again," said Nikunen. "It was a good weekend. I really didn't know what to expect since we hadn't played very well. But I was excited with what I saw."

RLCC girls come up with 36-29 win over Lake of the Woods

Both teams had trouble generating an offense in a Red Lake County Central vs. Lake of the Woods girls basketball game at Plummer Saturday. In the end, the Mustangs managed to put up a few more points than the Bears to win it 36-29.

"It was not real pretty," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto, who lost sophomore forward Brittany Gustafson, one of his better players, to a first quarter ankle injury. "We were scrambling, trying to figure out what to do offensively without Brittany," he explained.

The Mustangs fell behind 10-2 in the first quarter, trailed 12-10 at halftime, but went ahead 21-19 in the third quarter.

Courtney Halvorson scored 14 points and grabbed 10 rebounds for the winners. Teammate Amanda Schmitz contributed 12 points the the Mustangs' offense. Carla Johnson and Carlie Waibel had 10-point games for the Bears.

The 5-6 Mustangs were 15-for-41 from the field (37 percent) and just 5-for-13 at the free throw line. The Bears went 11-for-40 from the floor (28 percent) and 6-for-7 at the line. Behind Halvorson, Red Lake County Central won the rebound battle 27-20. But they also topped the turnover charts, 19-15.

Gators beat Kittson Co. North

Kierah Kimbrough and Missy Bruggeman both had double-doubles to lead Badger/Greenbush-Middle River past host Kittson County North 70-40 Monday in girls high school basketball.

Kimbrough scored 28 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Bruggeman had a 10-point, 10-assist night.

Kaley Mekash and Liz Schenkey added 13 and 11 points, respectively to the Gators' offense. Mekash finished one rebound shy of joining Kimbrough and Bruggeman in the double-double category.

The Gators jumped out to an 18-8 first quarter lead, made it 42-18 at halftime and 52-26 through three quarters.

While the win pushed the Gators' record to 13-0, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer wasn't completely satisfied with the outing. "It was a (typical) Monday performance – not very good," he offered.

The Gators shot 57 percent from the field (34/60). Despite the presence of Kimbrough and Mekash on the inside and the special defensive attention they drew, the visitors only went to the free throw line four times all night, making one. The Cougars were 9-for-14 at the line.

Kittson County North, pointed out Neibauer, defended the Gators by playing five people inside the paint trying to bottle up Kimbrough and Mekash. That left three people open on every trip down the court. "They kept giving us open shots, and we kept taking them," he explained.

Ashley Matthew led the Cougars with 12 points.

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota is cold with lots of snow on the ground at this time. It's not any better out here, and I'm glad to be sitting typing and listening to the TV. The holidays slipped by me so fast that now I'm hurrying to get the visiting I had planned to do a reality.

Most of us are concerned about the tsunami damages. On Sunday at church, a special collection was taken, and we had a chance to give for their relief. Several years ago, the pastor of our church went as a missionary to Indonesia. After supporting them for a long time, we almost feel we are involved personally in the disaster.

When I called home to find out what was going on back there, I learned more snow had fallen in the past couple of weeks, but, as usual, they didn't complain and said there was nothing they could do about it. After dialing around, I found them gathered at Danny and Gloria Renstrom's house. Jim and Cindy Wetterlund of Grand Forks and Morris and Hazel Anderson enjoyed coffee, etc. Tomorrow they plan to meet at Irene's Cafe for her famous potato dumplings and there, no doubt, they will see our friend Judy Klienvachter and her guest, Ms. Severson who dines there each Tuesday.

A hawk just flew by the window with a morning dove in its talons, off to have its feast on "squab". About two dozen or more doves come to eat together with squirrels and mallard ducks in the backyard. Some squirrels come to the door to let Janet know they are waiting to be fed.

I'm going to my friends at Homestead Gardens to get some new dahlia cores and start dreaming about spring again.

ECHOES
FROM THE PAST

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minnesota — January 14, 2005

News Items

"School reconvened last Monday with an increased attendance.

"Rev. Father Ansgar will hold services at the Catholic church next Sunday at ten o'clock.

"The cold weather stopped work at the mill and planer a couple of days this week.

"This is the time of the year we may expect cold weather and we are not being disappointed. It is here.

"The planing mill will start on its season's work next Monday. Plenty of orders are booked and it will run all winter.

"On February 7th the people of Plummer will hold an election to see whether they will incorporate as a village. Of course it will carry, and Julius Pleth, the father of the town, should be the first president of the village council.

County Seat War

"At the meeting of the county commissioners held last week, just before the adjournment on Friday, the following resolution was presented and passed:

"'Whereas, a demand has been made by Mr. Ernest Buse, owner of Lots 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Block 3 of Champagne & Dow's addition to Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, for increased rent for the use and occupation of the above named premises as Court House for Red Lake county, Minnesota, and;

"'Whereas, said Ernest Buse has made an offer of sale to this board of the described property to this said county for the sum of $2,370.00 subject to one mortgage of $900.00 and one other mortgage of $1,000.00 and to furnish a good and sufficient warranty deed on same, and;

"'Whereas, after due consideration this board is of the opinion that said increased charge of rent is unreasonable and exorbitant;

"'Therefore be it Resolved that the said offer of sale of Ernest Buse be and the same is hereby accepted, and that the sum of $2370.00 be and the same is hereby appropriated out of the funds available for such purposes, and that a warrant be drawn by the county auditor and the chairman of this board for the said amount, to be paid to said Ernest Buse on presentation by him of a good and sufficient warranty deed and an abstract of said premises showing good and sufficient title, but subject to said mortgages, and that the county auditor and chairman of this board are hereby authorized to sign and execute with the said Ernest Buse a contract for deed forthwith on said premises, deed to be delivered on January 26, 1905 and that said offer is accepted and said appropriation is made and directed to be paid to said Ernest Buse, only on condition that he deliver to said board a warranty deed as aforesaid and abstract showing good, valid and marketable title.

"'And that the county attorney, county auditor and chairman of this board be and the same are hereby appointed as a committee to pass upon the title to said premises.'

"Commissioners Demann, Sutor and Falardeau voted in favor of the resolution and Commissioners Shaw and Johnson against it.

"The matter has caused considerable discussion in the northern part of the county, says the Thief River Falls News. It has been a well-known fact for a number of years that at some future date either St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls would commence a contest for the removal of the county seat. One of the desires of the north end of the county has been to keep Red Lake county from securing any permanent improvements and thus far they have been successful. The object of this is that when a county seat fight is commenced, there should be no reason advanced against its removal by the farmers of the county.

"So far as Thief River Falls is concerned it desires to wait at least two or three years before commencing the contest. It is continually growing stronger and Red Lake Falls is getting weaker. The passing of the above resolution, however, has had the effect of forcing us into the fight at an earlier date than we would desire and, while we realize that it is a move upon the part of Red Lake Falls to force the issue at an earlier date than we wish for, the challenge is going to be accepted and a vigorous campaign commenced for the removal of the county seat to Thief River Falls unless the purchase of the court house can be stopped by injunction.

"The mere investing of $4,000 in a county building at Red Lake Falls, although we would consider it a mighty poor investment, would not be objected to so strongly by the people of Thief River Falls if they could be insured that it would stop there. But the building which is purchased is nothing but a fire trap and suppose it would burn down, say this summer, would not Red Lake Falls at once want an expensive structure built to replace it? If Mr. Buse is charging what is called an exorbitant rent, there are plenty of other vacant buildings in Red Lake Falls that can be secured, among them being Matt Skala's opera house, which in our opinion is the building by far the best suited for court house purposes, and can be rented for almost nothing. . .

"A committee of the following gentlemen have been named to advance the interests of Thief River Falls and the taxpayers of Red Lake county in the matter: D. N. Winton, A. A. Sweaas, H. W. Lee, C. M. Evenson, John Morgan, D. P. O'Neal, Math Barzen, Lars Backe, J. M. Bishop, C. J. Knox, and Olaf Ramstad. If the public examiner does not take action in the matter an injunction will be secured from the courts. . .

"If the people of Red Lake Falls do not appreciate having the county seat well enough to furnish the county with a building at a reasonable rent, the people of Thief River Falls are going to make an offer to the county."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher — January 12, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

Organize Eleven Towns
Settlers Out East Secure the Required Legislation

"At the meeting of the county commissioners held last week much legislation of importance for the eleven townships was passed.

"All of that part of the reservation in Red Lake county was organized into one voting precinct and Ole Wiseth, Jorgan Eide and Gunder Steenerson were appointed election judges. All that part north of the Red Lake river was annexed to Daniel Shaw's commissioner district and that south of the river was annexed to Ole J. Johnson's district.

"The polling place for the reservation is to be at Kratka post office, better known to the residents of this section as Skunktown.

"The reservation was also organized into three assessment and road districts. All south of the river was made Assessment District No. 3, with W. E. Wood as assessor and J. K. Wood, road overseer.

"North of the river and west of the range line between ranges 42 and 41, was made Assessment District No. 4, with D. J. McNiven as assessor and Martin Moylan as road overseer.

"North of the river and east of the range line between ranges 42 and 41, was made Assessment District No. 5 with Peter Wold as assessor and Morgan Vaughan as road overseer.

"A petition was received from the settlers of town 153, range 42, asking to be organized as a township. It is to be called Big Bend township and the settlers there will vote upon the organization and the election of officers on January 24th. W. E. Wood, W. J. Potts and D. J. McNiven were appointed election judges." [This township is today known as Smiley.]

Father Charles Leaves

"Father Charles Cannon, who for a number of years has been the popular pastor of St. Bernard's Catholic Church left Tuesday for Moorhead where he has accepted a call.

"It was with genuine regret that the local congregation saw Father Charles depart for his new home, but all were well pleased that his new congregation would be much larger and wealthier than the one which he leaves here. As a token of esteem, Father Charles was presented with a purse of $70 by the members of his congregation before departing.

"The new pastor will be Father Adolph of North Dakota."

The Press Sold

"S. W. Bagley last week sold the Press newspaper to Frank Packard of the Crookston Times. Possession is to be given next week. Mr. Bagley, who has conducted the paper for the past three years, has made many friends here who regret to see him go out of the business. As a competitor, the News has always found him honorable and upright and wish him all kinds of success in any future business in which he may engage. The new proprietor is an old acquaintance of the editor and we extend to him a cordial greeting."

Can't Be True

"A story is going the rounds up in the Thief Lake country (but is not generally credited) that a party of hunters found the remains of Nat Campbell's two moose and that one of them was branded US and the other had three shoes on. A man lost a span of mules on the Roseau river last fall and people are wondering if there is any connection between the two events."

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

Special Events Set For Local Polio Campaign

"The canvass of the business district of this city for the 1955 polio fund campaign got under way last Thursday afternoon following a 3 o'clock luncheon in the Rex cafe attended by 30 or more solicitors, who are working under the direction of Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen and Mrs. George Baken, co-chairmen of this phase of the drive. Also present were Roy Oen, chapter president, and A. F. Berge, general chairman of the campaign.

"At the same time, Mrs. Adam Lendobeja, chairman for the rural areas, is pushing the campaign along, and several township leaders have already turned in encouraging reports.

"During the past week, progress was made on the polio benefit auction to be conducted in the municipal auditorium Friday evening, January 21, and for three polio home talent shows."

18-Year-Olds Are Told To Register

"Another reminder was issued today by Col. Lloyd F. Lilygren, state director of selection service, to the effect that all young men becoming 18 years of age must register with their nearest local draft board within five days after their eighteenth birthday. The local board has its office on the second floor of the Northern State bank building."

Twenty-Five Residents Admitted To Rest Home By Tuesday

"A total of 25 residents have been admitted to Oakland Park Rest Home up to Tuesday of this week, Superintendent Donald Brandvold stated today, adding that the institution has accommodations for 65 to 70 residents. He encouraged prospective residents for the home to file their applications for admission as early as possible to put them in line for openings as they develop."

Notify City Clerk When Rats Appear

"In a formal notice appearing elsewhere in this issue of the Times, the city council states that a Grand Forks firm is engaged in a rat extermination project in Thief River Falls, and asked that local residents noticing the presence of rats about their premises notify City Clerk P. G. Pederson, phone 715."

Editorial opinion published under this heading is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Unless specified otherwise, the editorials are written by Editor Dave Hill and do not represent opinion of other staff members. Opinions in items from other publications may not coincide with the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

It's nice to receive compliments

Last week, Manitoba Premier Gary Doer wrote to to the mayors of Grand Forks and Thief River Falls thanking them for the warm reception all fans received from staff and volunteers working at the World Junior Hockey Championship. The letter appearing in the Jan. 7 edition of the Grand Forks Herald states in part: "The high caliber of athletic performance combined with the warm hospitality of the local citizens ensured a great legacy for the host communities."

In fact, there were several letters to the editor in that edition of the Grand Forks Herald that were very complimentary. It's nice to hear, and I hope it boosts civic pride and confidence. Both communities worked very hard to guarantee a successful tournament.

It's also nice to hear because such commentaries are powerful selling points for Thief River Falls and Grand Forks. There's nothing like word of mouth, or a recommendation from a friend, to bring visitors back for another visit.

I join the Grand Forks Herald, too, in urging our communities to build on the success of the World Junior Hockey Championship. We have proven that we can handle international events, so let's reach for more challenges.

Let's shed some light on intersection

Adding light to the intersection of Highway 59 and State Aid 3 would do a lot to help motorists. The intersection has generated considerable comment and concern from residents over the years. Pennington County commissioners are now considering whether to install traffic lights (not signals) at the intersection.

Perhaps it would be inaccurate to state that since the construction of the Seven Clans Casino nearby, conditions at the intersection have deteriorated. But, it wouldn't be entirely inaccurate either. While motorists have been using the intersection for years, traffic at the intersection has increased significantly since the construction of the casino. It has become a busy intersection and now problems typically associated with busy intersections - vehicles stopped in traffic lanes, slow moving vehicles, icy roads caused by stopping and starting - have appeared. This intersection isn't located in an urban setting where motorists might reasonably anticipate those conditions either. It's in the country, and the intersection pits high-speed traffic against slow moving traffic. That's not a good combination.

It would be interesting to see what studies conducted by the Minnesota Department of Transportation have to say about the intersection. It seems every time someone proposes changes to an intersection due to concerns over safety at intersections, their studies offer some interesting proposals that are backed up by science. If the intersection hasn't been studied, it needs to be looked at.

Changes at intersections are not easily undertaken. Signal lights at an intersection easily run over $150,000, and for any unit of local government in northwestern Minnesota, that's a lot of money. In addition, any change should be undertaken after carefully taking into account all factors and scientific evidence. Nevertheless, no amount of money can balance the scales when human life is at stake.

While adding a little light to this intersection might help, it's time local and state officials shed a little more light on the safety options at this intersection.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mayor Wennberg:
TRF should be proud of its hard work

To the Editor

The city of Thief River Falls has just completed showcasing itself to the world. Everyone that volunteered their services has to be proud of their part in making this great event a success. All the positive comments, smiles, handshakes and great play that we witnessed during the past five-day tournament certainly showed the world that we, as a community working together, are capable of meeting the challenge.

International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), USA Hockey, National Hockey League (NHL) officials, players and fans praised all the volunteer efforts, and said we set a new level of expectation for future tournaments. They were impressed that after every game and after long hours of work, everyone was ready for the next day with the same great enthusiasm.

Ralph Engelstad Arena (REA) Manager Tom Goddard accepted his role as volunteer tournament director and assembled a staff of dedicated division chairpeople. He worked for over two years to ensure the success of this tournament.

My compliments to all city departments and staff for the work they did to prepare the arena, and the city, for all of our visitors.

Although attendance was not what we had expected, we learned from the experience. The prices had been set prior to the games and we definitely learned, for example, what the rates should have been.

Thank you to Ralph and Betty Engelstad for their great gift to us. By partnering with the REA-Grand Forks, N.D., we were able to show the world what we were capable of with these two great arenas. Hopefully, we will be able to host more exciting events in the near future. I am confident that with the entire community working together, hockey and non-hockey events alike will be successful.

Thanks again to everyone involved.

Mayor Dale Wennberg

Minnesota Legislature sets bad example

To the editor:

According to an Associated Press article of Jan. 7, 2005, the Minnesota House of Representatives voted themselves a $10 per day increase in their daily meal (per diem) allowance. The raise takes them from a $56 per day meal rate to $66 per day. They also voted themselves a $100 per month increase in housing allowance. This raise moves them to $1,200 per month from $1,100.

This action by the House Rules Committee is final. This means it doesn't have to be voted on by the full House of Representatives. How convenient is that, as it gives all members of the House a safe 'way out,' so they can say, "Well, I did not vote to give myself that raise."

I am a township officer in Polk County, and at a time when ALL levels of government, from schools, counties, cities and other government agencies are being asked to bear the brunt of deep budget cuts by the state.

Our state senators, who did not ask for such raises, are not in the clear, however. Earlier this fall, they voted to give ALL 205 state Senate staff members a one-time bonus check of $1,750 each.

These actions do not show fiscal leadership or responsibility when all others in the state are asked to reduce costs.

When your local representative and/or state senator comes back to your town during this session, ask them about these two items.

Who is responsible for God's little critters?

To the Editor:

At approximately 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 4, 2005, I stepped outside to plug in my van because I was told it was going to drop down to 30-below zero that evening. As I reached for the extension cord I heard an odd rustling in our evergreen tree. I shrugged it off, assuming it was just a squirrel. Then, a pile of snow came plummeting to the ground. I was a little freaked out, and as I turned to scurry inside, a small owl hit the hard snow from at least 40-feet above. Yes, that is correct, a small owl. I couldn't believe my eyes. I live in town. Owls don't just drop from trees. It was clearly injured, but alive.

I went inside and immediately phoned my sister. I didn't know what to do exactly. I mean, it isn't every day that an owl falls out of your tree and lies injured in your front yard. She and her husband suggested that I call Thief River Falls law enforcement. I hung up and did just that. You can imagine how loony-tunes I must have sounded. "Um, yes officer, I am not sure if you can help me, but I believe an owl just fell from my tree."

The law enforcement officer took down all my contact information and said an officer would be over. When I asked if anyone else would be able to help the owl, he said he did not think so, and that their animal control officer would be my best bet to help this owl survive.

I waited for what seemed like forever, but was really about 8:40 p.m. when Officer Kurt Nelson drove up. He told me he was not the animal control officer, but that he had to see what was going on. When he heard about the owl, he said he thought, "This woman is crazy."

Can you blame him? This is a pretty strange story. Anyway, Nelson made a couple of calls to the Highway Patrol and Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to see if anyone could help. After assuring me that the animal control officer, or someone would be by, he left to get back to work.

I waited until after midnight and no one came to help with the little owl. At 12:15 a.m., I walked outside to find the owl about three feet from its previous location - wings spread out, on his back, dead in the snow. As I write this letter, it is 1 p.m. on Wednesday, and no one has come for the little owl. I tried to save the owl, but I don't know what else I could have done. Whooo, might have you called? Whoooo could have helped if not our local law enforcement? A veterinarian? The Humane Society? DNR? When we encounter God's little critters injured, is it humans' responsibility to save them? I think so. What do you think?

Rep. Penas
Looking forward to legislative session

State Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger) is looking forward to a 2005 legislative session that she hopes will be much different in tone and results than the 2004 session.

"It's my sincere hope that the 2005 session will be much more productive for the citizens of Minnesota," said Penas. "And that hope starts with the bonding bill, which was held up by the inactions of the Senate last year."

The 2005 session was jump-started by an announcement Jan. 3 by Gov. Tim Pawlenty that he is proposing an $816 million bonding package for the Legislature to consider.

"There is an impetus to getting the bonding bill done early," said Penas. "Many worthwhile projects have been in limbo since the Senate decided not to act last year, and we need to get these things moving."

Penas pointed out that the bonding proposal, besides including many worthy initiatives in transportation, education and agriculture, also includes important funding for flood control projects for northwestern Minnesota. "The passage of a bonding bill is critical for our region," Penas said.

Penas has been named to the House Agriculture and Rural Development; Agriculture, Environment and Natural Resources Finance; and Environment and Natural Resources committees for the 2005-06 session.

"It's imperative to serve on the environment and agriculture committees with the amount of state land in our region and the two main ATV and snowmobile manufacturers located here," Penas said.

House Speaker Steve Sviggum said, "I wanted to tap Rep. Penas' passion for northwestern Minnesota and bring her deep convictions for the issues important to her communities to the forefront in these areas. Her communities need a strong voice, and Rep. Penas certainly delivers."

Sviggum is re-elected MN House Speaker

Minnesota House Speaker Steve Sviggum (R-Kenyon) was re-elected Speaker of the House by a 67-64 vote on the opening day of the 2005 legislative session on Tuesday, Jan. 4.

Sviggum becomes the second longest serving House Speaker in Minnesota history at the end of this biennium. His tenure is eclipsed only by Lawrence M. Hall, who served as House Speaker from 1939 to 1947, when the Legislature met only every other year.

"Together as Republicans and Democrats, as rural, metro and suburban legislators, we have a lot of work to do," said Sviggum. "Minnesota is a great state - number one in many quality of life measurements, but I am confident that together we can raise the bar for Minnesotans and accomplish what we need to do to maintain and improve this great state we live in.

"What holds us together is much greater than what divides us," he added. "We will govern with honor, respect, prudence and balance."

Sviggum was nominated by State Rep. Joe Hoppe (R-Chaska), and seconded by State Rep. Dan Dorman (R-Albert Lea) and State Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger). Hoppe called Sviggum, "the epitome of a public servant," and Penas praised the speaker as, "a leader who can enable us and lead us to do what's right for the people of Minnesota."

Dorman noted the extensive travel the speaker does across the state year-round. "The speaker is a hard-working individual with an open-door policy that works hard for Minnesota."

TRF Chamber hears a TRF rap re-cap

by David Hill
Editor

Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce kicked off its 91st Annual Banquet and 2005 Monday night, Jan. 17, with a lively rap song by 2004 Chairperson Maryel Anderson and her daughter, Vanessa Martell. That wasn't the end of the surprises, as a magician, Nick Bretz, kept the crowd laughing and wondering who would be his next victim, or volunteer.

"I don't know how you feel about the past year, but it was an amazing year for me as chairperson," said Anderson in her message to the membership.

Anderson was chairperson during a year during which there were many important events for the community. Her rap song poked fun at the seriousness of those events, which included, but was not limited to, Wal-Mart's announcement that it would move to Thief River Falls, the World Junior Hockey Championship, and the All-School Reunion, which brought thousands of alumni back to the community, and required thousands of volunteer hours.

Anderson gave a lot of credit for her success to "some pretty amazing people." She said she was extremely proud of the community.

Anderson also announced that the Chamber of Commerce is in good financial shape. She said that this was almost totally a result of the fundraising efforts of the Ambassador Committee which worked very hard on the annual street dance.

Dr. Jim Langland will be the next chairman of the board. Langland thanked Anderson and noted that Anderson and Deb Quesnell, another former chairperson, raised the bar in terms of leading the Chamber of Commerce.

Langland will lead the Chamber of Commerce during a year of change. Prior to the banquet Monday, the Chamber of Commerce announced that it will be focusing more on improving the business, retail and healthcare environment for the community, rather than tourism; although, it said the Chamber will continue to be the first smiling face visitors see when they visit Thief River Falls.

In his message to the membership, Langland said, "Growing jobs and improving the business, retail and health care environment will help our community grow and prosper, insuring a better future for all our families."

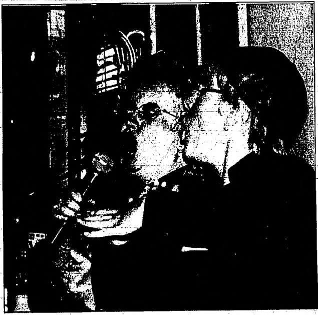
Dr. Jim Langland presented Maryel Anderson with a plaque in appreciation for her service as the 2004 Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce board chairperson.



Maryel Anderson, 2004 chairperson of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, and her daughter, Vanessa Martell, recapped her year as chairperson with a lively rap song. At the 91st Annual Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Banquet Monday, Jan. 17, Maryel turned over leadership of the chamber to Dr. Jim Langland. The event was held at the Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill.

City Council

Several service fees to increase

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

City service users may see some increases in 2005. The Thief River Falls City Council approved the increases at its Jan. 11 meeting.

According to City Administrator Jodie Torkelson, the following fees have increased by $5 or more:

- Public dance fee – $20 per dance and a $300 police fee. Last year, the police fee was $200. If an applicant cancels a public dance less than 48 hours before the date of the public dance; the applicant will be assessed a $25 damage fee.
- Airport hangar rentals – Depending on the airport hangar, increases ranged from $5 per month to $50 per month. "S" Hangar renters will see the largest increase. For that hangar, the rental fee increased from $25 per month to $75 per month.
- Parade permit fee – An increase from $5 to $20.
- Fireworks display fee – An increase from $2 per occurrence to $25 per occurrence.
- Weed/grass removal – The city's actual incurred cost and a $10 administrative/processing fee for each mowing. Last year, the administrative fee was $5.
- Taxi license fees – For the first vehicle, the annual license is $35. For each additional vehicle operated under the license, the annual fee is $20. The $20 fee is an increase from a $15 fee in 2004. If the taxi service cannot use a licensed vehicle due to mechanical failure or needed repairs, the license can be transferred to another vehicle for seven days. However, the city would have to approve that transfer.
- Moving permit fees – An increase from $15 to $20.

The council approved the following City Council committee

Little waves at LHS...

Students help survivors of tsunami

by David Hill
Editor

Recently, the power of the media to shape behavior became quite evident at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls. Half way across the globe an earthquake shaped a tsunami of monstrous size. The waves of that tsunami swept away hundreds of thousands of lives and livelihoods, and because of modern technology, citizens around the globe were able to watch. Back in Thief River Falls where temperatures on a Friday morning hovered around -21-degrees Fahrenheit, students were wondering the same thing people around the globe were wondering - what can we do to help?

Mike Nordine, social studies teacher at Lincoln High School, said students in his ninth grade social studies class were discussing current events when the subject of the tsunami came up. Nordine said students started discussing the relative differences in wealth, and comparing the standards of living between that part of the world and the United States. To help students bring the differences into perspective, Nordine said they started looking at what $10 could do. When they saw what $10 could do, and heard from another news source that some NBA players were donating $1,000 per point, someone suggested that they raise funds for the survivors of the tsunami. And since they were discussing the value of $10 in that part of the world, they decided to see if they could raise $10 per person.

Nordine went along with the suggestion, but said it had to be completely voluntary. To make sure no one was ridiculed for not being able to make a donation, they also decided that they wouldn't keep track of who donated what. In addition, the lesson for the day was expanded to include research of international relief organizations, and how their donations could best be utilized – they were aware that news media sources were filled with accounts of bogus charities. The students then set an unofficial goal of $250, an amount that they thought was almost unattainable.

Nordine said that as other students in Nordine's classes heard of the decision by one class to help survivors of the tsunami, they decided that they wanted to get involved, too. And then, as little waves grow into bigger waves, the word spread to all of the social studies classes and Nordine's geography classes.

Nordine said the initial goal of $250 in the first social studies class was raised quickly. Within three days, students at the school had raised over $1,000. (As of Monday, Jan. 17, the total had reached $1,078.40.)

Nordine said the students

All-day Kindergarten on TRF agenda

by David Hill
Editor

Monday, teachers from Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls once again approached the board of education about starting all-day, every day kindergarten in School District 564.

"The return on the investment would be priceless," said Challenger Principal Patrick Marolt.

Teachers and staff in early childhood education in Thief River Falls are joining educators throughout Minnesota in calling for all-day kindergarten.

Last year, teachers and staff went through the lengthy process of investigating whether all-day kindergarten would be right for children in Thief River Falls. Monday, they reviewed what they found, which supports their conclusion that going to all-day kindergarten would be a wise investment.

Teachers and staff say that the reason the change is needed begins with the increasing demands placed on programming. A half-day in kindergarten amounts to a little over two and one-half hours. Currently, programming takes up the entire 160 minutes.

Marolt noted that it isn't like it used to be when he was in kindergarten, when naps and art took up most of the time.

Schools are now obligated to teach math, reading, music, physical education and meet other demands at the same time. And, students are expected to demonstrate that they have learned those subjects. If they don't, schools are held accountable for the student's failure.

But teachers emphasize the benefits of all-day kindergarten rather than the need to meet curricular expectations. Data they gathered supports their conclusion that all-day kindergarten improves basic reading skills and social development.

Their experience with extended day kindergarten, which is available

Two men sentenced for separate felony offenses

Two men were sentenced Jan. 10 in Pennington County District Court for separate felony offenses:

Charles Carnell Edwards, 25, Grand Forks, N.D., pled guilty to a felony offense of terroristic threats. In a plea agreement, charges of fifth degree domestic assault and a protection order violation were dismissed. Edwards was sentenced to 21 months in jail stayed for five years. He was placed on supervised probation for five years. Edwards was also ordered to pay $248 in fees and fines. On Oct. 23, he entered a residence in the 700 block of State Ave. N. According to the criminal complaint, the female resident had a protection order filed against Edwards. He and the woman argued. Edwards struck her in the face and outside the residence as he took their child. He also threatened to kill her.

Chad Kim Bakken, 33, Thief River Falls, pled guilty to a felony offense of first degree driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced to 42 months in jail with all but one year stayed for seven years. Bakken was also placed on supervised probation for seven years. Sentence to Serve/Huber privileges were granted. Bakken was also ordered to pay $1,098 in fees and fines. On Nov. 16, a sheriff's deputy observed Bakken's vehicle swerving in its lane in Pennington County. (The location was not noted in the criminal complaint.) The vehicle traveled over the fog-line and across the centerline. According to the complaint, Bakken has four previous alcohol-related offenses within the past 10 years. Those offenses between 1998 and 2002 included revocations for alcohol concentrations of 0.10 or 0.20 and refusal to submit to chemical testing.

Numerous traffic offenses and other misdemeanors are included in the latest edition of the Pennington County Citation Disposition Bulletin.

Firefighters receive reports of broken sprinklers Tuesday

Early Tuesday morning, the Thief River Falls Fire Department responded to two reports of water damage due to broken sprinklers.

At 2:09 a.m. Tuesday, the department was dispatched to Challenger Elementary School. A sprinkler pipe had broken at the north end of the school near the gym hallway. Damage was estimated between $5,000 and $10,000, according to the department. Firefighters were on the scene for about 2-1/2 hours.

At 4:50 a.m. Tuesday, firefighters were dispatched to Campus Court Apartments at 1003 Longren Ave. A sprinkler line had frozen, causing approximately $1,000 to $1,500 in water damage. Firefighters were on the scene for half an hour.

Motorists reminded to be prepared in cold spells

Due to the extreme cold spell, public safety officials are urging Minnesota motorists to be prepared. They are reminding motorists to prepare their vehicles for freezing conditions, know procedures in case of vehicle breakdowns and especially take caution for black ice – transparent, thin ice spots that form when moisture freezes on extremely cold pavement.

Motorists should significantly decrease speeds during below-zero temperatures and should not risk driving unless necessary. Unsafe speeds and seat belt non-use is a recipe for potential tragedy.

"Just because you can't see the ice doesn't mean it's not there," said Col. Steve Mengelkoch of the Minnesota State Patrol. "And it doesn't matter if you have four-wheel drive or not – everyone needs to slow down or stay off the roads."

Black ice can form on heavily congested roadways from auto emissions. For every gallon of gasoline burned, one quart of moisture is produced. Black ice can also form on roads in shaded areas, near lakes and rivers, in tunnels and on bridges. Indicators for black ice are ice on windshield wipers, side-view mirrors or road signs.

Black ice is lessened with salting and sanding. However, drivers should be aware that salt loses its effectiveness at about 15 degrees or colder. In temperatures below 15 degrees, the Minnesota Department of Transportation uses either sand or de-icing liquids that are effective at lower temperatures.

The State Patrol recommends the following cold-weather driving tips:

- Prepare your vehicle for travel – have a full tank of gas, check oil, carry jumper cables, blankets, snack items and a charged cell phone.
- Dress yourself and your children warmly, but do not over-layer. This can limit a driver's range of motion and cause seat belts or child seats to fit improperly.
- Buckle up and decrease speeds – travel below the posted speed limit.
- Take caution on bridges, never brake while driving on ice, keep at least an eight-second distance between vehicles and do not use cruise control.
- If your vehicle breaks down, remain in the vehicle and wear your seat belt. Turn the dome light on to alert emergency responders.

Creativity Festival stimulates young minds

Over 430 students from northwestern Minnesota attended the Ninth Annual Creativity Festival Jan. 6 on the Bemidji State University campus.

The one-day event, which is designed to celebrate the arts, creativity and problem solving for fifth through eighth grade students, exposed them to the creativity process, critical thinking and invention.

The day began with an opening session for all students with Dan Beuttner, a pioneer in both exploration and education, who has set several Guinness World Records for endurance. Beuttner created one of the nation's premier interactive education programs and is also an Emmy Award-winning producer, journalist and author.

Seventeen breakout sessions provided a wide variety of interactive and innovative breakout sessions to challenge young minds. The hands-on sessions were led by experts who specialize in creativity and problem-solving in their lives and in their work. Session leaders included inventors, scientists and visual and performing artists, who provided positive role models for the students and celebrated creativity with the students. Students formed clay on the wheel in a pottery session, created their own scientific inventions in an imaginative invention session, and learned what makes music sound "Celtic."

Participating students were from 24 schools in northwestern Minnesota, including Badger, Bagley, Bemidji, Cass Lake/Bena, Clearbrook/Gonvick, Greenbush/Middle River, Kelliher, Laporte, Lake of the Woods, Marshall County Central, Norman County East, Novis, Pine Point, Red Lake, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Stephen/Argyle Central, Sacred Heart, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's, St. Michael's, St. Philip's, Walker/Hackensack/Akeley and Waubun/White Earth/Ogema.

NMF announces grant awards

In 2003, the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF) adopted new initiatives to help develop the region's natural, social, structural and economic assets through business financing, training, philanthropic services and grant making. In November and December 2004, its board approved the following grants, which are an integral part of accomplishing those goals for the region:

- $25,000 to St. Joseph's Area Health Services, Park Rapids, to support the development and implementation of a dental education program for infants and children in Hubbard County. Activities include dental health education and other public health information, "Saving Smiles" introduced into Park Rapids, Nevis and Laporte school districts, dental education at Women, Infants and Children clinics with decreasing dental problems in children and improvement to the general health of the population. The NMF Early Childhood Initiative's Park Rapids coalition previously made a grant for $13,000 to help purchase equipment for the pediatric suite in the dental office.
- $25,000 to The Nature Conservancy for development and implementation of conservation monitoring projects at Glacial Ridge National Wildlife Refuge in Polk County and the Tallgrass Aspen Parkland in northwestern Minnesota. The project will measure changes in the landscape, and then evaluate how plants and wildlife are affected.
- $17,500 to the Red Lake Watershed District to investigate the effects on water quality of agricultural practices and best management practices related to drainage. The focus will be on tile drainage due to the need for water quality data from northwestern Minnesota, the potential for decreased sediment and phosphorous contributions to surface waters, and a possible increase in nitrate leaching from this practice.
- $20,000 for two special project grants of $10,000 each to the Headwaters Regional Development Commission and the Northwest Regional Development Commission for the Northwest Minnesota Housing Coalition for 2005, which addresses the need for quality affordable housing.
- $68,272 for various scholarships, nonprofit projects and programs from the following NMF component funds: Heartland Christian Academy Endowment and Project Fund (two grants), Pat Campbell String Fund, Thief River Falls Early Childhood Initiative Fund (two grants), Ole and Ruth Tweet Family Fund (two grants), Fred Marshall Fund, Bemidji Community Theater Fund, Greater Bemidji Outdoor Foundation, Park Rapids Early Childhood Initiative Fund, Bemidji Lumberjack Foundation Fund, District #593 Education Foundation Fund, Warroad Early Childhood Initiative Fund (two grants), and Clearwater Health Services Hospice Family Room Project Fund.

Free paint available for community restoration projects

A fresh coat of paint can make a remarkable difference in the appearance of community structures, neighborhood facilities and parks. While adding to a sense of civic pride, this task is again being made affordable through the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF).

For the eighth consecutive year, the NMF is offering free paint for community fix-up and restoration projects. In partnership with the Valspar Corporation and the Minnesota Beautiful Picture-It-Painted Program, help will be given to towns and organizations to obtain the paint and other coating materials required for selected projects.

"The Picture-It-Painted Program has made thousands of gallons of paint available over the years, which has resulted in visual improvements all around the region," said John Ostrem, NMF president. "We're pleased to be working again with Valspar to help bring the Minnesota Beautiful project to our communities."

Awards of free paint, stains or sealants will be made by Valspar and NMF for restoration or beautification efforts that best meet eligibility criteria. Selection will be based on the visual impact of the proposed projects, potential advantages to the public, volunteer participation and support, intended use of the restored building, and benefit to underprivileged persons.

"Valspar is pleased to renew its commitment to northwest Minnesota," said Gwen Leifeld, Valspar Foundation manager. "Picture-It-Painted provides us with a way of reaching out to people in the region and making a visible impact on their public places and spaces. We look forward to partnering with the Northwest Minnesota Foundation to offer the program for another year."

Qualifying projects might include, but are not limited to, those involving historic structures, senior citizen and community centers, facilities for the disabled, publicly owned buildings, and murals or other visual-impact designs. Projects that would not qualify include those involving denominational churches, city maintenance, private properties or school projects (except for murals).

Picture-It-Painted applications are due by March 1, and awards will be announced March 22.

"Many towns and organizations will compete for this chance to renew or preserve a community asset," said Ostrem. "We encourage all applications and appreciate the spirit shown for the projects."

Applications are available by calling Peggy Crandall at 1-800-659-7859.

Students to survey residents on usage of high-speed Internet

On Wednesday, Jan. 19, students representing the Center for Rural Development at Mankato State University will begin a survey of Thief River Falls residents and businesses that examines usage of high-speed Internet.

The citywide survey, which will be conducted by telephone, is based on a new project in the community. Community Development Director Michael Moore explained that the new project stems from a grant Thief River Falls received from the Blandin Foundation of Grand Rapids that focuses on enhancing the usage of broadband high-speed Internet usage.

Moore said the Blandin Foundation has determined that rural economic development becomes much more of a reality when linked to high-speed Internet usage. The more usage, the more economic development takes place. One of the first steps in determining how high-speed Internet services can be enhanced within Thief River Falls; therefore, is to determine how it is currently being used, and by whom. Moore explained that's why the survey is being conducted.

Moore asks citizens for their cooperation. He said businesses and residences will be contacted.

Our Health Crisis and the Farm Economy

Author to discuss health, food and the rural economy at area events

There's no disputing that a healthful diet improves physical health. But nutrition author/speaker Sally Fallon, Washington, D.C., takes that concept beyond the status quo. According to Fallon, a nutrient-dense diet of food produced by natural methods can alleviate many health problems, and be a boon to the rural economy.

Fallon, co-author of the new book "Eat Fat, Lose Fat," will be making three appearances in the region:

- Bismarck State College, Student Union in the Missouri Room on Feb. 13 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The presentation is free and open to the public. She will discuss "The Oiling of America: How the False Cholesterol Theory Caused Americans to Abandon Traditional Whole Foods," and "How to Keep the Value-Added Down on the Farm: How Traditional Processing can Bring Prosperity to the Farmer and Farming Communities."
- Northern Plains Sustainable Agriculture Society (NPSAS) Winter Conference, Feb. 10-12, at the Ramkota Inn and Conference Center, Aberdeen, S.D. Fallon will be the keynote speaker and workshop presenter at the free public presentation Thursday, February 10, at 7:30 p.m.
- Shooting Star Casino, seminar on traditional diets sponsored by the White Earth Tribal and Community College, Mahnomen, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday, Feb 14.

"I consider it a health crisis when we have epidemics in asthma, obesity, arthritis and learning disabilities," says Fallon. "It is a health crisis when one person in three is expected to get cancer, and when one in two suffers from heart disease."

Fallon, an honor graduate of Stanford University and the University of California at Los Angeles, became interested in nutrition some 30 years ago, inspired by the work of Dr. Weston A. Price, who traveled the world studying isolated populations of healthy indigenous peoples and their diets.

"Weston Price found that isolated peoples eating truly traditional foods were extremely healthy," says Fallon. "They did not suffer from diseases such as cancer or heart disease."

Fallon encourages consumers to acquire healthful, nutrient-dense foods through wise supermarket shopping and—as much as it is practically possible—by buying farm-fresh food directly from "farmers who are doing humane mixed farming."

"It's my goal to see every household in America tied to a farm and getting at least part of their food directly from a farmer," she said. "I believe there are tremendous opportunities for community-supported farms to supply families with milk, meat, eggs and chicken," she said. "Community-supported agriculture offers the potential to supply good incomes to farmers. I'm convinced it's the wave of the future."

For more information about the WAPF, visit www.westonaprice.org or call (202) 333-4325 for a free brochure. For more information about NPSAS and its winter conference, visit www.npsas.org or call (701) 883-4304.

Minnesota NFO re-elects officers

On Jan. 8 at Sauk Centre, Bob Arndt of Echo was re-elected to his seventh year as state president of the Minnesota National Farmers Organization (NFO) at the annual re-organization meeting of its state board.

Arndt and his wife, Sigi, operate a 400-acre cash grain farm near Echo. He joined NFO in 1962. Through the years, he has held a variety of jobs and positions with NFO. At one time, he was national vice president, and in the past, was also state president. He and his wife have two sons, Robert and Preston.

Steve Koering of Fort Ripley now begins his third year as vice president of the organization. He is a second generation NFO member and has been married 16 years. He and his wife, Michelle, have three children, ages 14, 13 and 12. He milks about 60 cows and farms with his father, Leonard. Koering is the Eighth District NFO chairman as well as the Crow Wing County NFO chairman. He has been on the NFO Dairy Board a number of times and is a member of the Midwest Dairy Association of Crow Wing County.

Carmen Fernholz of Madison was re-elected secretary of the state organization, and this will be his fifth year in that position. He and his wife operate 350 acres of certified organic crops. He is also vice-president of Organic Farmers Agency for Relationship Marketing (OFARM), a marketing agency made up of eight organizations, including the NFO.

Bruce Zeidler of Eagle Bend was re-elected state treasurer for his sixth term. Zeidler and his wife have two children, and operate a dairy and crop farm.

He and his wife, Pat, have four boys and one girl. His son, Paul, is involved in the farming operation. He is also the Upper Midwest Dairy Chairman for NFO.

Schilling replaces Leander Wagner of Elko, but Wagner will remain on the state board as a trustee.

John Zschetzsche of Mountain Lake was re-appointed public relations director. Other trustees on the board are Greg Klinkner of Sleepy Eye and Sue Niesen of Delano.

Other members of the state board, not already mentioned are National Directors Joe Neaton of Watertown and Mark Rohr of Bluffton; First District President Roy Loken of Rollingstone; and Second District President Paul Sobocinski of Wabasso.

NFO members from Minnesota are attending the national NFO convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., this week. The 2005 state convention will be held in December.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

The recent cold spell changed my life, probably for good.

For the past few years, I have burned wood in a little J.C. Penney stove in my basement. The wood fire made the upstairs floor warm on the feet and helped the furnace along, but it didn't take any more wood than what I could snitch from my father's woodpile back at the place.

For my new house, I got one of those wood boilers that sits outside. Pipes run from the stove across the yard into the floor of the house. If the stove isn't fired up, an electric boiler takes over.

When both boilers got cranked a few weeks ago, I determined to keep the wood stove going to avoid heating a half-insulated house with expensive electricity.

About the same time, Dad showed a sudden concern about the disappearance of his wood. "Have you seen that nice pallet of ash?" he asked one day. I had to admit that I had burned the whole works.

Dad showed chagrin, and the cold, hard truth hit home: If I was going to feed my new stove, I was going to have to saw the wood myself.

Wood supply is no problem. Near the new house stands an enormous pile of oak logs from when we cleared land for the house this summer. Most visitors said the pile should last me three years.

From the pile, I sawed up two pickup loads stacked high. They lasted one week. And I was plenty sore.

During that week, this mechanical idiot learned how to sharpen a chainsaw. I learned how to tighten the chain. I learned how to fill the saw with oil/gas mix without spilling - most of the time.

I also learned that even if the firebox is big enough to take a five-foot log, you still have to be able to lift the thing and get it in the stove.

I am not the governor of California. In high school, coaches took one look at me and knew they had a student manager. Wrestling those logs into the firebox and pushing them to the back to make room for more logs has pushed my limited athletic limits to the limit.

Then the temperatures plunged. The house still couldn't be insulated. The last set of windows refused to arrive. The stove's appetite for wood became insatiable.

You probably noticed last week that the weather map showed that low temperatures in Rindal, Minn., were two degrees warmer than the rest of the area. That is because my stove was heating the entire countryside.

During the cold spell, the stove ate at least 600 pounds of wood per day. I sawed, sharpened, wrestled and froze for a good week, and there still wasn't a wood pile to show for it.

As the result of the cold spell, I am sore and bruised. Half of the huge pile of oak that was going to last me three years is gone. All my jackets smell like smoke from the time spent inside the firebox wrestling logs on a bed of hot coals.

My gloves smell like gasoline fumes. My face is lush red, either from burns or frostbite, I am not sure. My toes are sore from dropped logs. My hands are beat up from off-target log tosses.

If I make it through this without a hospital stay, I think I will have completed the woodsman equivalent of boot camp.

Has my inaugural woodsman experience built character? Has it made me a better person? Or has it just kept my electric bill down?

It is too early to tell. My language has gone downhill, I know that. Perhaps rather than building character, sawing my own wood has made me one of those people they call "quite a character."

Once the house is insulated, things should calm down. The rest of the oak on the farm will be safe from my chainsaw. My back will recover.

School News & Views

Back to normal

January has lived up to its reputation so far - snow and cold. Now we need that January thaw sometime in the next couple weeks. It is good to see a snow cover in the fields and snow on the trails and in the ditches so the snowmobiles can travel. I'd like to remind all parents to be sure their children are bundled up before heading off to school. We never know when we can be caught outside or stranded somewhere and need the extra clothes, hats, mittens, and insulated boots. I also remind parents that if you feel the weather is too severe for your child or children to go to school, even if we have not cancelled school on any particular day, it is your decision whether to send them to school or to call the school office and the transportation department to report that you are keeping them home.

Schedules have returned to normal following the holidays and the World Junior Hockey Tournament. Normal, however, does not mean slower. There are many things going on in all the schools. We are preparing for (and in some cases already involved in) the next round of testing in schools. I remind you that we have high stakes testing for students in many grades from grade three through 10 and 11 that are mandated by state law and federal law. We also test many students in those grade levels with our Northwest Evaluation Association tests that allow us to make critical teaching decisions that effect what and how we teach to the needs of individuals in our classrooms.

Our normal schedule also means that we have evening activities going on nearly every night except Wednesday during the week, oftentimes with several activities on the same night. It provides many opportunities for you, our public, to see our students perform, but more importantly it provides opportunities for our students to learn from a variety of activities how to apply information they have acquired in a practical sense in their lives. We are blessed to have many such opportunities for our young people, but, on the other hand, we as school people, along with individuals and families, have to be careful that we do not overload any particular individual student with so much that they cannot enjoy their learning and performing experiences and still have a balanced life with family and other activities. The wide variety of opportunities is good in that each individual student can find something they enjoy, but can also be bad in that the tendency for overload is always there for some students. Remember, balance is the key.

Our new school board has had their initial meeting. Officers have been elected, and committees have been assigned for the 2005 calendar year. We welcome Jenni Eriksen-Lane and Troy Bates to the school board. I am sure that both of them will bring new perspectives and ideas to the board and I anticipate having another great year here at ISD 564.

Remember our Web site (www.trf.k12.mn.us). From this Web site, you can access e-mail addresses of all administration and staff. You can also access the mailing address and phone numbers of all our school board members. You can access individual teachers, the activity schedules, lunch menus and many other bits of information.

We are currently learning about our new student information system that has been purchased for the next school year and beyond. As we develop that tool, it will allow us to present even more information about the school and about our students that will be very interesting and helpful for parents and students alike. At the time of full implementation - several months down the road - we anticipate our Web site will also have much more information available to the general public as a public relations service to the community.

Another Web site that may be of interest is for Parents United for Public Schools. This organization is sort of a statewide PTA that is interested in lobbying the legislature in favor of public schools. If you are interested in their efforts, bookmark the site and check their updates from time to time during the legislative session and throughout the year. That Web site is www.parentsunitednetwork.org.

Thanks for all your help and service in providing a high quality education experience for all our students. We strive to be the very best we can as an organization and we need your help and input to do that.

January - National Glaucoma Awareness Month

GLAUCOMA

What is Glaucoma?

Glaucoma causes damage to your optic nerve which is an extension of your brain that is connected to the back of your eye. In glaucoma, the optic nerve is damaged and starts to deteriorate causing early peripheral vision loss and eventually blindness.

Glaucoma usually is asymptomatic early on and can be detected by your eye care professional. Some signs and symptoms may include blurred vision, halos around lights, reddening of eyes, severe eye pain, and possibly nausea and vomiting. The most common type of glaucoma is known as primary open-angle glaucoma (POAG). In POAG, internal ocular pressures are elevated and elevated pressures left untreated cause Optic nerve damage and vision loss. There are several other types of glaucoma such as low tension glaucoma which is when a person has normal eye pressures, but continues to have optic nerve damage.

Who is affected?

Glaucoma affects approximately 3 million Americans, which ranks it as the second most common vision loss in the United States. Glaucoma affects people of all ages, but the risk increases with a positive family history and aging.

How do I know if I have Glaucoma?

A thorough eye exam is needed to determine if there is a possibility of glaucoma. A thorough eye exam should include a refraction, eye pressure check using Goldmann Tonometry and not the puff of air test (inaccurate), slit-lamp exam, and dilation to determine ocular health. If glaucoma is suspected then there are a battery of tests needed to make the definitive diagnosis. These tests include:
- Pachymetry - determines corneal thickness.
- Visual field testing - determines peripheral vision loss.
- Nerve Fiber Layer Analyzer - determines the nerve fiber layer thickness.
- Fundus Photography - photographic history of optic nerve.
- Gonioscopy - determines if angles are open and not closed.

All of these tests are done by your local eye care professionals at Northwest Eye Center. Once the type of glaucoma has been diagnosed treatment is the next step.

How do you treat Glaucoma?

Initial treatment usually starts with medicated eye drops to lower eye pressures. Surgical intervention is needed when medicated eye drops are not controlling pressures adequately. Although laser and surgical intervention are usually reserved as a final line of treatment, it has become more commonly used as an initial treatment due to its relatively safe and effective ability in lowering pressures.

Now that the holidays have come and gone, we can look back on the memories created. It is great to gather with family and reminisce or talk about the future. Nothing is more rewarding than sitting back and watching all the people that you care most about enjoying themselves, eating traditional holiday food and playing games where everyone is a winner.

This is your family – people in whom you have invested a lot of time, probably some hard-earned cash, and a lot of emotional support to raise them to be the best possible people. You taught them about life, how they should live it, how to raise their families and everything you know about farming and the business of it.

So here's the rub: What happens when you are not there? What will happen to the farm business, your farming partner, your son(s) or daughter(s) when that day comes? Are your thoughts that "they are good people and they will figure something out?" What about your farming partner?. Along with not having your help, there are all the clouded assets to deal with along with the usual weather problems, marketing decisions and everyday occurrences that once had your input.

What do you think the outcome would be if you let your family, with you gone, sit down and solve the "equal isn't fair and fair isn't equal" equation without a road map of your making? What will be the outcome for your loved ones and your business that you have worked so hard to establish and maintain? Will the family gathering that we just experienced this past holiday season still take place, or will your hard work and emotions be lost because you didn't plan for the future?

I know what some of you may be thinking, "It's my business, it's my farm and I can do whatever I want with it." I'm not disputing that fact at all, but lack of planning will have an end result and it might not be the one you were envisioning.

Your "moving on plan" can be done now with a minimal investment in time and money or it can be left to the judicial system to take its "fair share" and make the decisions for you and your family.

At Northland Community and Technical College, the Farm Business Management Program (FBMP) is a great aid in providing needed financial information in drawing up a succession plan. Through the use of farm financial analysis computer software, a detailed balance sheet and long-range cash flow can be a starting point for getting the job done.

Get help preparing your financial input for your succession plan. Contact the FBMP at 1-800-959-6282, or e-mail me at jon.christensen@northlandcollege.edu. Think of it as the "ultimate gift" for your family.

ACTIVITIES

Teddy Bear Picnic

Have you ever had a picnic with teddy bears? Spread out a blanket or tablecloth on the floor. Fill a large basket with plastic cups, plates and toy foods. Encourage your child to remove the items from the basket and serve a picnic to his or her teddy bears. After the picnic, the child can return the items to the basket.

Your child can also be a teddy bear with the following project and have his or her own picnic. Cut a strip of posterboard that will serve as a headband and attach brown construction paper circles for ears. Then fit the headband around the child's head and secure the ends with tape. Your child can pretend to be a teddy bear as he or she wears the headband. The following song can be sung at the end of the picnic:

Little Bear

(Tune: "Are You Sleeping?")

Little bear, little bear,
Go to sleep, go to sleep.
Close your little eyes now.
Close your little eyes now.
Go to sleep, go to sleep.

Careful Confrontation

Every family will experience conflict. This we know. What we may not know is how to handle this conflict. Studies on anger suggest that effective steps in dealing with anger and conflict involve appropriate expression and a readiness to deal with the issues that caused the anger, in other words, "careful" or "caring" confrontation. You may have to train yourself to think differently and this in turn can show your children how to handle their anger and conflict.

Look behind the anger. Consider what is causing the anger rather than focusing on the anger itself. Anger is usually a secondary emotion. For example, you or your spouse may feel angry when your child misbehaves in public. But first, you probably felt frustrated or embarrassed. Or your child may feel angry when a playmate takes his toy, but first he may have felt helpless or taken advantage of.

Listen carefully when someone else shares or reports their anger to you. Listen for feelings other than the anger. By listening for and trying to identify all the feelings, a more helpful response can be made. This is crucial. We all experience a deeply felt desire to be heard and understood. When no one seems to understand, anger can escalate. On the other hand, when someone listens carefully and tries to hear and understand, anger diminishes. Be willing to look for other feelings behind the anger. As you do this, you will show your children by your example, how to do the same.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Put into words what you think is causing your child's anger. For example, "When your brother takes your toys, you feel angry because he didn't ask you first."

Ryan Josephson, Lincoln High School

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

Good times at The Times

Ryan Josephson, a Lincoln High School junior, now has a clue about what it's like in the world of printed news. From Nov. 17, 2004 through Jan. 14, Josephson had the opportunity to learn first-hand the journalistic process, as an intern at The Times and Northern Watch newspapers' building.

"My experience at the Times has been both fun and educationally enriching," said the ruggedly handsome and modest Josephson. "Everyone is friendly and the atmosphere is busy yet comfortable. I've witnessed personally how informing the public about local and regional news can be hectic or calm, enthralling or dull, based on (the subject matter). I've developed a greater understanding and appreciation for journalists and the importance of their career."

Under the tutelage of The Times/Northern Watch editor and reporters, the TRF native proofread news stories and accompanied reporters in the field. In addition, he was given the honor of writing real stories and taking real photos for the two locally published papers. "I've become the 'man behind the byline,'"(whatever that means) the writing-inclined lad remarked. Liking the sound of his own voice, Josephson added, "There are many facets to creating a newspaper..." Blah blah blah. Anyway – "It's really interesting to see how a story progresses, from the collecting of the information to the final presentation to the public. For every story you see in print, there's a story behind it – the journalist's story." He didn't stop there, commenting that it is often easy to overlook the fact that journalists have lives of their own, while they contend with illuminating the populace with the turning times (Edited for length). "I had ...lots... of fun..."

Finally, Josephson concluded, "I think that any student with aspirations in journalism can benefit well from an internship at The Times. I know...I have."

...Thanks to the mysterious stranger

Who was that mysterious stranger? Was it the Lone Ranger? Was it Superman? Well, it wasn't exactly one of those masked men. I'm just saying that because I couldn't see the person at all. He was in the cab of one of those little skid loader machines with the plow on the front and I couldn't see through the windows.

But do you know what this person did? He plowed out our alley and our driveways last Wednesday. Yes, he came, he plowed, then he went off down the alley on his merry way, west on First Street, and away. I don't think it was anybody from our block. I guess it was just a stranger, passing through.

Whoever it was, it was a really nice thing to do. I had watched the snow fall most of the day and dreaded trying to dig myself out that evening. I knew it had to be done, because it was going to get colder and colder and would be really hard to shovel if I waited because it would be frozen solid.

When I came home from work Wednesday, I was surprised to see my next-door neighbor's parking area being cleared of snow with a loader snowplowing machine. I was envious and wished I had one of those. (But who am I kidding - I wouldn't know how to work it anyway.)

I went into the house to change clothes and prepared to shovel snow myself. Imagine my surprise when I saw that same skid loader pushing snow across the alley from me. Now I was really envious. Everybody was getting plowed out. I figured whoever was doing it would never want to do the parking area in back of my house. It was too big for anyone to do out of the goodness of his or her heart. No, I didn't expect mine would get cleaned out.

But it wasn't - the area in back of my house - too big, I mean. And he did it. Whoever was driving the loader had goodness in his heart, and he pushed all the snow in my driveway away. In no time at all, it was clean as a whistle.

He was still at it when I went out to start shoveling the sidewalks. I waved and smiled, but I couldn't see in the windows of that machine, so I don't know if he noticed I appreciated what he had done.

So I just wanted to say, masked man, Lone Ranger, Superman or whoever, I surely do appreciate what you did last week. Next time you come plowing leave your name and address, and I'll bake you a loaf of bread or make you some cookies or a pie. I appreciate people with goodness in their hearts, and I thank you for the help.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I just got an engagement ring. After the wedding do I need to change my name with Social Security?

A: Congratulations. The name on your Social Security card should be the name you use at work so that earnings can be properly recorded to your earnings record. Along the same theme, nicknames and titles, such as Mrs. or Dr., are not used on your social security card. Everyone working should make sure their Social Security card has their correct name and that employer records match.

To replace or change the name on your Social Security Number (SSN) card, contact your local office directly or download form SS-5 (Application for a Social Security Card) and instructions at http://www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber. Evidence needed for SSN name changes has gotten more detailed over the last few months. If using one document it must clearly show your former name, new name, and also include at least one other piece of information, such as your date of birth, age, social security number or parents names that can be matched against existing Social Security records.

Current North Dakota marriage certificates generally show the brides former and new name plus her age so they can be used to change SSA records. Minnesota marriage certificates generally show only former and new names but not other information. They are no longer enough to change the SSA record. In this situation two documents, one for the former and one in the new name, are needed each with the information mentioned above.

Q: Do many people depend on Social Security retirement income?

A: Yes. Social Security benefits were expected to supplement pensions and personal savings, never to provide full retirement income. Yet, as a percentage of benefits received relative to total income, SSA benefits are very important. In 2002, the most recent year for which this national information is available, 90 percent of married couples and unmarried people aged 65 or older, received Social Security benefits. SSA was the major source of income for this age range, providing at least 50 percent of total income for 66 percent of aged beneficiaries. Social Security provided 90 percent of income for 34 percent of this group and SSA benefits were the only source of income for 22 percent of beneficiaries aged 65 or older. SSA statistical information is available on the policy section of the agency Web site. Go to http://www.socialsecurity.gov/policy to see what is available.

MDH joins national effort to alert families to dangers of radon

You can't see it. You can't smell it. But thousands of Minnesota homes have potentially harmful levels of radon gas, which is the second leading cause of lung cancer in the United States.

That is why the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has joined the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in a major effort to inform Americans about the dangers of radon exposure and the need to identify and fix radon problems in their homes. In conjunction with National Radon Action Month in January, MDH and its partners are conducting radon awareness events and testing throughout the state.

National Radon Action Month kicked off in January with a presidential message from the White House asking Americans to take preventive action on this health risk. In Minnesota, activities include informational booths at home and health shows, distribution of radon test kits at a reduced cost and radon-resistant new construction training for builders.

Radon is a naturally occurring, invisible, odorless gas that is harmlessly dispersed in outdoor air, but when trapped in buildings, can be harmful at elevated levels. It is present at elevated levels in about 5 percent of Minnesota homes, which compares with only 7 percent of homes nationally. Major studies have indicated that exposure to elevated levels of radon causes lung cancer in humans.

"The science on radon has ben formidable over the years, but never have we had such overwhelming scientific consensus and robust data to support earlier findings about the harmful effects of radon exposure," said Minnesota Health Commissioner Dianne Mandernach.

A National Academy of Sciences (NAS) report in February 1998 confirmed that radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer in the United States. A more recent EPA report released in June 2003 states that radon causes 21,000 lung cancer deaths each year. "However," said Dale Dorschner, MDH indoor air unit supervisor, "because you can't see or smell radon, people tend to minimize the health effects and ignore the possibility that it might exist at elevated levels in their homes."

"Solving some environmental issues requires extensive study and action by government agencies, but the radon problem is different," said Bharat Mathur, acting administrator of EPA's Region 5 in Chicago. "It's actually quite simple for people to protect their families from this health hazard. National Radon Action Month is a great reminder for all of us to check our homes for radon."

Using simple and inexpensive kits, homeowners can test for the presence of radon in their homes and, if it is present, take steps to fix the problem. Radon kits are available at city and county health departments, hardware stores, home improvement stores, other retail outlets, or directly from a laboratory. Many are priced under $20. Information on how to purchase a radon detector is available from MDH at its radon Web site. (http://www.health.state.mn.us/divs/eh/indoorair/radon/index.html).

Radon problems can be fixed by qualified contractors, at a cost similar to that of many other common home repairs such as painting or having a new water heater installed (anywhere from $500 to about $2,500, average cost around $1,200.) A list of qualified contractors can be obtained by contacting the MDH indoor air unit or visiting the MDH radon Web site.

Potential radon problems can be built out of homes by taking a few inexpensive steps during construction. These steps include using clean gravel and a layer of plastic under the concrete slab, and running a pipe from underneath the basement floor and venting it up through the roof. At an estimated cost of $500, these cost saving measures have been shown to reduce radon about 50 percent and can save the average homeowner hundreds of dollars and lower the risk of lung cancer, the deadliest of all cancers.

"Radon is a serious public health hazard," Dorschner said, "but it has a straightforward solution: Test your home, and if necessary, take action to keep radon out. If you are building a new home, require that your builder uses radon-resistant techniques to help protect the long-term health and safety of your family."

For more information on radon, radon testing, radon mitigation and building new homes radon-resistant, call MDH at 651-215-0909 or 1-800-798-9050 or visit the MDH radon Web site. For more information on radon training for builders, call the University of Minnesota, College of Continuing Education at 612-624-6251 or visit its Web site (http://www.cce.umn.edu/series/radon/).

Publication provides primer on commercial loan documentation

A new publication provides a primer for small business owners on the terms and covenants used in commercial loan transactions. "Loan Documentation: An Introduction for Small Businesses" is designed to aid readers in understanding these terms and covenants and to help them in framing questions for legal and business professionals. The publication is a collaborative effort of the Small Business Assistance Office at the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED) and the Twin Cities law firm of Krass Monroe, P.A.

"The number and kind of documents associated with finalizing a commercial loan may be overwhelming," said Charles Schaffer, director of the Small Business Assistance office. "Among the most perplexing of these are the representations and warranties that a business must make before a loan is funded. This book helps readers better understand these complexities."

The publication offers business borrowers a basic understanding of the common types of representations, warranties and covenants, what they mean, how they work and what happens if a borrower is unable to satisfy a specific covenant. Because the legal issues summarized in the book are both complex and distilled, the authors write, "The information here is not intended as and should not be relied upon as legal advice. Borrowers of any size should always work with their personal legal counsel in all matters relating to obtaining loans or credit from any source."

"Loan Documentation: An Introduction for Small Businesses" is available without charge in printed form from the offices of DEED and Krass Monroe, P.A., as well as on their Web sites.

The address for DEED is: DEED, 1st National Bank Building, 332 Minnesota St., Suite E200, St. Paul, MN 55101, Attn: Small Business Assistance Office; or call 651-296-3871 or 1-800-657-3858; or log on to: www.mnsbao.com.

This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

National Nurse Anesthetists Week is January 23-29

As the demand for anesthesia services expands beyond hospitals into physicians' offices and other nontraditional settings, surgical patients can rest assured that anesthesia has never been safer, said Linda Huber, a certified registered nurse anesthetist (CRNA) and president of the Minnesota Association of Nurse Anesthetists (MANA).

Huber and other MANA members will join CRNAs across the country in celebrating a history of exceptional patient care and anesthesia safety during National Nurse Anesthetists Week, Jan. 23-29.

"Nurse anesthetists have been providing high-quality anesthesia care for more than 125 years," Huber said.

Nurse anesthesia was established in the late 1800s as the first clinical nursing specialty in response to the growing need surgeons had for anesthetists. Mayo Clinic is considered to be the home of some of the most significant developments in modern anesthesia at the turn of the last century. Nurse Alice Magaw developed advanced anesthesia techniques with Drs. Will and Charles Mayo, and she went on to document 14,000 anesthetics that were delivered without a fatality. At that time, that was something that was almost unheard of. Her efforts to modernize anesthesia and make it safer earned her the title "mother of anesthesia" from Charles Mayo.

"Patient safety is, and always has been, the number one priority for nurse anesthetists," said Huber. "We administer to the patient's physical and emotional needs, offer reassurance and comfort, and stay right by the patient's side throughout the surgery. These are the hallmarks of a CRNA."

Huber noted that today's improved technology, better pharmaceuticals and the increased education for nurse and physician anesthetists has brought anesthesia patient safety to an all-time high. Studies show a dramatic reduction in anesthesia mortality rates in the past 20 years to the present low of 0.000004, according to the MANA.

"Nurse anesthetists are the main providers of obstetrical anesthesia in the United States, helping thousands of mothers enjoy pain-free deliveries each year, and they provide the majority of all anesthesia services in the country's rural areas," said Huber. "In fact, in Greater Minnesota, nurse anesthetists are the sole anesthesia providers in 70 percent of all hospitals."

Nurse anesthetists practice in every kind of setting in which anesthesia is delivered, including traditional hospital surgical suites, obstetrical delivery rooms, doctors' offices, ambulatory surgical centers, and medical facilities of the U.S. Military, Public Health Service and Veterans Administration.

"I can only envision that the quality of anesthesia care will continue to improve in this century," said Huber. "And you can bet that nurse anesthetists will be at the forefront of the effort to ensure patient comfort and safety."

Your identity is safe, or is it?

Last year, over 7 million Americans were victims of identity theft. Identity theft occurs when someone uses your personal information such as your name, Social Security number, credit card number or other identifying information, without your permission to commit fraud or other crimes.

People whose identities have been stolen can spend months or years – and their hard-earned money – cleaning up the mess thieves have made of their good name and credit record. In the meantime, victims may lose job opportunities, be refused loans, education, housing or cars, or even get arrested for crimes they didn't commit.

How do thieves get your information? They go through your trashcan, steal your mail or your wallet, trick you into giving them the information over the telephone or by e-mail, or steal it from a loan or credit application you've filled out.

And, it's happening right here in our own communities. Duane Emmel, certified consumer credit counselor at Consumer Credit Counseling Service (CCCS) of The Village Family Service Center in Fargo, N.D., said, "A case recently hit the news where mail was stolen from mailboxes in a local apartment building. Another local woman's identity was stolen by a neighbor kid after she wrote a check at his mother's garage sale. We all need to take this problem very seriously."

CCCS of The Village Family Service Center offers the following suggestions for protecting our identity.

1. Order a copy of your credit report to check for inaccuracies.

2. Report lost or stolen credit cards as soon as you realize they are gone.

3. Place passwords on your credit card, bank and phone accounts. Avoid using easily available information like your mother's maiden name, your birth date, the last four digits of your Social Security Number (SSN) or your phone number, or a series of consecutive numbers. When you're asked for your mother's maiden name on an application for a new account, try using a password instead.

4. Secure personal information in your home, especially if you have roommates, employ outside help, or are having service work done in your home.

5. Ask about information security procedures in your workplace. Find out who has access to your personal information and verify that your records are kept in a secure location. Ask about the disposal procedures for those records as well.

6. Make sure others don't see or hear calling card numbers, identification numbers or passwords.

7. Don't give out personal information on the telephone, through the mail, or over the Internet unless you've initiated the contact or are sure you know who you're dealing with. Identity thieves can be skilled liars, and may pose as representatives of banks, Internet service providers (ISPs), or even government agencies to get you to reveal identifying information.

8. Guard your mail and trash from theft. Deposit outgoing mail in post office collection boxes or at your local post office instead of an unsecured mailbox. Remove mail from your mailbox promptly. If you're planning to be away from home and can't pick up your mail, call your local Post Office to ask for a vacation hold. To thwart a thief who may pick through your trash or recycling bins, tear or shred your charge receipts, copies of credit applications or offers, insurance forms, physician statements, checks and bank statements, and expired charge cards.

9. Keep your Social Security card in a secure place and give your SSN only when absolutely necessary. Ask to use other types of identifiers when possible. If your state uses your SSN as your driver's license number, ask to substitute another number.

10. Limit the identification information and the number of credit and debit cards that you carry to what you'll actually need.

11. Keep your purse or wallet in a safe place at work.

For more tips on keeping your personal information safe from identity thieves, contact the Identity Theft Resource Center, www.idetheftcenter.org, or Call for Action, 1-866-434-6854, www.callforaction.org.

decided that the donation would be made to the international chapter of the Red Cross. Students learned that of the many charities participating in the relief operation, the Red Cross had the best record in terms of its donations making it directly to survivors.

In terms of the disaster relief for victims of this tsunami, $1,000 probably isn't very much, but as lessons go, it was a very valuable donation.

PACER Center receives grant to help stop bullying

The Parent Advocacy Coalition for Education Rights (PACER) Center has been awarded a grant from the Robins, Kaplan, Miller & Ceresi Fund of The Minneapolis Foundation to develop a bullying prevention Web site with special emphasis on children with disabilities. Minnesota Twins players and other celebrities are also adding video segments to the site.

Children with disabilities are particularly vulnerable to physical, verbal and social abuse from their peers. Through this grant, PACER will build an innovative Web site with information for second to sixth graders who are being bullied and those who witness bullying. Children, schools and other partners will help create and implement the site, which include contests to submit artwork and stories about bullying, and animation.

"PACER receives many calls from families whose children with disabilities are targets of bullying," said Paula Goldberg, executive director of PACER Center. "We are delighted with the support from Robins, Kaplan, Miller & Ceresi in the effort to prevent bullying and to improve the quality of life for all children."

Bullying keeps 160,000 children home from school each day in this country, according to the PACER Center. The topic has been the focus of several media reports recently and is expected to be addressed in the Minnesota Legislature this year.

PACER Center, a parent center for families of children and young adults with all disabilities, also has developed a bullying prevention curriculum for parents and professionals. In 2005, PACER will produce a bullying intervention book for parents.

For more information, contact PACER at 1-800-537-2237 or visit its Web site (www.pacer.org).

The BSA is the foremost youth program of character development and leadership training in the nation. Boy Scouts serve America's communities and families with quality, values-based programs, and Arctic Cat has supported those programs with product donations the past 15 years.

Arctic Cat CEO, Chris Twomey said, "We wanted to donate a snowmobile in recognition of all the volunteer hours put forth from adult leaders. These scouting programs help shape the lives of our youth's future. We are proud to be a part of that."

The T660 Bearcat is all business, offering reverse, mirrors and a high windshield. The two-passenger seat with backrest detaches for extra storage and the four-stroke T660 motor delivers plenty of power for getting your work done.

All-day Kindergarten on TRF agenda

in School District 564 to students testing at the lowest skills level, also supports their conclusion. Teachers not only say they "see" the difference, but say test results support their conclusion that these students show greater improvement.

The teachers argue that it also gives students more time for hands-on discovery, for experimenting, making mistakes, reading, and more time for deeper, richer, more developmentally appropriate learning.

The teachers haven't developed a specific curriculum for all-day kindergarten, yet, but kindergarten teacher Susan Olson said she would probably spend the morning teaching skills, and the afternoon on practicing those skills. She also said that instead of the current 30 minutes of reading, reading time would more than double.

Teachers say they have the support of parents. Local surveys conducted last year, show that there is a high parent-interest in all-day every day kindergarten.

The cost

Based on current census information, there are 178 preschool students eligible for kindergarten next year. Typically, 20 of these children attend St. Bernards and two to five attend St. Johns Christian Academy. That leaves Challenger with 153 students.

Currently, Challenger has four full-time kindergarten teachers teaching eight half-day sections, and 1.5 extended-day kindergarten teachers.

Teachers and staff at Challenger propose that the School District add three teachers and five educational assistants for all-day, every day kindergarten. According to the information they distributed to the board, this would cost roughly $158,000. They also said the transportation department would realize a savings of between $30,000 and $50,000.

All-day every day kindergarten would impact people other than parents, children and teachers. Teachers say it would impact transportation and food service in the District, daycare providers, and LatchKey programs. They noted that businesses that have employees with young children may also benefit.

The ultimate goal of all-day, every day kindergarten is not to produce earlier readers, writers, and scientists, although for some children, this may be the outcome. The goal, teachers said, is to develop competent five- and six-year-old children who will subsequently be better prepared to meet the challenges of first grade.

The board of education took the information under advisement. It will soon begin looking at budget items for the 2005-2006 school year.

Direct Deposit

Jodi Bergman of payroll, shared plans to implement direct deposit for all employees working for the School District. The School Districts issues about 500 paychecks every payday. Currently, 350 are direct deposit. Bergman said she hopes to have everyone on direct deposit by July 1.

New Year, New Board

Jenni Eriksen-Lane and Troy Bates took their seats on the board of education Monday night. Lane and Bates were elected last November and are replacing Jean Larson and Mike Barry who decided not to run for re-election. Steve Young, who was the third candidate on the School District 564 board of education ballot, ran unopposed. Monday night, fellow board members cast ballots for officers, and Young was named chairperson of the board. The other officers are Randy Twistol, vice chairperson, Barb Kalinoski, clerk, and Mike Spears, treasurer.

During the organizational meeting, several "house-keeping" measures were discussed and approved. Salaries for the board - $4,000 for chairperson, $3,450 for vice chairperson, $3,200 for clerk, $3,200 for treasurer, and $3,000 for directors - will not change this year. The board of education designated the Thief River Falls Times as the official newspaper for school board business. It also designated meeting times. As a general rule, all meetings begin at 6:30 p.m. and will take place on the second and fourth Monday of every month. It meets in the boardroom at the District Service Center. The board also discussed and approved various committee assignments.

MnDOT cautions property owners about snow removal

Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) would like to remind everyone, including commercial snow removal operators, that it is against state law to deposit snow onto a public roadway. Dumping or plowing snow unto a roadway can create a slippery area, frozen rut or bump, which has the potential to contribute to a motor vehicle or pedestrian accident.

Minnesota Statute 160.27 and many local ordinances prohibit the plowing, blowing, shoveling or otherwise placing of snow from sidewalks, driveways and parking lots onto public roadways, which can include the ditch and right-of-way in certain situations. The public is cautioned that violations are misdemeanors and civil liability can extend to both the property owner and the person or company who placed the snow improperly.

To determine the proper placement of snow and minimize your inconvenience when a snowplow comes along after you've cleared your driveway, Mn/DOT offers the following tip:

The technique is to place as much snow as possible from the end of your driveway downstream in the direction of traffic. Next is to clear an area upstream from your driveway to form an open "pocket".

The result is that much of the snow pushed by the plow truck will empty into this pocket and less will wind up in your driveway entrance. The pocket does need to be maintained throughout the winter.

Mn/DOT cautions anyone working close to a roadway to watch for oncoming traffic and warns drivers to be alert to people clearing snow.

State receives EPA grant for Brownfields Projects

The Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED) recently received a $500,000 year-end bonus in the form of a supplemental grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The grant helps capitalize a revolving loan fund from which DEED offers loans to clean up hazardous substances from properties around the state and in the metro area, resulting in the creation of new jobs, more taxable income, a cleaner environment and improved livability in the core metropolitan area and in suburban communities and around the state.

DEED was one of three organizations to receive the supplemental grants in EPA Region 5, which includes Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Other recipients were Cuyahoga County, Ohio, and the Ohio Department of Development.

The $500,000 supplemental Brownfields Cleanup Revolving Loan Fund (BCRLF) grant comes on top of an earlier $1 million EPA grant to DEED's Contaminated Site Cleanup Program (CSCP). The CSCP helps to reclaim contaminated property for productive use and restore public confidence in distressed areas. Since its inception in 1995, the CSCP has awarded more than $72 million for cleanup and investigation projects statewide.

"We're glad to supplement the current grant that DEED has, and we feel strongly that the supplemental BCLRF works very well with organizations that have committed their own resources to redeveloping brownfields," said Brooke Furio at the EPA Region 5 Office in Cleveland. "The BCRLF is a great fit with DEED because the organization has a committed program and staff that is dedicated to working on statewide incentives targeted towards the redevelopment of brownfields properties. We look forward to continuing this partnership."

"This is an affirmation of Minnesota's creative and effective leadership in the field of brownfield revitalization," DEED Commissioner Matt Kramer said. "In many ways, Minnesota is ahead of other states. We've been in the game longer than anyone else, and we've clearly shown the wisdom of restoring contaminated sites to productive use."

It was also a new location for the banquet. The event was held at the Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill. Julie Olson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said she anticipates that in the years to come, the annual event will be held at several new locations.

Several awards were presented at the banquet. Grant Wentz was recognized. He served on the Board of Directors from 1999 to 2004, and as a co chair of the business and community issues committee. He will continue to serve as chairman of the business and community issues committee through 2005.

Stewart, former community development director and representative of Jobs Inc., was recognized for helping lead many community projects, grants and initiatives that have been beneficial to the community.

Gunderson, who recently announced his retirement as president of Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC), was awarded the Chairperson's Award. During his presidency at NCTC, Gunderson oversaw significant growth and development at the college that was beneficial to the college and the community. Anderson described Gunderson as a "wonderful ambassador for the city of Thief River Falls."

Nick Bretz, a magician from Park Rapids, provided the entertainment for the 91st Annual Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Banquet, which was held at the Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill. Jim Snyder, one of the victims, took the ribbing well.

Northland women wind up with split

Northland came within 5.4 seconds of completing a weekend Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball sweep on the road, but instead had to settle for a Northern Division split when Mesabi Range pulled out a 67-66 Saturday afternoon win at Virginia. The Pioneers beat Vermilion 75-55 the night before in Ely.

Ahead 38-28 at halftime on the second leg of the trip, Northland was on its way to a sweep. However, Mesabi Range shooters began to find the range and the Norse were within a basket in the final minute.

With a 66-64 lead, Northland had a chance to seal the win at the free throw line with nine seconds left. But two misses and a Mesabi Range rebound kept the Norse in the game.

When Brook Walker took the ball to the basket off a 2-on-1 fast break, the Pioneers followed the instructions of coach Missy Majerus and fouled the shooter. The thinking in that situation, according to Majerus, was to force Mesabi Range to shoot two pressure free throws instead of giving up what would be the tying basket. Even if the gamble resulted in a pair of free throws, Majerus was ready to take her chances in overtime.

However, Walker crossed them up. Despite a shove from behind, she made the basket for the tie. Then completed a game-winning three-point play with the free throw.

"It was a tough one to lose," acknowledged Majerus. "But maybe the loss will do us good. It'll make us refocus. I think it will make us a better team in the long run."

A balanced Northland attack featured Tara Blazejewski with 17 points, Ashley Kujawa 16, Alisa Costin 10 and Kamae Larson 10. Ashley St. Arnold and Eillssa Holst scored 24 and 20 points, respectively, for Mesabi Range.

Northland was 23-for-59 from the field (39 percent) and 13-for-18 at the free throw line. Mesabi Range went 21-for-53 from the floor (40 percent) and 19-for-25 at the line. Costin, Kujawa and Larson grabbed 9 rebounds each as the Pioneers beat the Norse on the boards 40-25. But Northland also topped the turnover charts, 25-20.

Friday, Northland raced to a 49-26 halftime lead and coasted to a 20-point win over Vermilion.

"We played two great first halves in the two games," noted Majerus. "We just need to finish."

With Larson, the team's top scoring and rebound threat on the inside limited to just two minutes of playing time Friday due to illness, Kujawa took advantage of the extra court time and scored a game-high 21 points. Costin was right behind with 20. Shannon Olson joined them in double figures with 10 points. Kujawa and Costin both added eight rebounds to their stat sheet.

Gena Jerich led Vermilion with 11 points.

Northland was 26-for-62 from the field (42 percent) and 11-for-18 at the free throw line, where Vermilion had a 4-for-12 night.

The Pioneers are 2-1 in the Northern Division; 8-7 overall.

The Spuds beat the Prowlers 7-4.

Northland men edge Mesabi Range for a 1-1 weekend...

Pioneers hold on for a win

A basket by Jason Koch and two free throws by Mike Howard in the final seconds enabled Northland to get out of Virginia with a 65-62 Saturday afternoon Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball win over Mesabi Range and a Northern Division split on the road.

Beaten 70-57 Friday night at Vermilion, the Pioneers were facing the prospects of an 0-2 weekend when a 16-point second half Saturday matinee lead turned into a 62-61 final-minute deficit. And with the ball belonging to Mesabi Range, the Northland collapse down the stretch looked all but complete.

However, a turnover and a Jason Koch drive put the Pioneers back on top 63-62 with 23 seconds left.

A Mesabi Range miss was then rebounded by the Pioneers' Mike Howard, who was fouled with 2.5 seconds on the clock. He made both free throws and the Norse didn't come close on a desperation 3-pointer at the end.

"That was a huge win for us," said Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "To pick up a win on a road trip to Vermilion and Mesabi is big."

Northland had a tough time mounting an offense in the weekend opener. "It's the same old story," noted Nikunen. "It's a long trip, and we just don't have the legs when we step on the court."

The Pioneers are 10-6 overall and 2-1 in the Northern Division.

"There's a lot of basketball to be played, but I like where we're at right now," offered Nikunen.

Basketball doubleheaders scheduled for NCTC, LHS

Thief River Falls basketball fans will have the opportunity to catch doubleheaders tonight (Wednesday) at Northland Community and Technical College and Thursday at Lincoln High School.

It will be business as usual at the college, where the Pioneers traditionally feature Minnesota Community College Conference twinbills. Tonight, Northland takes on Northern Division opponent Itasca in a 6 p.m. women's game and an 8 p.m. men's contest.

High school boys and girls teams usually go their own way. But the Prowlers had the two programs paired up twice this week for doubleheaders Tuesday at Roseau and again two days later at home against Crookston.

Thursday's Thief River Falls vs. Crookston match-ups begin with 4:30 p.m. junior varsity games – the girls in the main gym; the boys in the auxiliary gym. At 6 p.m., it's the varsity boys in the main gym and ninth grade girls in the auxiliary gym. At 7:30 p.m., the varsity girls are in the main gym; ninth grade boys play in the auxiliary gym.

Gators beat Prowlers 39-26

Non-pins hurt Thief River Falls more than Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Thursday as the host Gators posted a 39-26 high school wrestling win over the Prowlers.

"We wrestled fairly well," said Thief River Falls coach Kenny Geiser. "We were able to stay away from pins at weights where B/G-MR expected them – especially at 119, 130 and 215, where we have been pinned before by the same wrestlers. But at the same time, we needed pins at 140, 152 and heavyweight, and did not get them."

The Gators had a 7-6 edge in head-to-head matches. The Prowlers surrendered six points on an open-weight forfeit and were also deducted one team point.

Thief River Falls winners were Jordan Engen, 103 pounds; Kyle Iverson, 125; Zach Anderson, 140; Thain Abrahamson, 145; Dan LeDuc, 152; and Andrew Peralta, heavyweight.

The Prowlers took a 5-4 record into a Tuesday double-dual at Park Rapids, where they were scheduled to wrestle the Panthers and New York Mills.

B/G-MR 39, TRF 26

Gators win with defense

Stephen-Argyle presented a challenge, but the unbeaten status of Badger/Greenbush-Middle River remained intact Monday as the Gators beat the Storm 55-39 in girls high school basketball.

The Gators led only 12-11 after one quarter, but opened up a 27-17 halftime spread and maintained a 42-32 third quarter advantage as they pushed their record to 15-0.

"We had a lead, but we couldn't get away from them," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "They play good defense. They did some things that gave us trouble, and we didn't do a very good job adjusting to what they were doing. The good thing is, it's still early, and we've got time to correct our mistakes."

It wasn't the ideal time to play the Storm, according to Neibauer. "I hate Monday games, and they're way too good of a team to play on Monday," he said.

Kierah Kimbrough scored 24 points and Kaley Mekash had 15 to lead the Gators' offense. Jessica Safranski and Michelle Rusling led the Storm with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Gators had a 50 percent 23-for-46 shooting game and were 9-for-15 at the free throw line. The Storm had a 4-for-11 free throw night.

While Neibauer voiced some concern about the Gators' offensive execution against the Storm defenders, he had no complaints about the defense played by his team. "I have a theory," he said. "I figure anytime you hold a team under 40 points you have a pretty good chance to win. And 39 is under 40."

Detroit Lakes freshmen defeat Thief River Falls

Detroit Lakes was a 59-51 winner over Thief River Falls in a Tuesday (Jan. 11) freshman girls basketball game.

The Lakers had quarter leads of 15-8, 31-19 and 47-27.

Kathryn Walrath and Hanna Kainz led the Prowlers with 11 points each. Amanda Lara added 8 points to the Thief River Falls offense.

Grygla-Gatzke utilizes bench to notch wins

Tim Polansky isn't part of the Grygla-Gatzke starting line-up. But that doesn't diminish the value of the 6-0 junior, who came off the bench to score 21 points Friday in the Eagles' 75-62 boys high school basketball road win over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

Polansky could, and probably should start, acknowledged Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. But he said it became apparent early in the 2004-05 season that the Eagles would be stronger, overall, with a rotation that had Polansky coming off the bench. The situation was discussed in a player/coach conference, and Polansky had no problem with the plan.

So far, the strategy has worked just as Johnson hoped it would. Polansky is getting his minutes, and his points, and the Eagles went to 11-1 with the win over the Ponies.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo had an 18-15 lead when the first quarter came to a close, but Grygla-Gatzke went 37-31 at halftime and had a 59-40 third quarter advantage.

"We played well in the two middle quarters," noted Johnson. "We played good defense, and that got us going."

Tomas Loberg matched Polansky's 21-point performance and Andrew Holte added 17 to a Grygla-Gatzke offense that featured 62 percent 30-for-48 shooting from the field.

"We got the ball inside for some good shots," explained Johnson.

The Eagles watched a 19-point lead shrink to a seven-point difference, but points from Polansky and Anderson helped cut off the Ponies' comeback. "We hit some big shots when we really needed them," mentioned Johnson.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo shot 46 percent from the field (25/52) and went 8-for-10 at the free throw line, where Grygla-Gatzke was 14-for-24. The Eagles had a 21-19 rebound edge. The Ponies topped the turnover charts 10-9.

Derik Nelson scored 15 points, Jed Roley 12 and Josh Steer 10 to lead the Warren-Alvarado-Oslo attack.

Eagles beat Huskies second time

Goodridge shooters couldn't find the range in the first half and they watched a 28-12 intermission deficit turn into a 62-43 boys high school basketball loss at the hands of neighboring rival Grygla-Gatzke.

The Huskies also lost to the Eagles 72-25 on opening night, but after snapping a season-long seven-game losing streak with back-to-back wins over Fosston 72-35 and Red Lake County Central 50-35, they figured to make a game out of it in the rematch. "We had been playing pretty well," noted Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson. "We won two straight, and we were shooting pretty well. But we could not buy a bucket in the first half. They (Eagles) shot extremely well, and we didn't."

Goodridge bounced back with a solid 19-point third quarter to stay within 44-31, but when two starters fouled out, the Huskies lost ground down the stretch.

"They had more players left at the end than we did," quipped Mickelson. "They have a nice rotation with players off the bench. They're deeper than we are."

Tomas Loberg scored 16 points to lead a balanced Grygla-Gatzke offense. Cole Sheef of Goodridge led all scorers with 25 points, getting 21 of those in the second half.

Goodridge was 16-for-43 from the field (37 percent). Grygla-Gatzke went 26-for-40 (65 percent). The Huskies were 5-for-10 at the free throw line; the Eagles 9-for-15. Grygla-Gatzke finished with a 25-20 rebound advantage. Goodridge topped the turnover figures 15-13.

The Eagles are 12-1; the Huskies fell to 2-8.

"I thought defensively we did a pretty good job," said Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "We got off to a good start, and that gave us an edge for the rest of the night."

RLCC offense has a tough night in a 66-24 loss to RLF

Red Lake Falls' first quarter offense equalled the game total for Red Lake County Central Monday as the Eagles overwhelmed the Mustangs 66-24 in girls high school basketball.

The winners had quarter leads of 24-7, 37-15 and 52-20.

"They're a better team," acknowledged Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "It's one of those things we're going through right now."

Heidi Matzke scored 19 points to lead the Eagles. Amie Bruggeman had a 13-point game for the Mustangs.

Three quarters of Red Lake Falls pressure defense forced Red Lake County Central into 30 turnovers, and limited the Mustangs 20 field goal attempts. They made six of them (30 percent). The Eagles were 28-for-44 from the floor (55 percent) and turned the ball over only eight times.

The Mustangs, 6-8 for the year, were 12-for-17 at the free throw line, where the Eagles went 6-for-11. Red Lake Falls finished with a 15-10 rebound edge.

Looking for answers on low numbers...

DNR welcomes input on ducks

by John Guenther, Director
DNR Fish, Wildlife Division

What is happening to our ducks?

The short answer is habitat, which continues to decline in quantity and quality across our state.

But it is more complicated than that. Minnesota has a long history as one of our nation's great waterfowl hunting states. Maintaining that status in coming years will require a concerted effort from hunters, conservationists and government agencies that are responsible for wetland and waterfowl habitat.

Hunters and conservationists have made a good start. Today, more than 15,000 acres of wetlands have been restored or protected in cooperation with conservation groups since 2000 and 91,000 acres of wetland habitat that continue to be enhanced by water level management.

In addition, a partnership between the state and federal agencies and non-governmental organizations is growing to accelerate management, enhancement and protection of wetlands and grasslands in Minnesota's prairie pothole region. The DNR has earmarked $1.8 million over the next two years to move this effort forward. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has pledged $1.35 million and The Nature Conservancy, $2 million during the same period. The 36,000-acre Glacial Ridge National Wildlife Refuge, which will eventually include 8,000 acres of wetland near Crookston, is another key product of this growing partnership.

But it is not enough.

Waterfowl habitat continues to decline. Moreover, many hunters left the field this fall wondering if Minnesota's duck hunting tradition is in peril. What follows are answers to the common questions hunters have been asking since autumn.

Why were there fewer ducks over the decoys this year?

It was a combination of factors. First, this fall's weather – the sixth warmest on record, dating back to 1891 - kept ponds and fields clear of ice and snow. Ducks trickled through the state in small flocks rather than migrating in large concentrations ahead of strong weather systems. The mild weather also afforded prime late-season duck habitat in flooded, un-harvested grain fields across southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Ducks stayed in Canada longer than normal. As a result, many hunters had fair hunting in the first 10 days of the season when about 50 percent of our waterfowl harvest occurs - but far less success late in the season.

Second, there were fewer birds to begin with. The number of ducks in the fall population index was down 9 percent, from 10.3 million mallards in 2003 to 9.4 million this year. As a comparison, in 1997-99, the fall-flight index ranged from 12-14 million mallards.

What are you hearing from hunters and waterfowl organizations?

We are hearing mixed reports. Some hunters had relatively good duck hunting, especially during the opening days of the season. Others experienced very poor hunting. Regardless, we want to hear more. Indeed, Commissioner Gene Merriam, Deputy Commissioner Mark Holsten and I agreed some time ago that we need to convene a mini-summit on waterfowl issues. That will likely happen in February. We want to share what we know, listen and harness the energy that is growing about waterfowl and habitat conservation. Part of the summit will focus on Minnesota's situation in relation to other states within the Mississippi Flyway.

Did the ducks avoid Minnesota this year and show up in the Dakotas, Missouri and Arkansas?

The distribution of breeding ducks has shifted farther to the west and south, which means fewer ducks migrate through Minnesota in the fall. This phenomenon is probably a response to excellent wetland and habitat conditions in the Dakotas during recent years.

Most of this fall's surveys and reports showed fewer mallards and scaup in the state this year compared to 2003. In addition, mallards didn't migrate in concentrated flocks. On a positive note, fall surveys showed more ring-necked ducks this season compared to last year. Most of these birds were concentrated on refuge areas.

It's worth noting that other states experienced similar situations. Waterfowl survey data from Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, North Dakota and Louisiana showed fewer ducks in November compared to 2003. Reports from Arkansas, however, indicate higher numbers of mallards and total ducks present in mid November this year compared to 2003.

Why didn't late-season ducks - scaup and northern mallards- come through in November?

As recently as last fall, large concentrations of northern mallards, driven by strong weather systems, arrived in portions of western and southern Minnesota in November. The mild weather conditions this fall, combined with the lower fall-flight index, partially explain the absence of migrating mallards this year.

Wetland conditions were excellent in most areas of the state throughout the season so we were a bit disappointed that mallard numbers were not higher on some of our managed areas in November.

The declining population of scaup continues to perplex to waterfowl biologists across the nation. The continental breeding population has continued to decline and was 27 percent below the long-term average in 2004. In fact, this population has remained below the current long-term average each year since 1984. We remain concerned about the status of the scaup population and continue to search for concrete solutions through ongoing research in Minnesota and elsewhere.

Wouldn't it help to hold the opener later or split the season so hunting would be open when late-migrating ducks finally come through?

A later season opener tends to be more popular in the southern part of Minnesota, where wetlands and shallow lakes tend to freeze later. However, hunters might miss out on opportunities for early season migrants like wood ducks and blue-winged teal statewide. Shallow wetlands and lakes sometimes temporarily freeze early in the fall, when most of Minnesota's annual harvest occurs. A split season could result in loss of hunting opportunity due to freeze-up in both the northern and southern portions of the state.

How does this past season compare with other seasons? Was it really the worst ever?

We won't know the answer until next summer because of the way in which waterfowl harvest research is typically conducted. However, we intend to look into ways to get that data sooner. That means crafting a study that is both accurate yet not unduly expensive. That said, the annual statewide duck harvest, dating back to 1961, has ranged from a low of about 250,000 in 1988 to a little more than 1.1 million in 1979. In recent years - 2000-2003 - Minnesota's harvest has averaged about 875,000 ducks. Duck hunters had a difficult season this year but certainly not as difficult as 1988.

I thought the DNR was working to improve habitat so migrating ducks would stay longer. What happened to that?

The DNR has implemented a "Fall Use Plan," which is also known as "The Challenge to Restore Minnesota's Wetland and Waterfowl Hunting Heritage." This plan focuses on improving waterfowl food resources, reducing disturbance of roosting waterfowl, and improving production of local waterfowl. While it is clear we are making some progress, the problems we are facing are huge.

One example of progress was the recent rotenone application at Lake Christina, an important lake for migrating waterfowl in western Minnesota. Initial indications show that the treatment was effective in removing undesirable fish, which in turn, should improve wetland clarity. We expect to see improved waterfowl usage over the next few years.

Other signs of progress include managing more than 170 wild rice lakes and impoundments through a cooperative agreement with Ducks Unlimited, more than 15,000 acres of wetlands restored or protected in cooperation with conservation groups since 2000 and 91,000 acres of wetland habitat that continue to be enhanced by water level management.

The "Fall Use Plan" was updated last July and can be viewed on our website at: http://www.dnr.state.mn.us/hunting/waterfowl/index.html.

It seems like Minnesota still has plenty of shallow lakes and ponds - how come these aren't attracting more ducks?

There are more than 5,000 shallow lakes in Minnesota. Based on shallow lake surveys, it appears that as many as half of the state's shallow lakes in southern and western Minnesota have poor habitat conditions. Reasons for declining habitat include: more than 90 percent of prairie wetlands and 99 percent of native prairie grasslands have been lost in the prairie pothole portion of Minnesota. Without the buffer of small wetlands and native grasslands, shallow lakes receive rainwater more quickly and lake levels remain higher for longer, which depletes aquatic vegetation.

Deeper waters allow carp, bullheads, fathead minnows and other bottom-feeding species to survive winter. These fish increase cloudiness as they stir bottom sediment. They also feed on invertebrates which otherwise reduce algae and provide food for bottom-feeding ducks.

Other issues include loss of native shoreline from development, increased motorized recreational use of waters by boaters, anglers and hunters.

With deeper water, less vegetation and fewer protein rich invertebrates, the large shallow lakes attract fewer ducks, geese, shorebirds, pelicans, gulls and other birds. The absence of smaller, buffering wetlands means fewer places for ducks to nest and produce young in the spring.

As part of the Fall Use Plan, the DNR began monitoring 40 shallow lakes across the state to serve as case-study lakes over the next decade. By analyzing data on waterfowl use, water quality, vegetation, and invertebrate abundance we hope to find correlations with duck use and other variables we measure. This monitoring should ultimately allow us to make more informed decisions, improve our management and, ultimately, increase waterfowl use on these and other shallow lakes.

Would it help if more duck hunters got more involved in local government?

Absolutely. Our goal for waterfowl management in the state is to conserve, protect and manage waterfowl and wetland habitats in the state. This remains an ambitious and daunting task when we consider some of the waterfowl and wetland-related issues in the state.

The political arena is an important part of both identifying problems and finding solutions. For example, conversion of small wetlands and development of shallow lake shorelines are often local decisions influenced by local citizens. The establishment of waterfowl rest areas, refuges, sanctuaries, and designated wildlife lakes are other actions that are largely locally driven. There are often opportunities to comment on local, statewide, and national plans and programs.

Programs such as the Conservation Reserve Program provide tremendous benefits to many wildlife species and grassland-nesting birds, including waterfowl. These types of programs need continued support from well-informed citizens and groups of constituents. Minnesota usually leads the nation in numbers of duck hunters, so we have a tremendous resource to call on to help us work towards improving waterfowl and wetland conservation efforts in the state.

DNR QUESTIONS

Q: Where does the balsam fir boughs used to make holiday wreaths and garland come from?

A: The specialty forest products industry uses many of the natural resources found in Minnesota's forests, such as pinecones, mosses and birch twigs, to make everything from decorative items to medicinal and herbal products. One of the most important specialty products is the balsam bough. Approximately 4,000 tons of boughs are harvested annually from Minnesota forests, and each ton makes roughly 400 wreaths. However, the number of holiday wreaths and garland made per ton varies depending on the size of each item. Most of the boughs used by Minnesota's special forest products industry are harvested from public and private lands across the northern part of the state. Itasca, St. Louis, Aitkin and Cass counties support more half of the total bough harvest in Minnesota. The state's balsam bough industry has annual retail sales topping $20 million.

- Keith Jacobson, DNR Forest Utilization & Marketing Program Coordinator.

The big picture can affect the small community

We are a small town local newspaper. We don't have the resources to cover state or nationwide stories, let alone even consider covering a story that has worldwide implications, but...that doesn't mean local people aren't affected by stories on the other side of the globe or that we can't write stories about how local people are affected by those stories.

Matt Paxton, the publisher of The News-Gazette in Lexington, Va., wrote that writing these stories can "help readers put the 'big story' into the local perspective." Paxton was reminded of this one morning when one of his salespeople brought in what they called a "vacation picture." It wasn't really a vacation picture. It was a picture of a local man, who is serving in the Marine Corps in Afghanistan, and he was pictured holding a copy of the local newspaper.

Having just completed our coverage of the World Junior Hockey Championship, we can relate to what Paxton is saying. Undoubtedly, many local citizens have been influenced by people who came from throughout the world to Thief River Falls. Hopefully, we can say we had a positive influence on those people, as well,

The Tsunami Challenge -

There are other examples right here in Thief River Falls - examples that show us that pictures and stories in the mainstream media like CNN, NBC, CBS and ABC can influence us, and influence us profoundly. Such was the case in Mike Nordine's social studies class at Lincoln High School. Students were studying recent events and, of course, saw coverage of the tsunami. Students asked what they could do for the victims. Initially, they decided to see if they could raise $10 per student. They quickly raised $250. Then, a note to teachers in the Social Studies Department resulted in a new challenge. Could they raise $1,000 in three days?

What we do for others can have a profound effect on ourselves. The boost to our self-esteem is a simply a bonus, its true value can be found in the challenge that asks what more we can do for the people who live in our community.

Violence is escalating with meth use in this region of the state

Predictions of escalating violence in the world of meth users appears to be coming true. Though it's not entirely uncommon to hear reports of violence and even murder in this part of the world, two murders in Fargo, N.D. should alert area residents to a serious problem and cause them to take action.

Methamphetamine or meth has been around for a long time, but the meth being used today is four to five times stronger than it was in the 1970s and 1980s. It can also be quickly made from ingredients found in most households. Unfortunately, it's very addictive and recovery is prolonged and expensive.

In November 2004, two community meetings emphasized the impact of meth abuse on our community. One of the things a recovering addict said, was "I'll be dealing with it the rest of my entire life." He made it clear that it has had an impact on his family, jobs, and his health. Some of those issues have a direct impact on us and have been reinforced by recent reports from state corrections officials showing increasing health costs for inmates suffering from the effects of meth use.

During the meetings, a local investigator also charted the rise of meth use for us and then predicted a rise in violence - a natural, or at least expected result of meth use. That prediction appears to be coming true. We've seen and heard the reports of two murders in the Fargo-Moorhead area in the past few weeks.

When you hear an alarm, you react. This increasing violence is a ringing alarm that should call for us to take action - not by abandoning the building, as one would a burning building, but by encouraging us to support legislators who introduce legislation that makes it more difficult to obtain ingredients used in making meth, that colors or weakens the ingredients that are used, and that helps law enforcement and corrections officials deal with an increasing number of meth users.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Price gouging is happening in Thief River Falls

To the Editor:

When we hear the term "price gouging," we usually associate it with an emergency or disaster when merchants see an opportunity and raise their prices on needed items.

Locally, we have a form of price gouging going on that few may have thought of.

It is common knowledge that convenience stores charge a slightly higher price than supermarkets, but how high is reasonable?

Over the holidays, our supermarkets were closed and some times, people need some last minute items. For our dinner, we realized at the last minute that we needed two items. Going to a convenience store nearby, I picked up the items we needed. When my purchase was totaled, I was shocked and asked if there were a mistake. There wasn't.

The next day, still very angry since I felt as though the store was taking advantage of people like me, I went to one of our supermarkets to compare the prices I paid with the prices they offered. What I found out made me determined never to go to that particular convenience store again, for anything. The price I was charged was more than double the price I would have paid at the supermarket.

That is PRICE GOUGING in my book, and the product was also stale.

Sincerely,
Don Nygaard
Thief River Falls

United States should not have been the aggressor

To the Editor:

I repeat what I stated previously in my September 1 letter - the United States should NOT have been the aggressor in the Iraq war.

Since the declaration of the end of the Iraq war, hundreds of American servicemen and women have been killed or injured. This is terrible. Perhaps this will continue until after the Iraq election. Our hope and prayer is that this Iraq conflict will soon end so that our servicemen and women can come back home to their families and jobs, and to where they are so badly needed.

My philosophy always has been and still is to give aid where and when homeland security, humanitarian, and military aid is needed. The United States has always been willing and ready to help in this respect.

Sincerely,
Leonard E. Olson

Governor Tim Pawlenty:

Growth of welfare health programs is a challenge

"The news that state revenues during November and December were $66 million more than forecast is a good sign that our economy is continuing to grow, but it doesn't diminish the fact that we will have to make tough budget decisions in the coming months.

"The explosive growth of welfare health programs presents a major challenge. At the current growth rate, we would need to double our income tax revenues about every eight years to keep pace with the increases in human services costs we are facing. Health and Human Services spending is scheduled to increase by 20 percent from the current budget to the next, with the welfare health program portion of that increasing by 27 percent. This is unsustainable.

"Government should not grow faster than family incomes. During the beginning of this legislative session, we've heard agreement from both sides of the aisle that there is enough revenue in the system - we need to set priorities, spend smarter and hold government accountable. I'm hopeful that this session will produce results that help keep Minnesota competitive and moving forward."

Lieder: Minnesota legislative session presents similar challenges and opportunities

by Rep. Bernie Lieder

As expected, talk about the state's $1.4 billion budget deficit again dominated the start of the legislative session. If you're feeling a sense of deja vu, there's a reason for it: This is the fourth time in four years the state is facing a significant budget deficit.

Because of that, our first priority in this new session has to be solving the state's ongoing budget imbalance once and for all. We keep stumbling from deficit to deficit because the root causes of the budget problems that began in 2003 were not honestly resolved.

I've talked a lot over the past two years about my opposition to our so-called budget solutions in 2003 and 2004. I objected to them for a number of reasons, but mainly because I didn't believe we were honestly addressing the imbalance between state revenues and state spending. As the deficit this year demonstrates, we simply shifted our problems into the future or onto local governments.

This year, we need to come to grips with the state's budget reality and deal with it honestly. Otherwise, the deficits are only going to get worse and will eventually threaten the things that make Minnesota such a great place to live.

To do that, we need to drop the partisan posturing and begin working together. That's what state leaders did in past decades when the state faced similar challenges. Instead of sniping and jockeying, they joined hands, compromised and came to an agreement about what exactly the state needed when it came to schools, transportation, health care and economic development. Then, they figured out a way to pay for it all.

I remain optimistic that we can do just that as there seems to be a growing consensus on a number of issues that are important to every legislative district.

This fall, votes throughout the state made it clear that they are concerned about the financial condition of our public schools. One of our first bipartisan efforts should be finding ways to adequately fund K-12 education to prevent local school districts from further increases in class sizes and cuts to staffing and programs. Part of that has to include a solution to the problem of declining enrollment in rural schools. There are a number of solid proposals out there and I hope we can adopt one of them in our final education bill.

The governor pointed to health care as the main cause of the state budget deficit and we'll spend quite a bit of time at the Capitol this year looking for new ways to reduce health care costs. However, we also need to make sure that any health care cuts don't end up costing us more in the long run. I'll also be working to repeal the over $2[illegible] a-year surcharge on nursing home residents that was passed as part of the budget in 2003.

Traffic congestion continues to be a major issue in the metro area and that seems to be driving a move toward addressing what has been a chronic lack of funding for roads, highways and transit. The state's business community is becoming vocal about the growing cost that congestion is having on the state's economy. It's estimated the average Twin Cities commuter loses $1,000 a year in wasted time and fuel.

There is a growing backlog of projects in rural areas, and I think we can leverage the desire by Metro-area to address the problem of congestion and provide more funding for rural highway projects.

Finally, I'll also be focusing on the ongoing and long-term needs of rural communities. We need good-paying jobs, more development of the wind and agri-fuels industries, better roads and better communications.

Although the budget situation will continue to dominate the debate in St. Paul, I remain optimistic that we can address some of the ongoing challenges I mentioned above. That's because voters across the state made it clear they wanted state leaders to work together and find common ground on the issues that are important to all of us.

Let's hope everyone was listening.

Supports sick leave for working MN families

U.S. Senator Mark Dayton became one of the first supporters of a bill to help Minnesota families take time off from work to care for a sick family member, without incurring a loss in salary. The bill, the Healthy Families Act, would provide seven days of paid sick leave annually to full-time employees of companies with 15 or more workers. Almost 47 percent of all full-time employees in the private sector currently lack paid sick days of any kind.

"Providing working Minnesotans with at least seven days of paid sick leave every year is the right thing to do," said Dayton. "It benefits our families and helps our businesses become more worker friendly and family friendly."

The Healthy Families Act would also provide part-time employees with paid sick days, depending upon the number of hours worked.

Jim Koppel, director of the Children's Defense Fund of Minnesota, said, "The Children's Defense Fund is grateful to Senator Dayton for cosponsoring this important legislation, which would help Americans to care for their families' health at home, without losing pay or jeopardizing the family's economic stability."

Sen. Stumpf

Governor's education proposal comes up short

After proposing to cut $25 million from K-12 education earlier this week, the governor now suggests a meager 2005 education budget when what Minnesota schools really need is adequate funding to educate our school children, according to the Minnesota Senate education leaders, Sens. LeRoy Stumpf and Steve Kelley.

"The dollars the governor proposes in his budget are insufficient," Stumpf, chairperson of the Senate's Education Finance Division, said. "While we appreciate the governor's recognition that schools are not adequately funded, his proposal doesn't even come close to covering the funding 'freeze' the governor imposed on schools the past two years."

Kelley, chairperson of the Senate's Education Policy Committee, said he appreciates the governor's initiative to change the way teachers are paid, but the money comes up short.

"The amount the governor proposes in new money for schools doesn't even cover the special education cost increases imposed by Pawlenty that schools have endured the past two years," Kelley said. "The governor's budget doesn't lower class sizes, re-hire laid off teachers or restore program cuts. We need leadership on education, and this budget doesn't provide that."

And, much of the money the governor wants to give to schools is attached to even more mandates, Stumpf said.

"With new education standards, federal mandates and No Child Left Behind requirements, our schools are being crushed by all the things they must do each day," Stumpf said. "The governor adds to those mandates with this budget recommendation, but doesn't provide what districts really need - adequate funding."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

More School Room Is Needed Badly

"The School Board will either have to build another schoolhouse next year or enlarge one of the three present buildings. When the high school building was erected two years ago, it was then thought to be large enough to supply the wants of Thief River Falls for some time to come, but such does not appear to be the case. The city has been growing so rapidly that last fall the demand for more room made it necessary to rent the Mission church on the East Side and the other schools are now crowded to the limit. The East Side is where the rooms are most crowded and it is quite probable that either an addition to the Knox school will be built or a new building erected over there. It now takes considerable money to run the schools, more than was anticipated, and it keeps the members of the school board hustling to make both ends meet, as two more teachers have had to be employed and other expenses incurred.

"At the annual school meeting to be held next summer, the matter of issuing bonds to pay for additional school rooms will probably be voted upon.

"There are now over 850 pupils in attendance at the city schools."

Some Competition

"Six different breweries now have branch cold storage houses in this city and it is said that competition for trade in the future will be quite keen. The fact that Thief River Falls has become an excellent distributing point induced them to locate here and it is said some of them will build brick buildings and open up saloons. Considerable business property has changed hands of late."

Ready for Business

"GREENBUSH JOURNAL: H. Fant, the telephone man from Thief River Falls shipped the necessary material and machinery for his exchange office here up on the train Saturday and it will be but a matter of time now before we can say 'hello' to the Falls and holler all we want to each other around town. Among the outfit is a 100 drop switch board, which by the way is none too large for the town at this writing."

We're Not Afraid
Red Lake Falls Seeks to Intimidate This City

"Charles E. Boughton, city attorney of Red Lake Falls, was in the city last week. Under ordinary circumstances the people of Thief River Falls are glad to see Mr. Boughton, as he is a very genial gentleman to meet, but the fact that his business was not of a friendly nature causes the people of Thief River Falls to care little whether he ever comes back again or not.

"While here, Mr. Boughton spent most of his time examining the city records and intimated that if the people of Thief River Falls attempted to secure an injunction restraining the county commissioners from purchasing the court house, that the matter of how the Soo right of way through Thief River Falls had been secured would be investigated. In other words it is an attempt upon the part of Red Lake Falls to intimidate our citizens. The people of Thief River Falls however, are 'not afraid of the cars' and if Red Lake Falls wants to conduct a nasty and mean fight, which is by no means desired by the citizens of this place, they will be accommodated.

"We have one Henry W. Lee up here whose time is not just now fully occupied and who says he can do a little investigating at the county seat if the people there desire to have him go down. Red Lake Falls will soon find that there is more than one way to skin a cat."

To Locate in Thief River Falls
International Harvesting Company to Open Branch House Here

"Thief River Falls has been selected as one of the general distributing agencies for the International Harvesting company. A large warehouse is to be erected here and the retail machine dealers in this section of the state will be supplied with machines from the branch house here. It means considerable to this city as it will necessitate a large number of machine experts, collectors and others making their headquarters here.

"This company now has branch houses located at Fargo and at Grand Forks which have been supplying the Red River Valley and North Dakota trade. Crookston has for a number of years been trying to secure this agency, but the company found Thief River Falls a more convenient location. The new terminal freight rates which apply to Thief River Falls, was one of the inducements that brought the company here."

Editorial

"Because the NEWS mentioned the possibility of the old barracks which Red Lake Falls desires to have Red Lake county purchase as a court house, being burned and the demand that Red Lake Falls would then make to have a costly structure erected in its place, some of the people down there have taken offense. We did not mean to insinuate that anyone down there would commit arson, but it must be admitted that Red Lake Falls has been visited by a very large number of fires, and that the court house is nothing but a fire trap. There is a kind of conflagration in the air down there and of course there is always the possibility that it will ignite the court house."

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

Polio Auction At Auditorium Friday

"The Pennington County Polio Fund appeal moves into high gear this weekend with a huge polio benefit auction scheduled at the municipal auditorium Friday evening, January 21, starting at 7:30, and a home talent polio benefit show at Smiley hall Saturday, January 22 at 8 p.m.

"Frank Riley, chairman in charge of the community auction Friday, stated that Andy Anderson and Fred Bruggeman will give their services as auctioneers. Norman Johnson, program chairman, stated this week that more than sixty persons will appear in 24 different acts in the benefit show at Smiley hall. He added that Kern Olson will serve as master of ceremonies and that Roy Oen will speak briefly. Edgar Naplin will officiate as master of ceremonies of the polio benefit show to be given in the St. Hilaire gym Friday, the 28th. Don Olson, manager of the Radio Station KTRF, invited anyone interested in appearing on the radio show Saturday evening, January 29, to contact him at the station."

Elmer Anderson New Library Board Head

"Elmer Anderson was elected president of the Carnegie library board at its annual organizational meeting last Wednesday evening, and Mrs. H. O. Chommie was named vice president. Mrs. L. B. Hartz was re-elected secretary. Anderson succeeds to the vacancy left by the resignation last fall of John X. Lynskey.

"Other members of the board include Mrs. A. E. Jacobson, Mrs. N. A. Holen, Mrs. Stanton R. Dahlen, Anton Hall, C. W. Pope, and Clifford Buoen. Reappointed were Miss Frances Shanahan, head librarian, and Miss Inga Thompson and Miss Bertha Hastad, assistants."

Pure Oil Company Warehouse Is Hit By Fire Saturday

"Several hundred dollars damage was sustained at the Pure Oil company warehouse, back from Main avenue south on the Great Northern right-of-way, in a blaze that developed in the office of the structure Saturday afternoon.

"Stanley Cameron was painting the inside of the office when a gas heater ignited a can of paint standing nearby and spread to the freshly painted walls. The flames were extinguished by the fire department."

Mercury Hits Low For Season of -16

"This vicinity experienced the coldest weather of the current winter during the past weekend, the mercury dropping to -13 Saturday and -16 Sunday and Monday mornings. A light snowfall was recorded last Thursday and Friday."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

ST. HILAIRE, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA JANUARY 21, 1905

News Items

"Norway herring 8 cents a pound at M. L. Hanson's.

"The young ladies of the village have organized a whist club which will meet every Friday evening.

"A number of young folks of the village drove out to Valhall last Saturday night and enjoyed a pleasant evening.

"It is thought that the Great Northern will have the cut at Red Lake Falls completed and trains running that way the first part of next month.

"Greenbush, the new town in Roseau county, the end of the line on the Great Northern, has been indulging in blind pigs, tigers and other lawlessness. The Roseau county sheriff made the town a visit lately. He arrested the blind piggers [bootleggers], burned the gambling outfits and made the crowd promise to be good in the future.

"The welcome whistle of the planing mill sounded for the first time this year calling the men to work Monday noon. It will not shut down again for several months as there are plenty of orders in sight and a large amount of lumber in the yard.

"The PLUMMER PIONEER states that there is a large amount of wet and worthless land on the reservation. Surely the PIONEER must be mistaken. We think if it would carefully canvass the business men of Plummer it would find much valuable information that would establish the high value of the reservation lands. Surely what little snow we have had could not make it so very wet."

"Crookston papers state that the Jerome bridge at that place, which will be taken down, has been purchased by the farmers living near Huot, in this county. They have been operating a ferry there for a number of years and been in need of a bridge for a long time.

Nothing Doing

"There is nothing new in the county seat question, says the THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS. No action has been taken by the committee to secure an injunction restraining the county commissioners from purchasing the court house. The committee has seven more days in which to take action and it promises to do something within the next few days. It seems to us that there is no use of talking the matter over any more. The thing to do is to take some action."

Great Northern to Extend

"FERTILE JOURNAL: We have been told by good authority that the Great Northern will next spring commence the construction of the extension of their Pelican Rapids line to connect with the Northern Pacific at or near Winnipeg junction, and that trains will be run direct from the Twin Cities over that line to Greenbush, the present terminal of the Great Northern road north of Thief River Falls. If this is done, as it seems likely, Fertile will have a double train service."

Lack of Mail Services

"CROOKSTON TIMES: The residents of the new towns along the Soo are registering some very vigorous kicks for lack of mail service. Assistant Superintendent Bradford, having charge of the railway mail service, visited the points along the new line several months ago. On November 1st he recommended that a regular mail service be established from Glenwood to Thief River Falls and on December 1st recommended that the service be established on the Soo to the Canadian border. Thus far, however, nothing has been done and the people interested are beginning to wonder why and have communicated with Congressman Steenerson for the dilatory tactics being pursued.

"An order has been issued by the post office department which will give regular service to Greenbush beginning February 6th. This will give another mail clerk running out of Crookston, as one clerk cannot handle the work to Greenbush and return each day. It is predicted that by the date the new services starts the trains will be running to Greenbush and return each day from this city via Dugdale and Red Lake Falls. Under this arrangement the mail clerks would run out of here every other day, or run one week and lay off the next, the same as is done on the Duluth run from Grand Forks now."

Firemen to Mask

"Arrangements are about complete for a big time at the Firemen's Masquerade Ball at the Imperial Hall next Wednesday night. Chief Fellman informs us that a large number have ordered suits from below and that many will appear in costumes made here, so that it is certain that there will be a good-sized crowd of masqueraders. The Firemen have been to considerable trouble and expense and everybody in town should show their appreciation of the boys by buying a ticket and attending the ball. Come, even if you do not mask; there will be fun enough for all."

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
December 13, 2004
5:00 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular Meeting of the Independent School District #564 School Board was held on Monday, December 13, 2004, in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center. Chairperson S. Young called the meeting to order at 5:00 p.m.

Chairperson S. Young noted there were no public comments.

The district would like to thank Jean Larson and Mike Barry for their years of service on the Board and their dedication to our students and the entire staff of the school district. Steve Young made a special presentation to Jean and Mike. He thanked Jean for all she has done for the district over the years. [illegible] continued work on the Auditorium Project. It would have never been done without her dedication to the project. He thanked Mike for his many contributions to the board and [illegible] at FMS. They also gave $9400 for construction of the courts and seal coating & painting the courts.

With the session starting soon, they are hoping to see the House/Senate/Govenor working together to do what is best for Minnesota. The state currently has a deficit of 7 hundred million. Barry to contract with Apple Computer for Powerschool Student Information System effective January 1, 2005 for one year at a one time fee of approximately $45,000 with annual costs after the initial year of $3.80 per student. ## Both races fast and exciting for spectators

Voters vote at wrong site

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

It could've happened anywhere in the U.S., and it's happened more than once in Pennington County – voters voting at the wrong precincts.

This county saw 105 voters voting in wrong precincts, according to Angie Haugen of the Pennington County Auditor's Office. Most of those voters – 41 people – lived in Ward 5 of Thief River Falls, she said.

Haugen added that there were more people voting at the wrong location for the 2004 election than the 2002 election. "This year was horrendous," said Haugen, who noted 53 people voted at the wrong place in 2002. Yet, there were 5,600 people voting in 2002, and 7,057 voted two years later.

In the city of Thief River Falls, there are two precincts in each of the five wards, and those two precincts vote in the same building. "People don't always understand there's two different precincts," Pennington County Auditor Ken Olson said.

That can lead to problems. Most of the time, someone voting in the wrong precinct is a new voter, Olson said.

Problems may also result due to redistricting. Pennington County and the city of Thief River Falls were redistricted in 2002. At that time, voters received cards notifying them of the redistricting, Olson said. However, many of those people did not vote until the 2004 election and may not have realized their precincts or wards changed.

TRF crosswind runway ready

Snow removal, however, delays opening

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has authorized the opening of the crosswind runway at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport. Yet, it's still a matter of time before it is open.

The airport maintenance crew is still working on clearing snow from the main runway and crosswind runway, Public Works Director Ron Lindberg said Monday. He added that airport maintenance staff was focusing its efforts on the main runway, meaning that the crosswind runway is still closed. Lindberg expected it would be open next week depending upon snow removal, he said.

For more than 10 years, city officials have been discussing the crosswind runway. Construction began in 2003, and the 5,000-foot crosswind runway was slated for completion in summer 2004. Its completion was delayed after Strata Corporation needed to correct 18 signs that were reversed or the wrong color. City officials sent a letter to the company in late October, warning it would be assessed $800 a day for damages if the signs were not fixed before Nov. 2. The signs were replaced in time, Lindberg said.

Owls traveling south in large numbers

by David Hill
Editor

In a typical year, birdwatchers will report seeing 35 great gray owls, six northern hawk owls, and one boreal owl. This year, The Raptor Center on the University of Minnesota campus reports that birdwatchers have reported seeing 1,500 great gray owls, 200 northern hawk owls, and 300 boreal owls.

Jen Vieth, assistant bird curator at The Raptor Center, explained that most owls don't migrate. There has, however, been what she described as an "irruption."

One might consider an irruption a good thing, but in this case it means the rodent population, which is the primary food source for owls, has hit a cyclical low, and large numbers of owls are traveling south in search of food.

"It's a great year for owl watching," said Vieth, "but it's not a great year for owls." Vieth noted that it may be a one-way trip for many. There isn't enough food, she explained, and the further south they travel, the less habitat they find.

Julia Ponder, associate director, of the Raptor Center, explained that the downturn in the rodent population is a cyclical thing, and such an irruption in owl numbers happens about once every 10 years. So, it's normal, she said, but this year, it's also more dramatic.

Boreal forests are the normal habitat for owls, but owls find fewer and fewer boreal forests the further south they travel. Instead in the forests, birdwatchers are reporting seeing more owls along roads and highways because that's where they are finding rodents.

Ponder said they are seeing a

Art Heinze
of
Thief River Falls

Heinze was one of 37 people on the tour, 32 were delegates and five were spouses. The delegates represented 22 different states. The mission of the trip was to help them achieve a better understanding of what occupational therapy is about and what it can do for their patients.*

by David Hill
Editor

A passion for doing what's right for patients recently brought together occupational therapists from the United States and Russia. The interesting international mix of professionals included Art Heinze of Thief River Falls.

Last fall, Heinze received an invitation from the American Occupational Therapy Association to join a delegation of occupational therapists traveling to Moscow and St. Petersburg in Russia. He left on Nov. 26 and returned on Dec. 7, much more appreciative of what America has to offer.

Conditions for occupational therapists in Russia reminded Heinze of what it was like 40 years ago when he came to Thief River Falls. At the time, he was the only occupational therapist north of Fergus Falls and Brainerd. And, they're doing what he did then, - orienting doctors and staff on what physical therapy and occupational can accomplish, and then visiting with the public through the many civic organizations in the community.

What one doctor had to say through an interpreter, put things in perspective for Heinze. He reminded the delegation that, "we aren't where the United States is, but you have to keep in mind our recent history and culture." Under communism, said Heinze, if you could not work, you weren't very valuable, so very little money was spent on therapy or facilities or rehabilitation, in general.

Now they are working very hard. Money has become available for facilities and rehabilitation. They're very proud of the progress they're making. Everywhere he went, Heinze said he could see construction and smell wet paint.

Heinze said this made him thankful for the quality of equipment, staff and facilities in Thief River Falls and the United States.

There were 37 people on the tour, 32 were delegates and five were spouses. The delegates represented 22 different states. Several of the delegates were professors.

"We were well received," said Heinze. The Russian hosts were particularly interested in the educational requirements for occupational therapists.

Heinze explained that in Russia they have what they call "ergo-therapists." It's a new profession - perhaps less than three years old, he said. These ergo-therapists, he said, are doctors who received additional training in Sweden. To Heinze, that amount of training seemed overkill. But they're just starting to formalize their educational requirements, he said, so they were particularly interested in curriculum and educational requirements.

Heinze also made some presentations. As a double arm amputee, Heinze impressed them with what he could do. Of course, he said, his harmonica playing was part of his presentation.

Sometimes, it's hard to know if what you're saying will make a difference, but some experiences show you that you can make a difference. Talking through an interpreter, a

CSP meetings to be held next week

Farmers and producers in the Red Lake River Watershed (RLRW) are invited to attend an information meeting on the Conservation Security Program (CSP). The RLRW has been selected for sign-up and contracts in 2005. If producers are interested in contracts this year, they are urged to attend the meetings.

Public information meetings are as follows:

- Monday, Jan. 31 – 9 a.m. at the American Legion Club, Crookston; and 12:30 p.m. at the Community Hall in Red Lake Falls.
- Tuesday, Feb. 1 – 9 a.m. at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls; and 2:30 p.m. at the Goodridge Community Center.

CSP is designed to support and encourage voluntary conservation practices by private landowners. CSP will reward those farmers who are meeting the highest standards of conservation and environmental management for their farming operations. CSP is a voluntary program that provides financial and technical assistance to promote the conservation and improvement of soil, water, air, energy, plant and animal life on private and tribal working lands. Working lands include cropland, grassland, improved pasture and forested land that is an incidental part of an agricultural operation.

A sign-up is anticipated in March. A self-assessment booklet is available to help producers identify their levels of potential participation and documentation of their conservation benefits. Additional information about CSP in Minnesota can be found by logging onto www.mn.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/csp/csp.html or contact a Natural Resources Conservation Service conservationist.

Trained volunteer respite workers are available to provide in-home, non-medical care so the primary caregiver can receive a much-needed break from the responsibility. There is a generous sliding fee for respite services and no cost for caregiver discussion groups.

The LSS Caregiver Support and Respite Program is funded with federal funds through the Older Americans Act, which is administered by the Minnesota Board on Aging and the Northwest Area Agency on Aging.

To learn more about in-home respite, caregiver discussion groups or information and referral on caregiver issues, or to discuss a volunteer experience, contact Robson at 681-2885 or visit www.caregiversupportandrespite.org.

Fathers Reading Every Day starts February 1

When dads read to their kids, it makes a difference, therefore a reading program is being sponsored just for dads (uncles, grandpas and other special male friends) during the month of February.

The four-week program called Fathers Reading Every Day (FRED) will start and end with celebrations including free food, fun and books. The first celebration will be held Tuesday, Feb. 1 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Challenger Preschool. Call 681-8670 by Jan. 31 to pre-register. Due to the activities planned that evening, it is asked that only children ages 2 through kindergarten-age attend with their dads, grandpas or other special male friends.

The evening will start at Challenger Bedrock Ice Cream Parlor, where attendees will meet Fred Flintstone and Barney Rubble, eat ice cream sundaes and try some "dinoriffic" activities. Then attendees will board a school bus and go to the public library for stories, activities and more information about the FRED program.

Challenger Preschool Programs, the Thief River Falls Public Library and the Minnesota Humanities Commission sponsor FRED. The program is also funded in part by the Thief River Falls United Way.

McKnight grant to help avert child maltreatment

Children in home situations where there are signs of potential neglect or abuse are the focus of the Parent Support Outreach Pilot Project, an initiative of the Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS). DHS has received a three-year grant of $3 million from The McKnight Foundation.

By connecting families at risk of child maltreatment with useful services, the pilot program will demonstrate the kinds of support that are most effective in averting more serious child-endangerment situations where county intervention becomes necessary.

The pilot project will identify families with children under age 5 where there is cause for concern that does not warrant formal assessment by county child protection programs, according to Erin Sullivan Sutton, director of Child Safety and Permanency at DHS.

"By connecting families with available community support services that help their specific situations, we hope to gain a better understanding of where and when early intervention can help ensure child safety," Sullivan Sutton said.

This month, the department invited counties statewide to submit proposals for implementing such early-intervention strategies. Counties that are selected to be part of the pilot will receive funding to connect families with services that may help with housing, transportation, parent education and child care. The pilot program aims to involve 5,500 families over the three-year pilot phase.

Of more than 40,000 calls received annually by county child protection programs statewide, about 60 percent do not warrant further investigation and assessment. However, there may be indicators of significant family stress that could eventually put children at risk of neglect or abuse.

Rip Rapson, president of The McKnight Foundation, said the program is consistent with the organization's commitment to helping families cultivate safe, nurturing environments. "It builds on lessons that counties have learned in the past few years about how to work most effectively with families experiencing stress, and holds great promise for further innovation and improvement in Minnesota's child welfare system," he said.

The pilot project is an extension of an innovative statewide program, Alternative Response (AR), demonstrated to be effective in helping families with child maltreatment concerns. In this program, counties continue to investigate and take action when children are seriously hurt. The AR program has been an option to help families whose children are not in imminent danger, but would benefit from additional support. A recent evaluation of the program showed that families participating in AR were less likely to have subsequent child maltreatment reports than families who were involved in more traditional child protection investigations.

The pilot project will test whether it is possible to take the AR service model and reach out early to at-risk families to prevent the occurrence of child abuse and neglect.

Davidson repeats at Minto race

Two-time defending United States Cross-Country (USCC) points champion Corey Davidson of Holt began his quest for a three-peat by winning the Stud Boy Pro 600 class at the USCC Narlock Trucking Minto 100 snowmobile race in Minto, N.D., on Jan. 15.

With temperatures near -10-degrees Fahrenheit, racers left the starting line in 30-second intervals in order to reduce the effects of snow-dust over the 10-mile course. Davidson started mid-pack in the 16-rider Pro field, but made up ground on the machines in front of him and ended the 80-mile race in a time of 1 hour, 34 minutes and 18 seconds, 1 minute and 16 seconds ahead of his Polaris teammate and second place finisher Gabe Bunke of Moorhead. Third went to Thief River Falls racer Brian Dick, while Justin Winter of Elk River finished fourth. Both Dick and Winter road Arctic Cats. Fifth place went to Yamaha mounted Mike Gentz of Skandia, Mich. Championship contender Bryan Dyrdahl of Bagley was forced to pull his Ski-Doo into the pits after a collision with a tree. Dyrdahl finished 16th.

History was made in the Grafton Equipment sponsored Masters class when Gentz rode his new 2005 Yamaha RX-1 to victory. The win is the first ever USCC win for Yamaha and is also believed to be the first cross-country win for the brand in many years. Gentz, who picked up his new machine only two days before the race, had very little set-up time before making the 10-hour drive from Michigan to North Dakota, making his win all the more impressive.

Argusville, N.D., Arctic Cat racer Jason Johnson was a double winner, finishing first in both the Scott USA Fan 600 class as well as the Orion Industries Fan Open. The C & A Ultra Pro Skis 440 class was won by Alameda, Saskatchewan, Canada, racer Tyson Dmytriw aboard an Arctic Cat. The Fett family racing tradition lives on as brothers Trevor and Spencer Fett of Frazee won the Junior 14-17 and Amateur 600 classes, respectively. Both were on Arctic Cats. Minto, N.D., racer Adam Mach took the win in an exciting 120cc stock race on an Arctic Cat while Taylor Bunke of Moorhead, rode his Polaris 120 to the victory in the improved class.

remain to walk the road alone,
I live in "memories garden"
now with happy days
we've known;
In spring I wait for roses red,
when faded, the lilacs blue;
In early fall when brown leaves fall, I catch a glimpse of you;

Yes, you went first and I remain,
one thing I'll have you do;
Walk slowly down that lonesome path, for soon I'll follow you:
I want to know each step you take, so I may take the same, for some day down that lonely road, you'll hear me
call your name.

Missing you so much Mom
We love you,

Friends and Family Remember

Larry Allen Swanson

He is gone from us for these 10 years,
but he will never be forgotten.
He reminds us that "my life is but a weaving between my God and me:
I may not choose the colors,
He knows what they should be.
For He can view the rainbow
upon the upper side, while I can see it on this, the under side.
Sometimes He weaves sorrow, which seems so strange to me;
but I will trust His judgment, and work on faithfully;
at last, when life it ended, with him I shall abide,
then I may view the rainbow
upon the upper side;
Then I shall know the reason why pain with joy entwined,
Was woven in the fabric of life that God designed."

Dice on the countertops

The cold weather cages people up in their homes. This place is dead, except for the few hardcore coffee guys. My work is done, and now it's time for break. I reach into my pocket to confirm the location of my Camel cigarettes and orange Bic lighter. I emerge into the open, now visible to the customers. Although my adulthood began two months ago on my 18th birthday, I get hassled from the non-regulars when I sit down for break. I was once told that I was only 10 years old by a man having marital problems. I glanced around the restaurant. A man with a blue denim jacket and black baseball cap with the word "price" written across it, sits peacefully doing a crossword puzzle; his name is Dennis. I see Red, sitting by the windows, wearing the hat I love, casually conversing with others as he drinks his coffee. There's another man at the counter, closest to the register; I smile and wrap my arms around his shoulders.

"Hey, Dave." He smiles back as I sit down next to him and ask the waitress for some coffee. Two creams, one sugar, a quick mix of the spoon, and break truly begins. I light up my cigarette as Johnson walks in; he sits on the opposite side of me and he also smokes a cigarette. Dave tells me how great dinner was. I thank him, as always, and challenge him to dice. I never win. We put out our quarters, and the waitress and other counter guys join in. The guys remind me of myself even though their age is well over 50. They talk about their memories and how Clarence's truck is stuck in a snowbank just 100 feet from his house; their laughter shows the youth in their hearts. Dave hands me the shaker and tells me to start. Three shakes, I don't even get the 6-5-4. After the dice have made it around to everyone, and one of the counter guys wins the pot, a few tables are coming in.

"Looks like they're putting me back to work. See you later, Dave, and drive safe tonight."

"Okay," Dave mumbles as he hands me the quarters from the previous dice game. "This is for you; the food was great."

I thank him again and give him one last hug as I walk away from my favorite part of the working day, playing dice on the countertops.

The worst and best of owning a snowblower

Probably the worst piece of equipment to own in this part of the country is a snowblower. Never mind that it is the most necessary. You just don't want to own one.

We used to have a snowblower attachment to the tractor. It came in handy after a blizzard. That was fine, until word got out that we had a snowblower and people started calling.

"Would you mind taking a run through our yard?" they would ask, trying to sound nonchalant, as if they wouldn't mind one way or the other if we showed up at all.

In fact, people trapped in their yard by four feet of snow are far from patient. They want out, and they want out now.

The only humane thing to do, if you own a snowblower, is to go blow them out. How do you say no to somebody who might get heart pains over the four-foot drift in front of the garage and then die because they couldn't get to the doctor on time?

No, the mere owning of a snowblower carries with it sober moral obligations.

Snow removal is a thankless job. After a storm, people get so restless to get out that the people who plow snow have about a half-an-hour in which to do their work without getting desperate, even angry calls.

If the plows start too early, say before 6 a.m., or worse yet, before the wind stops, the snowplow people are guilty of waking up the neighborhood or of wasting the snowplow budget.

But if they arrive more than a half-an-hour after the wind stops or the sun rises, they are guilty of sloth.

Private citizens with snowblowers have a little more leeway than the county guys, but not much. When the calls come reporting heart pains, you pretty much have to trudge out and get the job done.

Four hours later, after your snowblower has eaten two extension cords, one strand of Christmas lights, two painted rocks from a flower bed border and a bag of garbage, you stagger back into your house, wondering how to get out of the snowblowing trap.

No amount of money can pay for such trauma. You do people a favor, and then you feel bad because you chewed up their favorite extension cord. How can you send them a bill at all, much less one which covers your time and expenses?

The only solution? Sell your snowblower. Cheap. To the first buyer. I was appalled when my father practically gave the snowblower to neighbor Jim, but now I understood why.

It was so much easier to call up Jim after a snowstorm and have him come and blow us out than to have to blow ourselves out, plus blow out the people who had already seen the light and sold their own snowblowers.

It didn't take Jim long to see the light himself. It is not clear if he sold his snowblower, gave it away, blew it up, or just hid it in his barn, but we do know that he isn't using it in public anymore.

Now after snowstorms, we call Vernon to come take a swing through the yard if he would.

Of course, the "swing through the yard," always gets expanded into a "swing by the woodpile," and a "swing over towards the shop" and a "swing to the garbage dump."

Vernon has a powerful tractor, which sends the snow in a majestic arch about 40 feet out into the yard where it doesn't bother anybody. His snowblower hasn't yet met a drift it couldn't eat.

As much fun as it looks to gobble up drifts like Vernon does, it is possible that the charm of snowblowing in subzero weather will someday wear off.

I hate to consider the possibility, but I bet it won't be many more 100-foot extension cords before Vernon goes the way of all flesh and sells his snowblower, too.

Then what? Who to call when the mere sight of a four-foot drift in front of the garage causes shortness of breath and chest pains?

At that point, I'll probably give in and buy a snowblower myself - and the cycle will begin anew.

...Was that blizzard number one?

Last week's blizzard left us all in awe of Mother Nature and glad of our warm, cozy homes. I was definitely in awe because I don't like blizzards at all.

For one thing, I feel very helpless in a blizzard. I feel completely powerless when the wind is howling and the snow is coming down so hard I can't see across the street and blocking everything up in big drifts and the wind chill is so low that exposed skin will freeze in seconds. I know very well that if something blows off or down or quits working in the blizzard, I am just not capable of fixing it, and that scares me.

Thus, because I am afraid of things going wrong during the blizzard, I worry that the power will go off and we will have no heat, or that one of the shutters will blow off and break a window, or that someone is out in the blizzard. As I watched the snow filling up the sidewalks and streets, and my alley along with it, I worry that I will need to get the car out to go somewhere and can't.

One thing I didn't worry about, however, was food. As I have said before, I am one of those people who stockpiles, so I had enough food to outlast any blizzard. But I did find myself thinking about what I would do if I run out of bread or milk. I decided that as long as the electricity stayed on I could make bread in my bread machine and, if worse came to worse, I could always make some milk from the powdered stuff I have in the cupboard. Gosh, I decided that I could even try making bread from scratch like I used to do. Since I don't have a cow, though, I couldn't find an alternative for powdered milk - except for all of those cans of juice I have in the freezer.

The dog hated the blizzard. He needed to go outside, so off he would go to the door. When I opened it to find the snow on the same level as the back step, he took one sniff at it and backtracked through the kitchen. One or two minutes later, there he was - demanding to be let out again. I'm sure he thought that everything outside got back to normal during those few minutes, so he figured it was all right to go out.

When he did finally go outside, the snow outside the door was as deep as he was, so I was sure he didn't go to the bathroom. Soon I was worrying about the dog having to go to the bathroom and not being able to do so. I don't know why I was worried - after all, I've never heard of a dog exploding from something like that.

After much of my moaning and groaning and fussing, I finally went out and shoveled a little place for the dog to stand outside, and then he, naturally, did what comes naturally, and I quit worrying about him.

Even before the blizzard came, I was worried about all of my children. I called most of them just to see how they were doing and, particularly, to find out that everybody was home where they belonged. I can't understand how they all know it is me calling when their phones ring before a blizzard, but they do. "Yes, Mom, we know about the blizzard." "Yes, Mom, we are all inside." "Yes, Mom, we have plenty of food (and fuel and candles and batteries and so on and so on and so on...)"

Speaking of food, why is it that the stores are so filled with people buying food before a blizzard comes? Just ask anybody you know who works at a grocery store and they will tell you - the store is filled with shoppers the minute we have a storm warning issued. Ha - could it be that others are the same as I am and are just as worried as I am? I think so.

So, I am happy that this blizzard was of short duration and that it has moved eastward to the east (poor people there) and it is over and done here and that we are all safe. Now I suppose I can worry about when we will have the next one and get ready to call the kids again.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

Judy Kleinvachter is still having her good coffee pot working and company as usual. This past week June Kasprowicz, Vance, Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, Marie Stoffen, Claudia, Kali and Cheyene Berggren, Jim Fredricks of Warren, Matt Hammer of Pembina, Brian and Tammy Kasprowicz and son Bailey and Caara Holmstrom of Bemidji have been visiting her.

Jim and Cindy Wetterlund met me at the airport and we went out for dinner that evening. The next day, they brought me home and while Cindy spent some time with Carol Pederson, Jim came and installed a dandy VCR/DVD player on my TV, a Christmas gift from Sonny and Janet.

Last night, I was trying out a DVD about some children who were home alone and how they reacted to a tornado that hit the area. Soon I dozed off and came back to life when I heard the radio announcer called out "A tornado has been spotted heading this way. Seek shelter at once." It was the exact voice of Big Red! I jumped up and my first thought was to call my sister Elsie to tell her to be careful on those cement steps to her basement. By this time, I was fully awake and had to laugh when I thought how close I came to spoiling Elsie's dreams. I can't imagine the consequence of a phone call like that! The story ended happily anyhow.

Passion for occupational therapy crosses international boundaries

paraplegic asked Heinze how long it had taken him to adjust to his disabilities. Heinze told him it took about a year, and in relating some of his experiences on this trip, he told him he was still learning. Heinze said it seemed to reassure the young man and he appeared motivated to keep at it. He had only been in a wheelchair for three months, so he realized that he had been expecting too much of himself and that the adjustment would be a lifelong learning process.

There were lots of questions, but one, in particular, surprised him. Heinze said they were asked how much the government paid the group to come to Russia. They were very surprised, he said, when they learned that they were all volunteers or had paid their own way. They wanted to know why. Heinze said they told them that they were very passionate about occupational therapy.

In fact, the mission of the trip, which was sponsored by People to People Ambassador Programs, was to help them achieve a better understanding of what occupational therapy is about and what it can do for their patients.

There may be vast differences in equipment, and facilities, but what the occupational therapists and the ergo-therapists of Russia share in common is a passion to do what's best for their patients. Both realize that therapy is important for the physical and mental well-being of their patients.

The People to People Ambassador Program provides foreign educational travel experiences for professionals. Through meetings, seminars and cultural activities, participants connect with people in similar professions overseas.

Heinze's sponsor for the Ambassador Program was Northwest Medical Center Foundation. He was also supported by the Beito Family Foundation, the Hartz Foundation, the Wells Fargo Bank Foundation and Pennington County Sportsmans Club.

Voters vote at wrong site

If a voter's residence is along a street that borders two precincts, Olson said that it can also be difficult for an election judge and/or the voter to determine where the voter should vote.

"It's sometimes hard for the election judges," added Olson, who noted he didn't want to blame the election judges because they try to do the best they can.

Despite voting elsewhere, the voter may have voted for the same offices even if he or she hadn't voted at the wrong place. Most city precincts had the same ballots as the other precincts in their wards, Olson said. The exceptions were Wards 1A and 1B. One of those wards had a county commissioner seat on its ballot, and the other ward did not.

Voting elsewhere would not have affected whether a person's votes counted since election officials do not know how a particular person voted.

After election day, the County Auditor's Office enters voter information into a database. Employees check off whether a particular person voted, Olson said. They also change the addresses of those voters who have moved and type registration information for newly registered voters.

By typing in voter information, staff members also determine whether a voter had voted or registered in the wrong precinct. Voting place errors were discovered through the roster voters signed and also the voter registration cards that newly registered voters filled out. Then staff members made sure it wasn't an error caused by their office as a result of a residence being inaccurately listed in a precinct, Olson said.

If they've determined it's not an error caused by their office, they send a letter to the voter who voted at the wrong polling place. In Pennington County, Olson said, a form letter from the Minnesota Secretary of State's Office is sent.

Minnesota state law requires counties to send the warning letters. The law mandates that a repeat offender could be found guilty of a petty misdemeanor. A subsequent violation could result in a misdemeanor. However, a voter would not be prosecuted if the municipality, county or state gave him or her the wrong polling place information.

Olson believes a voter wouldn't be prosecuted for voting at the wrong polling place unless he or she voted there on purpose, he said. If a voter moved to another county and voted at the wrong location again, he believed the voter would be given another chance.

In order to vote at the next election, the voter has to provide proof of his or her residence. That can be done by showing a driver's license or other authorized identification to the auditor's office or an election judge when voting next time.

TRF crosswind runway ready

The company also needed to install four additional signs that the FAA required after the placement of the original signs, Lindberg said. Strata Corporation was given a time extension to install those signs.

Despite those corrections and installations, a crosswind runway light still needs to be fixed. The light's leveling device is defective, Lindberg said. However, the FAA has ruled that the runway can be open, but airport officials have to tell pilots the light is out of service.

City Council has yet to determine whether to assess Strata Corporation for liquidated damages. The project's engineer decides whether to recommend liquidated damages to the council, Lindberg said. The council then chooses whether to assess damages.

The possibility of imposing fines may be more complicated than one might expect since the city would not receive all of the fine. FAA and state aid accounted for 90 percent of the cost of the crosswind runway, therefore the city would only receive 10 percent of liquidated damages if it chose to assess the company. About the city's portion of the potential damage assessment, Lindberg said, "For every $100, they get $10."

Rumors have been floating around the city with regard to the crosswind runway's size. It is 5,000 feet by 75 feet. In 1993, city leaders wanted the runway to be 100 feet wide, Lindberg said. Upon studying various locations for the runway three years later, it was decided that the runway would be 4,400 feet by 75 feet.

City officials later received state and federal approval to have a 5,000-foot crosswind runway, Lindberg said. They sought a longer runway since Mesaba Airlines will not land on a runway shorter than 5,000 feet.

The airline will also not land on a runway that is 75 feet wide, Lindberg said. Yet, state officials have designated the crosswind runway for planes smaller than those operated by Mesaba. The planes that can land on the crosswind runway include Class B2 aircraft, which are usually the freighter planes that frequent the airport, and Saab 340 aircraft.

The crosswind runway was needed for safety reasons, Lindberg said. Smaller planes are susceptible to crosswinds, and the runway should make it safer for those planes to land in crosswinds.

higher number of injured owls admitted at the Raptor Center. Normally, they see one or two great gray owls or boreal owls each year. This year, they've treated 39 great gray owls, 11 of which are still being treated at the Raptor Center. Most of them are in good health, but have suffered traumatic or acute trauma brought on by collisions with vehicles.

Ponder said that if you find an injured owl to call the Raptor Center, a local official or the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. (Tips for handling injured raptors are included in a sidebar story adjacent to this story.)

Ponder also asks that birdwatchers use care when watching the birds as well. (Tips about watching owls are addressed in a sidebar story from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.) Try not to disrupt them. If observing them from a car, turn off your car engine.

Established in 1974, The Raptor Center at the University of Minnesota College of Veterinary Medicine specializes in the medical care, rehabilitation, and conservation of eagles, hawks, owls, and falcons. In addition to treating approximately 800 birds a year, the internationally known program provides training in raptor medicine and surgery for veterinarians from around the world, reaches more than 150,000 people each year through public education programs and events, and identifies emerging issues related to raptor health and populations. The majority of its funding comes from private donations.

Online donations are accepted, but donations also can be mailed to: The Raptor Center, 1920 Fitch Ave., St. Paul, MN 55108.

Owls on move, use caution when observing

The largest irruption of northern owls ever documented is occurring in Minnesota this winter. Many people have noticed the unusual numbers of great gray owls, northern hawk owls, and boreal owls.

The owls are moving south to find food because of a collapse of small mammal populations over a large swath of Canada and northern Minnesota. This happens periodically, but this year it occurred much earlier. Owls began moving south in September and October, rather than in November or December as in past irruptions.

Many of the owls stopped along the North Shore of Lake Superior and other productive hunting areas such as wetlands across northern Minnesota. People are seeing owls in new and unusual places. The recent ice storm followed by several inches of snow over much of northern Minnesota has further limited food sources for owls. There have been reports of increased sightings in Carlton, Aitkin, and Pine counties.

This winter's irruption of owls has also brought large numbers of bird enthusiasts from all over the U.S. and even other countries. Because more bird watchers are out in rural areas, there have been increased car/owl collisions and complaints of owl watchers stopping in unsafe areas to observe owls.

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) urges owl watchers to use caution when driving through areas where owls are hunting. Owls will swoop down to capture prey. They are not used to cars.

When watching owls, DNR urges people to look for safe places to stop their cars especially because of icy road conditions in many areas. Pam Perry, DNR nongame wildlife specialist, asks people to be careful not to interrupt the owls' hunting. She said, "The birds are stressed and having a difficult time finding food. Watch from a distance. Don't get out of your car, and please don't [illegible]."

In addition to injuries/death of owls from car collisions, unfortunately some are likely to succumb to the lack of food and the bitter cold. If you find a dead owl, please make note of where and when you found the owl, and call one of the DNR offices listed below. DNR would like a name and contact number of the person who found the owl.

Persistence rewards racers and fans

Dan Ebert, Nate Miller and Tom Rambow were some of the big winners at the Carlisle Commercial Sewing Sno-X SnoCross race at the Pennington County Fairgrounds in Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 22 and 23.

Race officials reported that 142 racers from throughout the region showed up for racing on Saturday and Sunday. The number of racers participating in the event was lower than anticipated, but it was understandable given the blizzard that swept through Thief River Falls, North Dakota and Minnesota on Friday. There were unofficial reports on Saturday from some of the fans and families supporting racers, that it took nine hours to travel from the Twin Cities to Thief River Falls.

Fans were at the event to see the action, but racers weren't the only winners. Fans in the grandstand were frequently bombarded by sponsor t-shirts and hats thrown by the announcer, and on Sunday, had a shot at winning an Arctic Cat snowmobile. The grand-prize winner was Dave Dunrud of Grygla.

Arctic Cat reports 2005 third-quarter results

Arctic Cat Inc. reported net sales of $188.9 million for the fiscal 2005 third quarter ended Dec. 31, 2004, down 3 percent compared to net sales of $194.6 million in the prior-year period. Third-quarter net earnings were $5.8 million, or $0.28 per diluted share, versus net earnings of $9.7 million, or $0.46 per diluted share, in the same period last year. The quarter's results reflect anticipated lower snowmobile sales and a less favorable Japanese foreign currency conversion.

Year-to-date, net sales grew 4 percent to $532.1 million compared to $509.5 million in the year-ago period. Net earnings totaled $25.6 million, or $1.22 per diluted share, versus $31.4 million, or $1.44 per diluted share, in the nine-month period last year.

"ATV sales continue to be our primary growth driver, and we are successfully increasing our share of this market," said Christopher A. Twomey, Arctic Cat's chairman and chief executive officer. "During calendar year 2004, Arctic Cat's sales growth again outpaced the industry as we have every year since entering the ATV market."

Sales of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) in the third quarter grew to $84.1 million, up from $67.1 million in the same period last year. The company's year-to-date ATV sales rose to $223.9 million compared to $190.2 million last year. Production of the first Arctic Cat-designed and built ATV engine, the new 650 H1, is proceeding. The company is currently taking orders for the 650 H1 ATV model and expects to begin shipping this product in the fourth quarter ending March 31.

Continuing a planned reduction in its fiscal 2005 snowmobile production after several seasons of poor snow conditions, Arctic Cat's snowmobile sales declined in the third quarter to $78.9 million versus $100.9 million in the prior-year quarter. Year-to-date snowmobile sales are on plan, totaling $241.6 million compared to $253.3 million during the same period last year. Arctic Cat has already unveiled its first 2006 model snowmobile, the Crossfire, a versatile hybrid machine designed for both mountain and trail riding.

Unseasonably warm weather through mid-December resulted in poor snow conditions on the East and Midwest, slowing industrywide retail snowmobile sales during the quarter. At the end of December and in early January, Arctic Cat's retail activity began gaining momentum due to snow accumulations in late December and retail sales programs announced earlier in the month. As a result of slightly lower wholesale and lower carry-over inventory, overall inventory at the dealer level is manageable at this time.

Parts, garments and accessories (PG & A) sales were $25.8 million versus $26.6 million in the prior-year third quarter. Year-to-date PG & A sales grew to $66.7 million compared to $66 million in the year-ago period. These sales have also been adversely affected by the unseasonably warm weather through mid-December, but are expected to recover now that the weather has normalized.

Arctic Cat repurchased 190,000 shares of its common stock in the fiscal third quarter and has approximately $11.6 million remaining on its current share repurchase authorization. At the end of the third quarter ended Dec. 31, 2004, the company reported $84.2 million in cash and no long-term debt.

Company reiterates outlook for 2005 fiscal-year growth

"We expect higher sales of ATVs in our fiscal fourth quarter than in previous fourth-quarter periods, leading to record full-year sales and higher earnings," Twomey said.

Arctic Cat expects net sales for the fourth quarter ending March 31, 2005, to range between $155 million and $168 million, compared to $140.2 million for the same period last year. Net earnings for the quarter are estimated to be between $0.24 and $0.29 per diluted share versus a net loss of $0.05 per diluted share in the prior-year period.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 2005, Arctic Cat anticipates that net sales will grow 5 to 8 percent and be in the range of $687 million to $700 million. Full-year diluted earnings per share are estimated to grow 4 to 8 percent and be in the range of $1.46 to $1.51.

Little Brother/Little Sister Program seeks volunteers

Fourteen elementary and middle school students from Pennington County are waiting for big brothers or sisters. Each child comes from a single-parent, low-income home, or a home with other issues. They need time and attention from an adult mentor to show them how special and unique they are.

The Little Brother/Little Sister Program seeks volunteer big brothers or sisters who are between 18 and 88 years old, enjoy being with kids, can handle children well, and are willing to spend two hours a week with a child. Planned activities also enable volunteers to meet others in the program.

To find out more, call Sue Dupree, program coordinator, at 681-8711, extension 241, or sdupree@trf.k12.mn.us

Board members were recently installed for the Little Brother/Little Sister Advisory Committee. ## Old Mill reschedules candlelight ski event

Old Mill State Park has rescheduled a candlelight ski event for Saturday, Jan. 29 from 6 to 9 p.m. The event was originally scheduled for Jan. 22, but forecasted cold temperatures and high winds caused the cancellation.

Come and enjoy skiing by the full moon on a 1.2-mile trail, which will be set with luminaries. On a clear night, the trail glows and guides visitors on a scenic tour through the wooded areas of the park. The event will be canceled if the temperature at noon is lower than 10 degrees Fahrenheit. If in doubt about the temperature that day, call the park at (218) 437-8174.

Cross-country skis are available for rent on a first come, first serve basis with a variety of sizes. Snowshoes are also available for rent. Coffee, hot chocolate, cider and other goodies will be available in the picnic shelter courtesy of the Friends of Old Mill State Park (FOMSP).

Another candlelight ski event is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 19 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the park in Marshall County.

Activities planned Sunday, Feb. 13

Starting at 1 p.m., park visitors will be able to enjoy a horse-drawn sleigh for a ride through the woods and prairie. They can also bring their sleds as the sledding hill is in excellent condition with a six- to eight-inch base of packed snow. Ski trails will be groomed prior to the event. Snowshoes and cross-country skis will be available to rent for reduced prices during the day. Coffee, hot chocolate and cider will be provided by FOMSP, but visitors are asked to bring some goodies to share. The event will be canceled if the temperature at noon that day is lower than 10 degrees Fahrenheit. Call the park if in doubt about the temperature that day.

Great Minnesota Ski Passes are required for people 16 years or older for $3 per day at the park office, or visitors can purchase one-year permits or three-year permits wherever fishing or hunting licenses are sold.

Vehicle permits are required to enter the park. The 2005 annual permit featuring Minneopa State Park may be purchased. It will allow entry into all Minnesota State Parks. The annual permit is valid for 12 months from the date of purchase. Annual permits ($25), daily permits ($7), daily ski passes and rentals are available at the park office.

Old Mill State Park is located in Marshall County, 12 miles west of Newfolden, 13 miles east of Argyle, or 17 miles northeast of Warren on Marshall County Road 39.

The weather in northwest Minnesota and northwest Montana seems to have the right ingredients to make a normal, agreeable January; not too cold and just some snow.

We have been celebrating Pearl Thompson's 90th birthday all last week. It was such a special day, but due to the bad weather, many of her friends and relatives from far away couldn't come so a special day in May will be announced later. It isn't everyone who reaches that age and gets as much done as Pearl. Isaac Thompson came to town and brought her and me to their home where Ms. Betsy had dinner and entertained us.

David and Melanie Spencer from the Cities have been visiting her parents, Don and Marlys Lefrooth over the weekend. On Saturday, they stopped to see Grandma Elsie Lefrooth before returning home.

What can I do to help an injured raptor?

staff is on call 24 hours a day. Referrals are handled through the University of Minnesota's small animal emergency clinic, which is located on the St. Paul Campus. That phone number is 612-625-9711.

Tips for Handling Injured Raptors

1. Please do not attempt to rehabilitate a raptor on your own. Always contact a licensed professional. If you are unsure of who to notify, you can contact The Raptor Center, or appropriate agencies in your area:

- The United States Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS)
- Your state's Department of Natural Resources or Department of Game, Fish and Parks
- Your local sheriff's office

2. If you must handle or move a bird, first cover the bird with a blanket or towel to reduce its visual stimulation, and protect yourself by wearing heavy gloves and safety glasses. Then, gently fold the bird's wings into its body with your two gloved hands and gently but firmly lift the bird into a transport container. Remember: Even a seriously injured raptor is potentially dangerous. Wild birds do not understand that we are trying to help and will defend themselves. They are quite unpredictable, and you should be especially aware of their sharp beak and talons.

3. The best way to transport a raptor is in a plastic dog or cat kennel, or a sturdy cardboard box. Avoid bird or wire cages as these can cause feather and soft tissue damage. The carrier should have plenty of ventilation holes and should only be slightly larger than the size of the bird. The less room an injured bird has to move around, the less likely it is to cause more injury to itself. However, on the flip side, if a container is too small, a bird can sustain extensive wing and feather damage.

4. Never feed an injured raptor unless you have been instructed to do so by a licensed rehabilitator. The dietary needs of raptors are more delicately balanced than people realize. Even the juiciest steak imaginable will not provide a raptor with what it needs. Also, most injured birds are suffering from dehydration, and attempting to feed them or give them water orally may worsen their condition. If a bird has not eaten for a while, its digestive system shuts down and it cannot handle any food. At The Raptor Center, these patients are given a special fluid therapy for a day or two to jump-start their systems before any type of food is provided.

5. Handle an injured raptor as little as possible. Stress resulting from human contact can reduce a bird's chance of recovery.

6. Until the bird can be transferred, provide it with a dark, quiet, calm, warm environment. Darkness has a calming effect on birds. Extra care should be taken to keep the bird away from children and pets.

7. Do not keep a raptor any longer than is necessary to get it to a veterinary professional, raptor rehabilitator, or state/federal wildlife representative.

The Thief River Falls TIMES

Eveleth-Gilbert forward Mallory Rice had this third period shot turned back by Thief River Falls goalie Brandy Hermanson during Saturday's girls high school hockey game at the Ralph Engelstad Arena. The Prowlers beat the Golden Bears 4-2.

NCTC zone holds off Raiders

■ Northland women beat Central Lakes 58-47

Playing zone is not the defense of choice for Northland head coach Missy Majerus. But it's there for a backup. And the Pioneers had to go to Plan B Saturday to secure a 58-47 Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball win at Central Lakes.

Despite an 0-12 start to the 2004-05 season, the Raiders were giving the Pioneers plenty of trouble. It was 25-25 at halftime, and by the middle of the second half Majerus had seen enough. It was time to make a change on defense.

"We decided we had to go to a zone," explained Majerus. "We don't want to play zone; we don't even practice it. But we were in foul trouble and they were having success penetrating to the basket. We made the change, and they had trouble shooting from the outside."

Trailing 42-37 early in the second half, the Pioneers took over with a 20-2 run.

The win put the Pioneers above .500 overall at 9-8 and in Northern Division play at 3-2.

Kamae Larson scored 13 points and Kelly Dunnigan 12 for the Pioneers, with Ashley Kujawa (9) and Alisa Costin (8) just a basket away from joining them in double figures. Kim Rosencrans and Courtney Stach scored 13 points apiece and Shannon McCarthy had 10 for the Raiders.

Northland won while shooting just 30 percent from the field (22/73). The Pioneers were 8-for-15 at the free throw line. Costin grabbed 15 rebounds and Larson had 9 as the visitors finished with a 48-41 rebound edge.

Central Lakes shot just a little better with a 31 percent 19-for-61 afternoon, but the Raiders were only 8-for-22 at the line.

The two teams combined for 58 turnovers – 31 by the Raiders; 27 for the Pioneers.

Scoring

Duluth Marshall is a 4-1 winner over TRF

There was no advantage to being on the power play for Thief River Falls Saturday in a boys high school hockey match-up with Marshall School of Duluth. Not only did the Prowlers fail to score while the Hilltoppers were in the box; they gave up a shorthanded goal. As a result, Thief River Falls returned home with a 4-1 loss.

"Special teams killed us," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "We had power play opportunities, but we didn't get the job done."

Four different Marshall players scored goals as the Hilltoppers skated to a 2-0 first period lead and a 3-0 second period cushion.

It was 4-0 when Kevin Mahoney scored shorthanded four minutes into the third period.

The lone Thief River Falls goal came a minute later off the stick of Michael Forney.

Duluth goalie Jason Paul made 32 saves. Lance Klaven, in his sec-

TRF girls come up with weekend hockey tie and win...

Prowlers end losing streak

A 14-game losing streak ended Friday night and a 15-game winless streak came to an end the next afternoon for the Thief River Falls girls high school hockey team.

While most teams would be happy with a weekend that produces a tie and a win, the Prowlers – who opened the 2004-05 season with a 4-2 victory over East Grand Forks, then lost the rest – were positively ecstatic after tying Lake of the Woods 1-1 and beating Eveleth-Gilbert 4-2 at the Ralph Engelstad Arena.

"We're awfully excited about the weekend results," said Thief River Falls coach Tim Magnusson following the matinee victory over the Golden Bears. "This should give the girls a shot of confidence."

The Prowlers were looking to break into the win column for the first time in over two months when they took a 1-0 lead into the third period against Lake of the Woods.

A first period Brooke Rundell goal and Trudy Erickson's goaltending kept the Bears at bay until Deanna Baron scored at 10:23 of the final period.

"We played pretty well," said Magnusson. "We actually dominated early. We had some chances, but we hit a couple of pipes and missed the net."

Lack of offense was a major factor in the Thief River Falls losing streak. The Prowlers never scored more than two goals in those 14 games, and they hit that number just once. But that changed Saturday when they launched 43 shots at Eveleth-Gilbert goalie Brittany Moberg and matched that four-goal season-opening output.

"We switched our forecheck a couple of weeks ago, but we just haven't had a chance to use it," said Magnusson, whose team was playing for the first time since Jan. 8 following three straight weather-related cancelations. "It (forecheck) helps keep the puck in their zone so we don't have to play all night in our end."

Eveleth-Gilbert got on the board first with a power play goal just 5:43 into the game. Erickson lost sight of the puck on the play when the Golden Bears tried to make a pass behind the net. She expected it to come around to her right, but instead it caromed back the other way and came to a stop alongside the left post. With players from both sides rushing to the loose puck, it was poked in by Mallory Rice.

Thief River Falls tied it 1-1 at 15:31 of the first period when defenseman Kjelsy Loeffler picked up the puck behind Erickson and stickhandled her way out of the Prowlers' zone before making a center ice pass that put Rundell behind the Golden Bears' defense. She finished the play with an uncontested close-in shot.

A Thief River Falls second period go-ahead goal came after an Eveleth-Gilbert clearing pass bounced off the skates of an official along the boards and was picked up by the Prowlers' DD Rambeck near the face-off circle to Moberg's left. She whipped a wrist shot past the goalie from the top of the slot area at 6:55.

Momentum from a strong second period carried over when the Prowlers all but wrapped up the win by opening the third period with two goals in 19 seconds.

Molly Peterson made it 3-1 when her long shot bounced off Moberg's body at 2:27 and Rambeck came from behind the net to stuff the puck between the goalie's leg and the post at 2:46.

"We got off to a great start in the third period," acknowledged Magnusson. "That was big. It put us up by three, and that hasn't happened too many times this year."

A senior who has started every game and played most of the minutes in goal this year, Erickson gave way to freshman Brandy Hermanson in the third period.

The Golden Bears got one goal back when Kate Matanich intercepted a Thief River Falls clearing pass and came in alone to beat Hermanson high at 9:51.

Home games this week against International Falls Tuesday and Detroit Lakes Thursday will complete the Prowlers' regular season schedule. Section 3A tournament play starts Tuesday, Feb. 1.

TRF vs. Lake of the Woods

Second period - no scoring.

Third period - LOW, Deanna Baron (Sam Lyon), 10:23.

TRF vs. Eveleth-Gilbert

First period - E-G, Mallory Rice, 5:43; TRF, Brooke Rundell (Kjelsy Loeffler), 15:31.

Second period - TRF, DD Rambeck (Chasity Johnson, Loeffler), 6:55.

Third period - TRF, Molly Peterson, 2:27; TRF, Rambeck (Megan Snyder), 2:46; E-G, Kate Matanich, 9:51.

Goalie saves - TRF, Trudy Erickson 7-3-0; Brandy Hermanson x-x-6, TRF total 16; E-G, Brittany Moberg 16-10-17-43.

A save was made by Eveleth-Gilbert goalie Brittany Moberg as Thief River Falls' Brooke Rundell (16) and Brittni Johnson tried to turn a shorthanded scoring opportunity into a goal during Saturday afternoon girls high school hockey action at the Ralph Engelstad Arena. The Prowlers won their first game since Nov. 9 with a 4-2 victory over the Golden Bears.

Central Lakes wins by 77-65 over Pioneers

Brainerd lakes area is a vacation destination for visitors across the country. But it's not one of Rick Nikunen's favorite spots to visit. That's because the Northland men's basketball coach has found it nearly impossible to win a game there – a streak that continued Saturday when the Pioneers lost a 77-65 Minnesota Community College Conference decision to Central Lakes.

"I just hate going there," said Nikunen while grinding his teeth. "We have a tough time playing them down there."

Northland, trailing 40-29 at the half, just never got its offense going, according to Nikunen. "We just did not play well offensively," he acknowledged. "We did not shoot the ball very well. I kept telling them (Pioneers), you're putting way too much pressure on the defense when you don't score."

The Raiders got a strong 22-point game from post player Leonard Langdon – nothing surprising there, admitted Nikunen. But in double-teaming Langdon, the Pioneers left others open, especially on the outside. And that's where Central Lakes crossed them up by going 8-for-12 from 3-point range.

Langdon is a good player," explained Nikunen. "We knew we had to stop him. But the scouting report on them was that they couldn't shoot from the outside."

Juwaun Bowman scored 18 points and Mike Howard had 14 for the Pioneers, who were 20-for-49 from the field (41 percent) and a busy 20-for-26 at the free throw line. They were out-rebounded 39-30.

Central Lakes was 29-for-64 from the floor (45 percent) and 11-for-12 at the line.

The Pioneers topped the turnover charts 20-18.

Northland is 11-7 overall and 3-2 in the Northern Division. Central Lakes improved to 11-8 and matched the Pioneers' 3-1 MCCC mark.

The Pioneers host Providence tonight (Wednesday) and play at Hibbing Saturday.

TRF JV boys notch 57-46 Thursday basketball win

Crookston was a 57-46 winner over Thief River Falls in Thursday boys junior varsity high school basketball.

The Prowlers led 12-8 at the end of the first quarter and had a 29-28 halftime edge before falling behind 39-35 in the third quarter.

Andrew BlackLance scored 16 points and Lee Peterson had 11 for the Prowlers.

Paul Sjoberg of the Prowlers held his ground defensively against the Pirates' Jake Coauette Thursday during boys high school basketball action in Thief River Falls. Crookston won 72-66.

High school wrestling tournament...

Prowlers are 1-2 at Detroit Lakes meet

It was a 1-2 Saturday performance for Thief River Falls at the Detroit Lakes Invitational high school wrestling tournament, where the Prowlers lost to Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and Little Falls before beating Ottertail Central.

On a day when weather reduced a original eight-team bracket to five entries, Thief River Falls fell to the Gators a second time this winter, 43-27; dropped a close 38-32 match to the Flyers; then defeated the Bulldogs, a Battle Lake-Underwood cooperative, 41-23.

Results put the Prowlers' dual record at 6-7.

Dan LeDuc, Zach Anderson and Andrew Peralta had 3-0 days for the Prowlers. Jordan Engen, Kyle Iverson, Thain Abrahamson and Adam Lian were 2-1, with Engen recording a pair of pins.

Eight Prowlers have winning records at this point in the season, according to head coach Kenny Geiser. That group includes Engen, an eighth grader who is 17-10 at 103 pounds; Iverson, a sophomore, 15-8 at 125; Anderson, a senior, 23-1 at 140; Abrahamson, a senior, 15-9 at 145; LeDuc, a junior, 22-1 at 152; Lian, a senior, 14-9 at 171; junior Manuel Peralta, 14-10 at 215; and Andrew Peralta, a sophomore, 21-3 at heavyweight.

Eagles' second half secures win

Weather pushed the game back a day, and it took Grygla-Gatzke another 16 minutes or so to get going Saturday before finishing with a 73-54 boys high school basketball win over visiting Roseau.

The Eagles led 16-9 at the end of the first quarter and had a 31-28 edge at intermission. But Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson wasn't happy with his team's first half play.

"Roseau took it to us in the first half," said Johnson. "Basically, they out-played us. They beat us to the ball. They out-worked us."

The Eagles apparently got the message at halftime. They out-scored the Rams 23-12 in the third quarter to open up a 54-40 spread.

"We got off to a good start in the second half," noted Johnson. "The kids did a nice job of answering the challenge."

Andrew Holte and Tomas Loberg scored 16 points apiece. Adam Sparby netted 14 and Tim Polansky 12 for the Eagles, who won for the 13th time in 14 starts. The 6-7 Loberg ran into early foul trouble and spent stretches on the bench.

Adam Gumeringer had a game-high 22 points for the Rams.

Grygla-Gatzke was 22-for-52 from the field (48 percent) and, thanks in part to Roseau fouls in a late-game attempt to stay close, had a busy 21-for-31 free throw night. The Rams were 21-for-50 from the floor (42 percent) and 8-for-12 at the line. Roseau had a 24-22 rebound edge. Turnovers were even at seven-apiece.

Gators roll past Wolverines

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River scored the game's first 17 points and rolled to a 64-24 Thursday girls high school basketball win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

The Gators led at the quarter stops 17-2, 31-8 and 51-15 as they won their 16th straight game.

But it was a costly victory as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River sophomore post player Kaley Mekash went down with a severe ankle sprain midway through the second quarter. She will be sidelined indefinitely, according to Gators coach Tom Neibauer.

"That hurts," said Neibauer. "It's going to be a tough week here without Kaley. We're going to have to learn to play without her in the line-up."

Kierah Kimbrough had a 31-point game and Missy Bruggeman netted 10 for the Gators, who were 29-for-66 from the field (44 percent) and 6-for-10 at the free throw line.

Justyne Larson scored 13 points to lead the 5-9 Wolverines, who were 2-for-4 at the line.

Mustangs win at BSU

Red Lake County Central started the game with an 11-0 lead and wound up with a 12-point, 46-34 win over Kelliher/Northome Saturday in a girls high school basketball game played at Bemidji State University.

It wasn't, however, a start-to-finish advantage for the Mustangs. After the fast start, Red Lake County Central was out-scored 14-2 to the quarter and trailed 24-21 at halftime.

But the game took another turn when Red Lake County Central held Kelliher/Northome to 10 second half points. The Mustangs went back in front 34-28 in the third quarter.

"We played pretty good defense in the second half," confirmed Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "We had changed defenses, but at the start of the second half we went back to what we were doing earlier." They just did it better.

Courtney Halvorson (15) and Brittany Gustafson (14) combined for 29 points as the Mustangs improved to 7-9.

Red Lake County Central was 17-for-40 from the field (43 percent). The Mustangs were only 7-for-19 at the free throw line, including a 3-for-10 fourth quarter that kept them from running away with it. Kelliher/Northome went 15-for-46 from the floor (33 percent) and 2-for-7 at the line.

B/G-MR out-scores upset-minded KCN

Six 3-pointers by Kittson County North kept it close, but Badger/Greenbush-Middle River remained unbeaten in girls high school basketball Monday by out-scoring the visiting Cougars 70-62.

Kierah Kimbrough scored 39 points, Missy Bruggeman 19 and Liz Schenkey 10 as the 17-0 Gators grabbed a 23-14 first quarter lead, held on to a 31-30 halftime edge and established a 50-42 third quarter difference.

Kittson County North had a one-point third quarter lead before Bruggeman sparked a game-deciding run by the Gators, who were playing their first game without injured starting post player Kaley Mekash.

"It's a big adjustment playing without Kaley," said Gators coach Tom Neibauer. "We didn't do a very good job on the weak-side boards with her out of the line-up."

Four Cougars hit double figures as Lacey Swenson scored 18 points, Ashley Matthew 15, Whitney Coffield 13 and Chelsi Nelson 10.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a 56 percent 28-for-50 shooting night from the field and made 14 of 19 free throw attempts. Kittson County North complemented the 3-pointers with an 18-for-19 free throw game.

A shot by Eveleth-Gilbert seventh grader Jordana Turner (15) was knocked aside by Thief River Falls goalie Trudy Erickson during first period action in Saturday's high school hockey match-up. The Prowlers followed a 1-1 Friday night tie against Lake of the Woods with a 4-2 matinee win over the Golden Bears.

Rams beat Prowlers in overtime

Roseau out-scored Thief River Falls 8-0 in overtime Monday for a 51-43 girls high school basketball victory.

The visiting Prowlers led at the first three quarter stops 9-8, 24-19 and 34-29. A 14-9 fourth-quarter scoring edge for the Rams tied the game at 43-43 and forced overtime.

It was a disappointing outcome, acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe, who called it "one of the toughest losses I've had to endure. We let it get away at the end."

Tonja Timmersman scored 16 points and Jamie Walter had 12 for the Rams. The Prowlers got a 12-point, 11-rebound double-double from Nichole Gryskiewicz, while Becca Larson (14 points, 9 rebounds) and Heather Keogh (8 points, 11 rebounds) just missed that designation.

Thief River Falls put up 78 shots, but made only 19 for a 24 percent shooting performance.

"We came out aggressive and forced them to turn it over," explained Loe. "However, we didn't convert on many of those turnovers."

The 6-9 Prowlers sealed their fate with a 4-for-21 showing at the free throw line.

"A lot of the same-old, same-old as far as shooting percentage and free throws," admitted Loe.

Roseau didn't have a great shooting night, either, with a 17-for-58 effort from the floor (29 percent) and a 17-for-34 figure at the line.

With plenty of misses, there were a lot of rebounds to go around, with the Rams winning the board battle 55-50. But Roseau also had 40 turnovers. Thief River Falls turned it over 27 times.

The game was a make-up from a weather-related postponement.

Crookston girls take JV match-up with Prowlers

Crookston gave up just two first half points and beat Thief River Falls 43-21 Thursday in girls junior varsity high school basketball.

The Pirates led at the quarter stops 9-2, 12-2 and 30-6.

Amanda Hoard and Mandy Thompson led Thief River Falls with six points each.

TRF, EGF, Roseau host DNR deer management meetings February 3, 4

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will hold a series of public meetings in February to further discuss the results of this past October's survey of deer hunters in northwest Minnesota.

These meetings are the second phase of a project to gauge hunter support for regulations that may increase the proportion of antlered deer. Results of a survey of 300 northwest deer hunters, is available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

In addition to the survey, DNR wildlife staff will present information about deer response to different harvest regulations.

"Attendance and input from the public are important components of setting direction for deer management in northwestern Minnesota," said Lou Cornicelli, DNR big game coordinator.

As a result of these meetings, the DNR hopes to develop deer management proposals that fully consider both biological needs (deer herd management) and social issues. The DNR will not propose specific changes at this meeting.

Area meetings, all scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., include:

- ■ Thursday, Feb. 3 - Roseau High School theater.
- ■ Thursday, Feb. 3 - Northland Community and Technical College auditorium, East Grand Forks.
- ■ Friday, Feb. 4 - Northland Community and Technical College theater, Thief River Falls.

Format for the meetings will be a 20- to 25-minute DNR presentation outlining the issues, followed by an opportunity for the public to give oral comments and fill out a survey.

Strandquist

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

I wrote that line only a week ago and today I will have to say, "We haven't had this much snow in a week, nor as cold weather, the past 16 years that I've lived here!" I'm so fortunate that Mark Hanson and his crew came with two big snowblowers and cleaned the sidewalks and the apron of the garage of snow, enabling me to drive and attend all of the regular Sunday activities and put the garbage out this morning.

I can't get the garbage out before the paper is delivered early in the morning because the man who brings the paper doesn't want the garbage bags on the apron where he has to drive to reach the mailbox.

I spent a month in beautiful Flathead Valley, on the west side of Glacier National Park visiting my family and friends, having a wonderful time. Each year I see them makes it more difficult to leave them. Many of my older friends have gone now and it makes me realize how short even a long life is. But after living here in Minnesota the last 16 years, together with all my sisters, brothers and all their spouses, I can't think of moving back to Kalispell.

There are hundreds of birds flying around and swinging on the cherry tree branches. Perhaps, spring is on the way. Danny says it will be colder tomorrow.

Minnesota ranks among the top in preparedness

A new report identifies Minnesota among the top six states in the nation in preparing for a possible terrorist attack using biological, chemical or radiological agents.

The report was prepared by the Trust for America's Health (TFAH), a non-partisan, non-profit study group focusing on disease prevention issues. TFAH used publicly available information in preparing its report.

Minnesota received a passing score for eight of 10 indicators used by TFAH, equal with Nebraska, New Hampshire and Virginia. Only Florida and North Carolina had higher scores, with passing grades on nine of 10 indicators.

This is the second annual TFAH report on public health preparedness for health-related attacks. Last year, Minnesota only received a passing score for five of the 10 indicators, placing it among the top 24 states nationwide. However, Minnesota officials also pointed out that last year's report used a slightly different set of indicators.

Indicators for which Minnesota received a passing score this year included:

- making effective use of federal preparedness funding provided to the states
- maintaining or increasing state-level funding for public health activities
- coordinating public health preparedness planning between state and local government
- having a relatively young public health workforce, with less than 25 percent eligible to retire within five years
- having sufficient bio-safety level three laboratory capacity to handle lab work relating to possible terrorist incidents
- having the legal authority to quarantine individuals who could be infectious during an infectious disease emergency
- achieving an increase in the percentage of people over 65 who have been vaccinated against influenza
- having in place a plan for responding to a possible outbreak of pandemic influenza

The two indicators for which Minnesota did not receive a passing score included having enough lab personnel to test for plague or anthrax during a possible bioterrorism attack, and having a system for tracking disease on a daily basis using the Internet.

Officials at the Minnesota Department of Health believe the report may not reflect the most recent information about public health preparedness in Minnesota, especially regarding the availability of laboratory staff to handle possible bioterrorism events. They also noted that Internet-based systems are only one way for tracking disease. However, they were gratified to be recognized for their efforts by TFAH.

"Since 9-11, we have had a broad coalition of agencies and organizations working very hard to increase our level of preparedness for health-related terrorist attacks," said Dianne Mandernach, Minnesota commissioner of health. "The team includes both my agency and local public health agencies, all across the state. It also includes law enforcement, state and local emergency management personnel, the health care system, and major voluntary organizations.

"We're happy to see that all this hard work is beginning to pay off, and that we're being recognized for it at the national level," Mandernach said.

TFAH, the group that prepared the new report, describes its mission as "saving lives by protecting the health of every community and working to make disease prevention a national priority." TFAH is sponsored by a number of major foundations, including the Pew Charitable Trusts and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. Support for the new preparedness report was also provided by the Bauman Foundation and the New York Community Trust.

Grow jobs and improve business in Thief River Falls

At the 91st Annual Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Banquet, Maryel Anderson put a fun spin on last year's events. Anderson and her daughter Vanessa Martell belted out a rap song that featured the many events that took place during the year. The spectacle and song had the audience in stitches, they were laughing so hard. It was a good start to a fun evening.

The gaiety aside, the business of the Chamber of Commerce is the business of Thief River Falls. That's a serious mission, but it's one mission that benefits all citizens of Thief River Falls.

Nothing good ever happens in Thief River Falls without the support of citizens and businesses in Thief River Falls. Our Chamber of Commerce is often the backbone that gives those projects support. If you're a business person or a professional and you have concerns about the direction this community is taking on any number of projects and issues, then you should be a member of the Chamber of Commerce. It's the one place, the one organization in our community, that understands the sometimes unique difficulties and obstacles you face. Outside of an elected post in government, it's the one place where your contribution and vote can lead to change.

As chairperson of the 2004 board of directors, Maryel Anderson set a high standard. At the 2005 banquet, she turned over the reins of leading this influential group of citizens to Dr. Jim Langland. Like Anderson, Langland will have to lead the Chamber during and through some difficult challenges. We hope they will see these challenges as opportunities, and that Thief River Falls will prosper and grow as a result.

In his message, Langland accepted this mission and said, "Growing jobs and improving the business, retail and health care environment will help our community grow and prosper insuring a better future for all our families. At this past year's Strategic Planning Session, the Chamber determined that growing jobs and retaining and expanding local business were our top priorities. This year, we will participate in the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce's Grow Minnesota! program. The Chamber will also continue to be a strong voice for business in northwestern Minnesota."

We're all looking forward to a reinvigorated Chamber of Commerce that embraces its mission to "grow jobs and improve the business, retail and health care environment" of Thief River Falls.

What's black and white and "read" all over? Short letters

Thanks for all of the letters. We appreciate the effort, and hope that your letters continue to have a meaningful impact on all of our readers. While we enjoy receiving all of the letters, it may be helpful to you and our readers to keep in mind a few helpful suggestions.

Letters to the editor are among the most-read stories in our newspaper. Other than looking at the front page headlines, law enforcement news and obituaries, readers most frequently gravitate toward letters to the editor when they open the pages of a newspaper. That said, as a letter writer, there are some things you should keep in mind. Most importantly is the fact that we live during a time during which we are often asked to account for each and every minute. We lead very busy lives and don't have a lot of spare or free time. Because our time is spread thin between obligations pertaining to work, and children, homework, and keeping our households functioning, we tend to read only those stories that are brief or have more meaning. That's why it's important to keep your letters short.

Some newspapers limit the length of letters to 200 or 300 words. Editors aren't trying to be mean or nasty. Keeping the length of letters down to 200 or 300 words allows more letter-writers to get their thoughts and ideas in publication. Readers also tend to read shorter letters. From experience, we know that if you dive into a lengthy dissertation, you will quickly lose our readers.

We are thankful for all of the letters that we receive, but if you're writing a letter to the editor, get to the point as quickly as possible, preferably within 300 words.

POLICIES

Letters To The Editor: The staff of The Times encourages written responses to editorial comment or letters with original thoughts or ideas of general interest. Letters should be intended for publication in The Times exclusively; letters sent to multiple publications will generally not be accepted. Right is reserved to edit letters for length and clarity and to reject letters deemed to be promotional in nature or in poor taste.

Letters Must Be Signed: All letters must be signed and contain an address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified.

Signatures must appear on letters published. The staff believes that there is greater credibility in letters signed in print and will not withhold names of writers from publication.

Responses Invited: Letters critical of individuals or other entities may be shown to those individuals or representatives of those entities in advance of publication with an invitation by newspaper staff for response in the same issue as the original letter.

Corrections: If an error is made in news or advertising publication, the staff encourages readers to call it to our immediate attention [illegible]. We will attempt to correct the error or clarify the misunderstanding in the next issue.

Lieder:

State of State offers no real blueprint for better Minn.

by Rep. Bernie Lieder

This week, the Legislature left St. Paul and headed to Rochester for Gov. Tim Pawlenty's State of the State address. When I first heard about the change of venue, I was hoping it would also signal a renewed focus by the Governor on the needs of Greater Minnesota.

Unfortunately, the speech ended up signaling a renewed focus on Rochester alone. Beyond a proposal to increase the percentage of ethanol required in gasoline, the governor skirted the key issues facing rural Minnesota.

First and foremost was the state's $1.4 billion deficit, which the governor ignored all together. That's a shame because if we are to have any hope of balancing the budget and moving forward on the key challenges facing us, we need to start talking honestly about the deficit.

With his State of the State address, the governor continues to deny the impact that continued deficits are having on issues like school funding, health care and transportation. He is also trying to frame the state's debate as simply a question of whether we should raise taxes or not. Our experience in northwest Minnesota demonstrates that it's never as simple as that.

Two years ago, the governor said his budget wouldn't raise taxes, but it did, increasing property taxes across the state. Just two months ago, the Department of Revenue announced that Minnesota homeowners face property tax increases that will average 8.5 percent next spring, increases that are the direct result of state spending cuts. That's on top of the double-digit increases over the previous two years, not to mention the over $418 million in higher fees that Minnesotans have paid in each of the past two years.

Minnesotans deserve a more honest approach than that.

That's especially true when we're talking about the challenges ahead of us. The governor rightly pointed to education as the key economic engine in this state, but words are not enough. Two years ago, the governor pushed through the Legislature a budget that cut education funding for the first time in our state's history - $185 million statewide for the two-year budget cycle.

The results of those cuts were hard for Minnesotans to miss. Across the state, an estimated 2,000 teachers have lost their jobs. Districts are also downsizing additional staff and programs because they don't have adequate state support to keep up with rising costs such as health care costs, school materials, maintenance and transportation. In communities where cuts were avoided, property taxes rose almost invariably.

Minnesota voters recognized that this fall and rejected the slide to mediocrity. They understand the quality of our schools has a direct correlation to our economic competitiveness and high quality of life. They saw that threatened and voted for change.

The governor tacitly acknowledged that last week and claimed in his State of the State speech that his education proposal will increase basic funding for education by over 5 percent. What he didn't mention, however, is that the only way the increase will come close to that is if local school boards raise property taxes on their own. So much for his No New Taxes pledge.

The governor didn't offer a compelling vision to address other challenges either. He blamed runaway health care costs for much of the deficit, but offered little to help the growing strain those costs are having on budgets of schools, cities, counties and hospitals - costs that will eventually be borne by the rest of us. He said nothing about the growing transportation needs in this state.

Balancing the budget and making sure that Minnesota remains a leader in education, health care and job creation will take leadership and cooperation between everyone at the Capitol. It will also take honesty and a willingness to consider all of our options.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why scrap basic wage schedule in order to award superlative efforts by teachers?

To the Editor:

I started teaching school in 1951. At that time, for a man to go into teaching he needed to remain single, or if he was raising a family, work full-time in the summer and part-time on weekends in addition to teaching. I did that for 11 years.

In 1951, a Minnesota statute required that school boards pay $2,400 for a beginning teacher. In 1951, the Minnesota Education Association (MEA) was losing members to the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), which was organizing in the Twin Cities area and the Iron Range. The MEA and AFT eventually merged and the "union," as it is now called, became Education Minnesota.

Creating a living wage "pay schedule" has been a long, hard struggle for teachers. Teachers deserve a basic salary schedule. Gov. Tim Pawlenty is proposing to hold out a $60 million carrot (first come, first served) to school districts that scrap the existing teacher pay system. By doing this, the governor looks like a hero: more money for education. He claims Minnesota will "lead the nation in performance pay for teachers."

On the surface, this sounds good, but it is planned to be something divisive. It will create a firestorm in the Legislature. The governor will then hold press conferences and blast the DFL for not funding education.

This plan will create tension between school boards and teachers. It will take money away from basic funding needs.

The governor has been known to say one thing and then do something else. For starters, how about "all must share the pain."

Teachers and friends of education, now is the time to start thinking about how to defeat Pawlenty in 2006. He aligns himself with the Taxpayer's League, which is anti-public education. His past proposals have under-funded education and pressured local school districts to cut programs and increase class size. Two years ago, the governor cut $185 million from such programs as special education, early childhood education and summer school.

The governor also proposed to allow local school boards to raise more money from local property taxes. Didn't the state take over education funding?

The governor's proposal begs the question: Why is it necessary to scrap a basic wage schedule in order to award superlative efforts by teachers? Why is this plan being proposed now when school districts are strapped for money?

Who's closing our forest roads?

To the Editor:

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is blaming the Minnesota Legislature, saying they are only following newly enacted Minnesota state law. This brings a couple of questions to mind. Who asked the Legislature for this law, and what was the Legislature's actual intent?

If indeed this was the Legislature's intent to close this many roads and trails, then it's time that they stand up and say so. If this wasn't their intent, then it is time they repeal the law and put a stop to this.

In my opinion, either the DNR is using the Legislature as an excuse or the Legislature is letting the DNR take the rap. The truth probably lies somewhere in between. If this was the Legislature's intent, then we Minnesotans, regardless of party, must find out who voted for this law so we can stand up and put a stop to it.

The time has now come in Minnesota that all sportsmen, the duck hunters, deer hunters, snowmobile clubs, all-terrain vehicle clubs, all unite to fund a new club that hires a lawyer and lobbyist to do nothing but track and monitor legislation pertaining to us sportsmen, and lobby against undesirable legislation. You can bet that the extreme environmentalists and animal rights organizations have already done this. There must be someone in all these fine clubs and organizations who can get something like this started. I personally would pay dues, and I'm sure there are many companies that make outdoor products that would contribute, as well. We have got to fight back, or we are going to lose our way of life, and if not us, our children.

Governor's State of the State Address

Governor Pawlenty outlines priorities

Saying that "the people of Minnesota are ready for action," Gov. Tim Pawlenty called on the state's leaders to "get moving" in his 2005 State of the State address Tuesday, Jan. 18. In the speech, delivered at the Mayo Clinic Superior Drive Support Center in Rochester, the governor said that the state of the state is "good, but not good enough. So we'd better get to work."

In the speech, the governor reiterated his reasons for holding the line on taxes in a hyper-competitive world. "Keeping a lid on taxes is not just good for the taxpayer," said Pawlenty. "It's a powerful way to force government to be more accountable, set priorities and spend smarter."

Among the priorities Pawlenty outlined were:

- Supporting our military and guard members by passing additional financial incentives for service in the Minnesota National Guard;
- Improving the way we educate our children by increasing funding for K-12 schools, instituting performance pay for teachers and allowing all 11th and 12th graders to receive college credit while still in high school;
- B[illegible] university in Rochester, allowing Winona State University to create a center of excellence and directing more higher education funding to students rather than institutions;
- Tackling health care reform by advancing the Smart Buy Purchasing Alliance to leverage the power of the marketplace, encouraging the use of health savings accounts and slowing the growth in welfare health care programs;
- Bringing economic opportunity to Greater Minnesota through increased use of renewable fuels, doubling the ethanol in gasoline and Job Opportunity Building Zones;
- Making government more accountable and responsive by creating "Truth in Taxation" satisfaction survey postcards that voters can use to trigger a levy referendum and passing limited initiative and referendum to allow the people a direct vote on major issues.
- Making gaming in Minnesota more equitable by achieving fairness for the 85 percent of tribal members and the rest of the state who do not currently benefit from Indian casinos.
- Protecting the safety of Minnesotans by enacting new measures to deal with the meth epidemic and stronger penalties for sex offenders.

Pawlenty highlighted the Minnesota comeback story found at the Mayo Center facility where he spoke. Nineteen months ago, the building was dark and empty after having been abandoned by a company that moved its business and jobs to Canada and Italy. Today, almost 700 jobs have returned and the facility handles more than 15,000 blood and tissue samples every day.

The governor said a number of lessons could be drawn from the Mayo example:

"It tells us that Minnesota needs to be a global competitor. It reminds us that excellence matters and has a magnetic impact. It tells us again that science and technology are really important in the modern economy. It reinforces the importance of doing things fast. It again shows us the incredible value of having an educated, innovative and productive workforce. It reminds us of the importance of public private partnerships. This site was enrolled in our JOBZ program the very first day the program became available. And finally, it highlights the vast number of jobs that big economic engines like the Mayo Clinic produce -- they're Minnesota's booster rockets."

Rev. Fjelstad Addresses Students on Benefits of Eighteenth Amendment

"In observance of the tenth anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment, January 16, Rev. Fjelstad, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, addressed the student body on the benefits which this legislation has produced in the United States during the ten years it has been in effect. These benefits, he said, 'are so apparent that a mere statement is sufficient. The large part of money formerly spent for liquor has now been turned into useful channels stimulating trade. The more general prosperity in America today can be traced to the sobriety of its people.' He emphasized the fact that although drunkenness has decreased it has not been done away with entirely. But the modern drinking is of a different type. It results from a pleasure of violating laws, done by persons who take pride in appearing 'tough.' Rev. Fjelstad added 'But for every person who desires to appear tough, there are one-half dozen who have real pride. As a result, liquor traffic is being reduced.' He closed with a plea to finish the job so well begun."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minnesota — January 28, 1905

News Items

"The whist club was entertained last evening by Mrs. Jens Nelson.

"There will be services in the Swedish Lutheran church next Sunday at 3 p.m. - Alex Sand, Pastor.

"We have been having some of the old-fashioned kind of cold weather the past week which proves that it don't pay to brag too much about a winter until it's over.

"Nels K. Anderson has prepared and is circulating a petition for a rural delivery route to start from here and cover the western part of Rocksbury and Sanders townships.

"Postmaster Post has received instructions to advertise for bids for a star route from here to Hazel, and those who wish to work for the government can get a job even if the pay is not what it should be. This would indicate that it will be some time before the Soo gets a contract for carrying the mail.

"A petition is being circulated among the business men to raise money to hire a leader of the boys' band. J. G. Winkjer has had charge of the boys for the past six months and they will be without an instructor when he leaves. We understand that they will secure Professor Onstad of Red Lake Falls, one day a week. Professor Onstad is a capable instructor and he would be a great help to them."

The Firemen's Ball

"The Masquerade ball given by the St. Hilaire firemen last Wednesday evening was a decided success, both in a social as well as a financial way. The crowd present was as large as the hall could comfortably hold. Care and worry were thrown to the winds and all went in for a good time and had it. There were a large number masked and the committee on awards, Messrs. O. F. Post, B. E. Burkee and Steve Nelson, had hard work deciding who were entitled to the prizes. They awarded the prize for the handsomest gentleman's costume to Nels G. Otterness, who represented 'An English Lord' and the prize for the most comical costume to Adolph Brouillard, who posed as a 'Dutchman.' Miss Gina Kordahl, who represented 'Day,' carried off the prize for the most beautiful ladies' costume. There were so many excellent costumes that the committee felt like awarding a dozen prizes instead of only three. The Red Lake Falls orchestra furnished the music and the dancers showed their appreciation by dancing until after 4 a.m. After paying all expenses, the firemen cleared $16.40."

County Seat Fight

The Battle Has Commenced Between Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls

A Lively Fight in Prospect

With St. Hilaire In Position to Decide the Contest

"The first gun in the coming county seat war was fired at Crookston last Monday, when the Thief River Falls parties secured from Judge Watts a temporary injunction restraining the county from buying the court house. The hearing was set for Thursday evening but by agreement of both parties was postponed until next Tuesday evening. In the meantime, Red Lake Falls has hardly been asleep. One of her attorneys was present when the order was granted Monday evening, and he telephoned the news. Chairman Ole Johnson of the county board was sent for at once and although Plummer is fifteen miles away, Mr. Johnson was doing business at the county seat before sunrise and the order was signed and payment made before the restraining order was served. Thief River Falls claims they had until Thursday the 26th and the courts will have to decide.

"The people of Thief River Falls have determined to make a fight for the county seat and have served notice that after a lapse of fourteen days, or on February 11th, 1905, they will commence the circulation of a petition to change the location of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. There were about two thousand votes polled in this county at the last election and it requires 60 per cent of them for the petition to carry. If they are successful with the petition, which will require about 1,300 voters, the matter will come before the county board in April. If they then order an election, it would come off the first part of June. If the county board decides it adversely, it will probably be taken into the courts and may drag along for some time.

"A. A. Miller of Crookston will assist the local attorneys for the Thief River Falls side, but we have not learned who will have charge of the affair for Red Lake Falls.

"It gives promise of being a hard-fought battle on both sides with St. Hilaire and vicinity in position to decide the contest. It will be well for our citizens to give the matter careful thought and work and vote for the best interests -- of St. Hilaire.

"Red Lake Falls has served notice that they will commence on February 18, to circulate a petition of remonstrance against the removal of the county seat."

Home For The Aged Adopts New Name

"The organization previously known as the 'Christian Home for the Aged,' at a meeting Monday night in the Evangelical Free church adopted as its official name 'Valley Christian Home Society.' The name is article one in the modified constitution which was ratified at the meeting.

"The society's nine trustees who were elected included Waldie Christensen and Rev. Alfred N. Larson, Thief River Falls, and Rev. E. J. Vick, Newfolden, for a term of three years; Dr. A. E. Carlson, Warren, Rev. Robert Chisholm, Karlstad, and Oscar Taflin, Fosston, for a term of two years; and Carl A. Johnson, Warren, C. G. Peterson, Warren, and Carl Swanson, rural Red Lake Falls, for a term of one year."

Lions Club Light Bulb Sale Earns More Than $300

"Nearly fifty members of the Thief River Falls Lions club cooperated last Wednesday evening in a highly successful sale in the residential district of the city.

"The joint effort netted the club more than $300, which will be used to aid in the financing of the annual Hallowe'en festival and Kiddies Carnival as well as other public activities sponsored by the Lions.

"Dr. M. D. Starekow, club president, thanked local citizens for their whole-hearted response, as well as Bob Carlson, who served as chairman of the sale, and his corps of assistants."

Births And Deaths Decline Last Year In Pennington County

"A total of 448 births were recorded in Pennington county in 1954, compared to 487 in 1953, and there were 129 deaths last year, compared to 161 in 1953, Henry Storhaug, clerk of court, announced this week. He also reported that 80 marriage licenses were issued in this county in 1954, a substantial decline from the 102 issued in the preceding year. There were nine divorces granted in 1954, and 11 in 1953."

$615 Stolen From St. Hilaire Liquor Store Saturday

"About $615 in cash was obtained by burglars who invaded the St. Hilaire municipal liquor store early Saturday morning, Sheriff Arthur Rambeck announced this week.

"Breaking in through the front door, the intruders took out a small safe containing the money, and hauled it to a point one-half mile south and three-quarters of a mile west of the village where they broke open the door of the safe, leaving it in the roadway ditch. They did not disturb a number of checks in the safe.

"Tracking the burglars was rendered difficult by loose snow which was blowing Saturday."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher — January 26, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

Attorney Lee Was Mad

"Attorney Henry W. Lee was mad last Friday night, madder than he had been since the government turned down his claim against the Winnebago Indians some thirty years ago.

"'Dr.' Hebert, who was confined in the city jail, asked to have Mr. Lee brought there to consult with him. Mr. Lee called and while the two were talking business, Policemen Erickson and Crawford both went away, each thinking the other had remained and left Lee and the 'doctor' locked in jail. When Lee got through with his business and discovered the predicament he was in, he got mad. He had nothing else to do and so he got madder. When finally the policemen happened to remember that Lee had been left in the jail and went around to release him, he was in a white heat, but has been gradually cooling off ever since."

New Roads Required

"The settlers on the eleven townships are going to be up against the good roads problem in earnest next spring and summer. There are a number of well traveled trails though this land but they do not follow section lines and as many of the settlers will fence up their land, new roads will have to be made. The matter is being talked over by the settlers and it is quite probable that considerable volunteer road work will be done over there, during the next year. It will be impossible to secure any aid from the county as the settlers are not taxpayers."

To Stop the Purchase

Peder Engelstad, a Rocksbury Farmer, is the Plaintiff

"A temporary injunction has been secured restraining the county commissioners of Red Lake county from purchasing the court house at Red Lake Falls. The committee appointed by the people of this city decided to take no action in the matter and this did not satisfy Attorney Lee. The plaintiff in the case now is Peder Engelstad, the well-known Rocksbury farmer, and Mr. Lee acts as his attorney.

"Judge Watts issued the injunction Monday night and it was served upon the county auditor Tuesday. A hearing upon the same was ordered before Judge Watts in chamber at Crookston this evening.

"With the recklessness which has characterized all of the dealings of Red Lake Falls with regards to county matters, the money for the purchase of the court house has been paid over to Ernest Buse and the deed put on record. By the terms of the resolution which was passed purchasing the court house the day set for the consummation of the deal was on Thursday, January 26, and by no legal authority was the money paid at an earlier date. While Red Lake Falls people look upon this as a piece of sharp practice, in the eyes of most of the county it is looked upon as reckless handling of county funds and, if the money is not returned to the county, it will not take the people of Thief River Falls long to take some action in the matter."

Some New Buildings

Quite a Number to be Erected Here During the Spring

"A very large number of brick business blocks will be erected in Thief River Falls this spring. Among those who are quite sure to build are F. J. Stebbins on Main avenue, Dr. Gamble on LaBree avenue, Oen and Granum at the corner of LaBree and Third street, H. Fant on LaBree avenue, C. C. Jackson and company at the corner of LaBree avenue and Third street, Perl W. Mabey on Main avenue, and the Evenson Realty company at the corner of Main avenue and Third street.

"The Evenson Realty company, which will erect the largest building, is a newly incorporated firm. This company's building will have a frontage of 100 feet on Main avenue and 140 feet on Third street. It will be two stories high with a basement and will be built of cement blocks. The rear of the building will be an opera house with entrance on the ground floor of Third street. The opera house will be 56 by 100 feet and will have a seating capacity of 800. The remaining part of the building will be made into three stores with entrances on Main avenue and a bank will occupy the corner. The second story or as much as is not used by the opera house, 84 by 100 feet, will be made into office rooms. The building will be absolutely fire proof and a fire proof brick wall will be erected between the opera house part and the store building which would make it possible to [illegible] the opera house without damage to the latter.

MN Dept. of Health publishes first-ever report on adverse events in Minnesota hospitals

New system aims to foster enhanced patient safety efforts

(Editor's note: No local or area hospitals were included in the report.)

The Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has released the first-ever report on preventable adverse events in Minnesota hospitals. These events include errors that hospitals should always strive to prevent, such as wrong-site surgery, death from medication error, and serious disability from falls.

The legislation creating the adverse health event reporting system and calling for public reporting was championed by Minnesota hospitals and was signed into law in 2003. The Minnesota Hospital Association (MHA) and MDH have been working closely together to implement the new law.

"This report is an important step in improving patient safety for every Minnesotan," said Governor Tim Pawlenty. "We've never had a report that measured this before and if you don't measure something, you can't improve it. Now we have a way to consistently measure, report and have accountability for events that we all agree should never happen."

The law requires all Minnesota hospitals to report to MDH whenever any of 27 so-called "never events" occurs. The National Quality Forum, a Washington, D.C.-based health care standards-setting organization, created this consensus-based list of adverse events in 2002 at the request of the federal government, after an Institute of Medicine report estimated that medical errors in hospitals cause 44,000 to 98,000 deaths every year in the U.S.

Kenneth W. Kizer, M.D., M.P.H., president and CEO of NQF, applauded Minnesota for being the first state to follow NQF's recommendations for reporting adverse events. "Publication of this document demonstrates that Minnesota is in the vanguard of public reporting of medical errors," Kizer said. "With the new law and its clearly defined list of adverse health care events, Minnesota's state government is now able to provide more effective oversight and to make health care safer."

The report summarizes the number and type of events that occurred in Minnesota hospitals during the start-up period of the law, between July 2003 and October 2004. According to the report, during that period, 99 adverse events were reported by 30 hospitals; and 20 deaths and four serious disabilities resulted from the events.

"Although one medical error is too many, Minnesotans should take comfort in knowing that hospital officials and health care experts have been working diligently to prevent errors," Minnesota Comissioner of Health Dianne Mandernach said. "This report gives us the kind of information we can use to better focus our overall efforts at improving patient safety."

In addition to reporting individual events, hospitals are required to report on the underlying cause of each event and the corrective actions being taken to prevent similar errors in the future. This law provides a forum to share the reported information with hospitals across the state so they can learn from one another.

The report notes that the most frequently reported adverse event was a foreign object left in a patient after surgery; the next most frequently reported event was stage three or four pressure ulcer. Almost a third of the "wrong body part surgery" reports occurred during spine surgeries (spinal surgeries are especially challenging because of the complexity of the spine).

Minnesota's hospitals are already implementing a variety of proven strategies for preventing many types of errors. Such strategies include developing new ways to track objects used in surgical procedures, improving how patients are assessed for the risk of falling, regularly repositioning patients at risk of pressure sores, and adding special labels to high-risk medications.

"While this reporting system has already lead to improvements, hospitals understand that these events can be devastating — for patients, their families and the caregivers involved," said Bruce Rueben, president of the Minnesota Hospital Association. "That's why Minnesota hospitals worked so hard to get the law passed and implemented."

Mandernach suggested that consumers should use the information in the report to become more involved in their health care. "Consumers should use this report to help identify situations of interest to them and then ask their health care providers what they're doing to provide the safest care possible," Mandernach said.

Mandernach added that it is difficult to compare hospitals using just the numbers in the report. "The errors documented in this report represent a very small fraction of all the procedures and admissions in Minnesota hospitals," Mandernach said. She also pointed out that the number of events reported by hospitals can be influenced by a number of factors, including the size of the hospital, staff awareness of and dedication to reporting, and different interpretations of what should be reported.

Minnesota hospitals admit nearly 600,000 patients per year, with an average length of stay of more than four days. In addition, in one year, Minnesota hospitals see 1.5 million patient visits in their emergency departments; 300,000 same-day surgery cases are treated, and there are more than 5.5 million visits for a variety of other hospital-based treatments or procedures, from kidney dialysis to follow-up x-rays.

A full copy of the adverse health events report and a fact sheet can be found on MDH's Adverse Health Events Web page. More information about hospitals can be found on the Minnesota Hospital Association Web site.0

A committee is busy working on Viking Centennial celebration which will be held in July 29, 30, 31 2005. Anyone with pictures, history or memorabilia that coud be used is asked to contact the City. Thank you!

The annual CW birthday party was held at Viking Covenant Church on Wednesday night with the officers serving a very good meal with Jamie Distel directing games and a gift exchange. Linda Paddock gave devotions and it made for a fun evening.

Last Monday, Sandy Gjovik and Kathy Johnson drove up from Park Rapids and were joined by Rose Sollid, Janice Jesme and Arlene Jesme for an evening meal at the Lantern Cafe. Sandy and Kathy were overnight guests at Rose's home, and on Tuesday morning, they enjoyed breakfast with Gladys Heinz, Thelma Dahl and Arlene Jesme.

Earl and Joyce Erickson went to Grand Forks on Sunday to meet Joyce's brother Wayne Hanson from San Paulo, Brazil. There, they all spent time at Willie and Vickie Hildebrand's home while Wayne is in the States. He is a retiree from Williston, ND and is spending time sight-seeing and visiting in South America where he has many friends.

Mary Wiersu visited her parents Gordon and Adele Skjerven at Oakland Park on Sunday.

Daniel Swenson of Red Lake Falls was a caller at Liz Swenson's on Tuesday morning.

Street improvements studied

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

At its Jan. 25 meeting, the Thief River Falls City Council accepted the feasibility report for the 2005 Street, Sidewalk and Utilities Improvement Project. Current project estimates place the total cost for the proposal at $836,000.

Most of the $836,000 project cost – $673,000 – would be covered by direct billings, and property owners would be assessed an estimated total of $38,000. The rest of the estimated cost would be covered by Municipal State Aid, utilities reserves and the Street Department force account. The city would also have to provide $7,000 in interim financing for the proposed projects.

"On all of these [projects], they've been requested by developers or the property owners," Public Works Director Ron Lindberg said.

The proposed projects include:

- Nelson Drive – Street and storm sewer improvements east of Sherwood Avenue
- Alice Drive – Street and utilities extensions and improvements
- Spruce Avenue and Woodland Court – Utilities extensions and street improvements
- Gausen Court – Utilities extensions and street improvements
- Oak Avenue – Street improvements south of Cartway Drive
- Meadowlark Court East – Street and utilities extensions and improvements
- Allwood Court – Street improvements
- Barzen Avenue – Street improvements south of First Street

The Nelson Drive improvements were requested by Wal-Mart, which is planning to construct a store along that street. Wal-Mart has agreed to pay for $171,000 of the proposed $179,000 improvements, according to information provided to the council. Neighboring property owners may be assessed an estimated $8,000.

Digi-Key requested the Barzen Avenue improvements. The feasibility report recommended that Digi-Key be invoiced $75,000 and Arctic Cat, Pennington County and the city each be invoiced $25,000 for the $150,000 project.

Manitoba man killed in accident

A Manitoba man was killed Friday night after a semi and train collided two miles north of Thief River Falls on Highway 59.

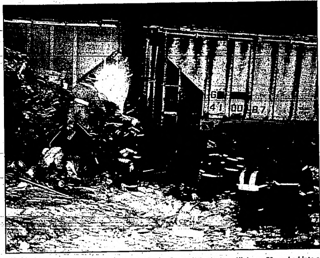
Minnesota State Patrol responded to a report of the accident at 7:38 p.m. Robbie David Gordan Johnson, 21, Arbog, Manitoba, Canada, was dead at the scene.

At the time of the accident, Johnson was driving a semi northbound on Highway 59. The semi, loaded with crushed cars, then collided with the side of a southeast-bound Northern Plains Railroad train. Two railroad cars loaded with grain were derailed by the force of the crash. The name of the engineer on the Northern Plains Railroad train was not listed on the State Patrol report.

The State Patrol report indicated that roads were icy at the time of the accident. Another semi and a car following Johnson's semi went into a ditch. Those drivers also were not listed in the report.

Due to the accident, that section of Highway 59 was closed until Sunday night, according to the State Patrol.

The accident remains under investigation.



Emergency responders search through the wreckage of semi and train accident Friday, Jan. 28. Robbie David Gordan Johnson, 21, Arbog, Manitoba, Canada, was killed when the semi he was driving north on Highway 59 crashed into a southeast-bound Northern Plains Railroad locomotive at a railroad crossing about two miles north of Thief River Falls.

TRF airport opens crosswind runway

Despite corrections and installations, there's still work that needs to be done

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

The crosswind runway at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport is open, and a plane has already landed on the runway.

The crosswind runway was opened Thursday afternoon, said Mark Josephson, airport superintendent.

A UPS freighter plane owned by Bemidji Airlines landed on the crosswind runway Friday morning, according to Josephson. He added that Friday morning's weather was "kind of favoring" crosswinds.

Earlier last week, airport maintenance staff had been working on clearing snow from both the main and crosswind runways. On Jan. 24, Public Works Director Ron Lindberg said that airport maintenance staff was focusing its efforts on the main runway, meaning the runway did not open until Thursday.

For more than 10 years, city officials have been discussing the crosswind runway. Construction began in 2003, and the 5,000-foot crosswind runway was slated for completion in summer 2004. Its completion was delayed after Strata Corporation needed to correct 18 signs that were reversed or the wrong color. City officials sent a letter to the company in late October, warning it would be assessed $800 a day for damages if the signs were not fixed before Nov. 2. The signs were replaced in time, Lindberg said Jan. 24.

The company also needed to install four additional signs that the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) required after the placement of the original signs, Lindberg said. Strata Corporation was given a time extension to install those signs.

Despite those corrections and installations, a crosswind runway light still needs to be fixed. The light's leveling device is defective, Lindberg said. However, the FAA has ruled that the runway can be open, but airport officials have to tell pilots the light is out of service.

City Council has yet to determine whether to assess Strata Corporation for liquidated damages.

County Board studies Co. Ditch 1

Next step in process may be to hold a public hearing

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Efforts to improve drainage on Pennington County Ditch (CD) 1 moved a step closer to being a reality after Nate Dalager of HDR Engineering presented the company's CD 1 drainage study at last week's Pennington County Board meeting.

The ditch study partnered government entities Pennington County, Thief River Falls, Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT), Red Lake Watershed District and Rocksbury Township in an attempt to find solutions for CD 1 storm drainage.

No action relating to CD 1 was taken by the Pennington County Board of Commissioners. Commissioners are still concerned over the cost of any projects, redetermination of benefits for the CD 1 watershed, and the costs related to a redetermination of benefits.

Commissioner Oliver "Skip" Swanson said that the first order of business would be to determine who pays for the redetermination. Swanson continued saying, the way the law currently reads, those who live in the benefitted area are currently assessed, and would be assessed for a redetermination. Swanson added that only six or seven landowners are currently assessed benefits for CD 1. He said that everyone living within city limits had been removed from assessment.

HDR drainage study

The HDR Engineering drainage study outlined both areas of the ditch system that have poor drainage and the causes of the ditch's poor drainage.

Dalager told commissioners during his presentation that the main cause of drainage problems within the CD 1 watershed was flat topography. Dalager said that the relatively flat ditch slopes at a rate of one foot-per-mile. The minimal slope, coupled with the growth of vegetation such as cattails and accumulation of debris, have caused CD 1 to

Technology class may be added

S.D. 564 hears proposal to add automation technology class

by David Hill
Editor

Monday, Jan. 24, the Board of Education for School District 564 in Thief River Falls heard a proposal to add classes on advanced manufacturing automation next year.

Eric Melcher, industrial arts instructor at Lincoln High School, explained that demand is growing for people with knowledge of how to build or fix automated machines. Unfortunately, there doesn't appear to be much interest in this field.

Melcher said that about a year ago, he was approached by Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) about participating in the Minnesota Center for Advanced Manufacturing Automation program. This program, which was developed at Alexandria Technical College, involves training students to repair automated manufacturing machines. With a $207,000 grant and $1.5 million from private businesses, a program was developed that includes the development of programs and curriculum for high schools and colleges. As it has been described to Melcher, the structure of the center will be hierarchical with eight high schools serving as feeders to six post-secondary institutions. Lincoln High School (LHS) and NCTC could be among the institutions participating in the program.

If the Board of Education approves the proposal, Melcher said LHS would receive four mechanical automation trainers, computer software and other equipment, which are valued at several hundreds of thousands of dollars. Melcher would also receive additional training. For its part in the program, the school would have to pay an initial $5,000 fee and $1,000 every year thereafter, provide Internet access for 25 computers, and a computer security system.

The program is so new at high schools and colleges that the degree has not been named. If it proceeds as proposed, students would take one year of courses in high school and two years at the college level.

RHOMBUS mr. movies COMMUNICATIONS

Strip mall adds color and businesses to Thief River Falls

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Three Thief River Falls businesses, located on the south-bound side of U.S. Highway 59 in Thief River Falls, opened their doors in late 2004.

New Thief River Falls businesses, Mr. Movies and Cafe Rhombus opened their doors for the first time in November and will continue to share a 10,000 square-foot building with Cell Tech Communications Inc., an authorized dealership of Cellular 2000. Cell Tech was previously located on Davis Ave.

The cluster of businesses is located in the 1500 block of U.S. Highway 59 SE, next to Amoco 24.

Mike Hron, president of Cell Tech Communications and owner of the property, said it was not difficult to find two tenants to share space with his store.

"I wanted to try to bring a new corporation type business into town and I wanted to give the guys on the end (Cafe Rhombus) a shot. They're local kids and I think they have a nice concept."

Cafe Rhombus
"Don't be a square"

The Cafe Rhombus story began in 1999 shortly after three high school classmates graduated from Lincoln High School. The trio of Matt Winjum, Levi Kraft and Arron Hendricks had perfected the art of making smoothies: thick smooth drinks, consisting of fresh fruit pureed with ice cream or yogurt or milk.

The trio set out to earn a little cash with their new found skill, and after a few county fair appearances a new business was born. That business featured a unique name – Smoothie Rhombus.

"The name Rhombus comes from that first business," Winjum said. "We were building a smoothie stand on a snowmobile trailer and we weren't the best carpenters. When we got the frame up, we stepped back and looked at it and the frame was all cockeyed and slanted kind of like a rhombus. Arron stepped back and said, 'man that thing isn't square at all, it looks more like a rhombus.'"

The name rhombus stuck and has been a part of each business endeavour the group has participated in since then.

Since the days of the Smoothie Rhombus stand, Winjum, Kraft and Hendricks, have expanded to the seasonal Rhombus House of Pizza in Mentor and now Cafe Rhombus in Thief River Falls.

The Cafe Rhombus menu includes the same line of smoothies that the trio of Winjum, Kraft and Hendricks first became known for, as well as the pizza that helped build a customer base. The restaurant also includes a selection of gourmet sandwiches, smoked entrees and specialty coffees, which have been the most popular item so far.

For the Rhombus guys, this latest venture is the most challenging yet.

"There is something to be said about learning on the job," Kraft said.

"You don't get a lot of support outside your family and close group of friends when you are young," Winjum added. "They kind of scoff and think its a cute idea."

Kraft said that most don't view it as a long term career. The Rhombus guys disagree. Kraft said that expansion was always a plan. The group initially planned to expand to the Grand Forks, N.D., area, but when space became available in Thief River Falls area, it presented an opportunity that was too great to pass up.

Cafe Rhombus opened on Nov. 15, and like most new restaurants, the biggest challenge was balancing the demand of a packed house with an inexperienced staff.

Public safety issues "Impaired Driving Facts 2003"

A detailed published summary of the state's impaired driving facts, "Minnesota Motor Vehicle Impaired Driving Facts 2003," reports 244 alcohol-related traffic deaths cost the state nearly $278 million, and 32,266 motorists were arrested for impaired driving. The Minnesota Department of Public Safety Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) compiles the annual report.

While alcohol-related crash fatalities nationally dropped slightly in 2003, Minnesota experienced a 3 percent increase in those deaths, up 16 more deaths than in 2002.

For the past five years, Minnesota has annually averaged 227 alcohol-related deaths and 33,714 impaired driving arrests. In 2003, males accounted for 78 percent of all DWI charges. Most violators were first-time offenders, yet more than 13,000 had two or more DWIs on record, and more than 1,000 had 10 or more offenses. In all, nearly 428,000 Minnesotans have a DWI on record – one in 12 of the state's residents or 8.4 percent of the population. OTS reports about 40 percent who incur one violation will incur a second.

"The arrest numbers are just the tip of the iceberg," said Kathy Swanson, OTS director. "The discouraging fact is we know there are hundreds of others driving impaired who don't get caught, and they are the ones who end up killing and injuring others."

The report shows that 81 percent of impaired driving incidents on record included a criminal conviction for driving while impaired by alcohol or drugs. It also shows that the Twin Cities' metro area and the 80-county Greater Minnesota region each accounted for half of all arrests. Also, nearly half of the arrests were made on Saturdays and Sundays.

To view "Impaired Driving Facts" online, visit www.dps.state.mn.us/ots and click on the "Crash and Data Reports" tab at the top of the page. The report is posted under "What's New."

Sailer: We need to set priorities for Minnesota

In response to the release of the Governor's state budget plan, Rep. Brita Sailer (DFL-Park Rapids) expressed optimism that the legislature would be able to address the budget shortfall but emphasized the need to set priorities for the direction of the state.

"The state is facing a budget shortfall, and difficult choices about our priorities as a state will have to be made," said Sailer. "Regardless of the rhetoric, state cuts to local governments have meant tax increases for Minnesota families. I remain concerned about the state shifting costs to our local units of government forcing property tax increases."

Sailer said she remains committed to supporting local schools and affordable healthcare options. "We need to renew our commitment to our local students and our seniors in nursing homes," stated Sailer. "We must ensure that these citizens do not end up carrying the burden of balancing the budget as they did in the last budget fix."

The Reaper's Reward.

I swing open the dirty white side door of the garage and step inside. My eyes instantly lock on a pair of antlers protruding from a small cardboard box on my workbench. I walk over to it and grasp the cold sheer tines of the rack. My fingers slide reverently along every contour as I recall my first deer.

"Here they come," I whispered to myself. I could see the black silhouettes of their legs beneath the spruce boughs as they trotted down into a thin, steep-sided ravine. The does were the first to break cover. They came into the open cautiously and in single file, their quivering black noses aimed inexorably downhill. The deer always head down onto the flats at night to feed on the plentiful alfalfa and return in the morning. I watched six does step out of the timber and regroup about 150 yards away from me next to a clump of brush. I happened to glance back to the spruces just as another doe slipped from the shadows with a buck in tow. I felt my eyes grow wide in appreciation. This was a deer. He looked as though he was raised on spinach and steroids. Imperiously, he stalked his heavily muscled frame in the wake of his hot little doe. I closed my eyes and breathed. Upon reopening them, I could feel everything surrounding us melt away. All that was left was the buck, me, and the blank space between us. My old Mossberg 30-30 poked out of my shoulder and bridged the gap to my bent knee. The scope became my eye as I watched the deer dance. The doe had led him through a small patch of brambles, and I swung the barrel of my gun to the other side. That coaxing, coercing female flaunted through, followed close behind by her beefy, would-be lover. I felt my finger pull the hammer back. I held the cold mountain air within my lungs as the buck stopped broadside. I just had time to wonder why I wasn't shaking with buck fever before my fingers squeezed the trigger. I could almost see the bullet leave the barrel of my gun, and I watched as it flew through the air like a diving falcon.

I stood beside the steaming deer, trying to peer through the unseeing eyes. Then, I wondered why I had just killed it. I did not need its meat, it was not threatening me, nor did I simply hate its kind. I had killed it because it was there. The words "population control" rang hollowly and weakly through my head. There was no truly logical reason that I, Tate Sorvig, could accept as justification for doing what I had done, and yet, somehow, it felt right. The primal innocence of the carnivore had slunk inside of me, the instinctive need that lurks in every man's bones, born of an older time. The stone arrowheads, mastodons and hungry eyes beyond the firelight that brought me here to this mountain in the first place, had set up my rendezvous with this buck. His death was an undeniable presence that seemed to embody the wild freedom that early man new and modern man forgot. It was a freedom I found that I had always subconsciously yearned for and only now could celebrate. I knew death, and, in its presence, I was humbled and re-educated. All the mannerisms and behaviors that had been etched into my being since birth had become just as unjustifiable as the death beside me. A certain peace pervaded me as I prayed a silent, wild prayer for the deer and for mankind's release from its self-inflicted bondage. "Thank you," I whisper as I come back to the garage and the skull of the magnificent animal whose death taught me life.

Influenza on rise in state, but it's not too late to protect yourself

Influenza season is in full swing in Minnesota, prompting state health officials this week to issue a last call for flu shots.

"If you haven't gotten the flu yet, you may still have a chance to protect yourself with a shot," said Dr. Harry Hull, state epidemiologist with the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH).

Reports of influenza in the state have increased markedly recently, and have come from all regions of the state. Yet, the flu may not be at its peak. "The flu season in Minnesota often peaks in March or even April, so it is not too late to get a shot this year," said Hull. "It will protect you for the rest of the season as well as people you come in contact with."

It takes about one to two weeks for a flu shot to become fully effective.

About 20,000 doses of flu vaccine remain in the state, said Kristen Ehresmann, section chief for immunizations at MDH. Most of the vaccine is in the metro area, a few counties in the state have remaining supplies, but most have used up their supplies in vaccinating high-risk [illegible].

In the state, influenza activity has [illegible] 65 culture [illegible] Jan. [illegible] 135 cases as of Jan. 28. Since MDH does not receive or count reports of every influenza case in Minnesota, a better picture of flu activity comes from the number of school outbreaks, long-term care outbreaks and the percentage of patients with influenza-like illness coming into more than 20 "sentinel" clinics around the state.

For the week ending Jan. 28, MDH received 16 reports of confirmed outbreaks and two reports of unconfirmed outbreaks in long-term care facilities. Probable flu outbreaks were reported in 40 schools and possible flu outbreaks were reported in 14 schools.

A school has an outbreak when its usual daily absences are doubled and a majority of the absences are due to illnesses with specific influenza-like symptoms. A nursing home has an outbreak when it has three or more influenza-like illnesses in a single unit during a period of 48 to 72 hours or has one resident with a positive rapid test for flu.

Earlier restrictions on who can get a flu shot have been lifted. Anyone who wants a vaccination should seek one, Hull said. MDH strongly recommends that people who are most at risk for complications from influenza get a flu shot. Those include people over age 50, children 6 to 23 months, pregnant women and people with chronic health conditions.

The symptoms of influenza, which tend to come on suddenly, can include a sore throat, coughing, fever, headache, muscle aches and fatigue. People who become severely ill with influenza-like symptoms should see physicians.

Follow these guidelines to avoid spreading influenza:

- Do your best to stay healthy. Get plenty of rest, exercise moderately and eat right.
- Stay home from school or work if you have a respiratory infection. Avoid exposing yourself to others who are sick with flu-like illness.
- Cover your nose and mouth with a tissue whenever you cough or sneeze, then throw the tissue away. If you don't have a tissue, cough or sneeze into your sleeve.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water, or with an alcohol-based, waterless hand sanitizer.
- Clean surfaces you touch frequently, such as doorknobs, water faucets, refrigerator handles and telephones.

More information on influenza can be found on the MDH Web site (www.[illegible]).

During the first week back to school after Christmas break, two groups of students at Franklin Middle School (FMS) thought of doing something for the tsunami victims of south Asia. Alex Thomas, seventh grade, approached Bob Stenson, FMS guidance counselor, about the tragedy. Together they brainstormed several ideas agreed to present the concern to the FMS Student Council, which was meeting in a day or two. About this same time, the other two girls, eighth graders Chelsea Sorterberg (center), and Jessica Hjelle had visited with their physical education teacher, Bob Johnson, having a similar discussion as to what Stenson had with Thomas. "Tsunami Sufferer's Silver Fundraiser" was held on Jan. 12 and 13. Staff and students were invited to show their compassion and empathy for those who were suffering by dropping "silver" into their fourth period class buckets. After the event, a $327.12 check was presented to the Red Cross for tsunami relief. (Submitted photo)

USDA issues procedures, dates for lamb referendum

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service has announced the final procedures for a continuance referendum under the Lamb Promotion, Research and Information order, more commonly known as the Lamb Checkoff Program, and also announced that the referendum will be conducted Jan. 31, 2005, through Feb. 28, 2005.

The referendum will be conducted at USDA's County Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices. To be eligible to participate, persons must certify and provide documentation, such as a sales receipt or remittance form, that shows they have been engaged in the production, feeding or slaughtering of lambs during the period of Jan. 1, 2004, through Dec. 31, 2004.

Beginning Jan. 31, 2005, and continuing through Feb. 28, 2005, persons may obtain Form LS-86 to vote in the referendum from county FSA offices either in person by mail or facsimile. Forms may also be obtained via the Internet, at http://www.ams.usda.gov/lsg/mpb/rp-lamb.htm.

Persons will vote in the referendum at the county FSA office where their administrative farm records are maintained. For the person not participating in FSA programs, the opportunity to vote will be provided at the county FSA office where the person owns or rents land. Form LS-86 and supporting documentation may be returned in person, by mail or facsimile to the appropriate county FSA office. Form LS-86, and accompanying documentation returned in person or by facsimile, must be received in the appropriate county office prior to the close of business of Feb. 28, 2005. Form LS-86 and accompanying documentation returned by mail must be postmarked no later than midnight of Feb. 28, 2005, and received in the county FSA office by March 7, 2005.

For the program to continue, it must be approved by a majority of voters who also represent a majority of the volume represented in the referendum.

The Lamb Checkoff Program is authorized by the Commodity Promotion, Research and Information Act of 1996. This program provides for assessments on the sale of lamb and lamb products and for an industry board to carry out promotion, research and information programs designed to increase the demand for lamb and lamb products.

The referendum is mandated by the act and requires that the secretary of agriculture conduct a referendum either prior to its going into effect or within three years after assessments first begin under an order. The order provides that the referendum be held within three years after assessments first begin. Assessments began July 1, 2002. AMWS oversees the activities of the program.

The procedures and notice for the referendum will be published in the Dec. 27, 2004, Federal Register.

For more information, contact Kenneth R. Payne, Chief Marketing Programs Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 0251, 1400 Independence Ave., SW, Washington, DC 20250-0251 or telephone 202-720-1115.

MMCDC instrumental in state bioscience deal

Recent financing of a major new bioscience incubator in St. Paul was made possible in part through the involvement of Midwest Minnesota Community Development Corporation (MMCDC) of Detroit Lakes.

The financing deal for University Enterprise Laboratories (UEL) – involving a variety of public and private funding sources – is a major economic development milestone for state government and education officials. They see UEL as a catalyst for the state bioscience industry. MMCDC contributed $17.5 million of its 2004 New Markets Tax Credits (NMTC) allocation from the U.S. Department of Treasury.

The federal NMTC program provides private investors with an incentive in the form of tax credits to invest in projects that have significant impact. As the federal allocatee, MMCDC works with investors and borrowers in qualified communities and monitors these transactions for compliance with federal regulations.

"New Markets Tax Credits is a useful new federal financing and community development tool as evidenced by this project," said MMCDC President Arlen Kangas. "These tax credits generated an additional $4.4 million of equity, which was critical to this transaction. MMCDC looks forward to funding additional development projects in the future to the benefit of the state of Minnesota."

Kangas noted the transactions also generated fee income for MMCDC, which will be available for reinvestment in local projects through MMCDC's affordable housing, commercial lending, and community and economic development programs.

MMCDC's special impact area encompasses all of Becker, Clearwater, Hubbard, Mahnomen, Eastern Polk, Pennington and Red Lake counties. Local representatives to the Board of Directors are Eastern Polk County – Larry Miller, Fosston, Pennington County – Jerry Wigness and Connie Omdahl, both of Thief River Falls, and Red Lake County – Arnold Paradis, Brooks.

NCTC and TRF schools celebrate Black History month

Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) and Thief River Falls public schools will be celebrating Black History Month together throughout February.

Working in collaboration, several events have been planned for the month including trivia, coloring contests, movie nights and field trips. The month-long series of events being held at local campuses will be highlighted by a visit from nationally known artist Patrick Johnson of California on Feb. 14 at the NCTC theater from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Johnson will be showcasing his talent in the field of oil-based portrait art, and speaking on the importance of art to the history of the black culture.

Other events being planned, and open in most cases to the public, include movie nights, book discussions, and the Black History Luncheon being planned at NCTC Feb. 23 at noon.

Marshall County Trail Committee seeks funds for paved trail

The Marshall County Trail Committee is seeking funds to match a federal enhancement package for the development of a paved trail around Marshall County Park at Florian. These federal dollars are designated for use on enhancement projects and must be spent on transportation related projects such as, non-motorized trails, or beautification projects. The trail proposal is 2.6 miles long, costing $272,000; this includes a bridge over the Tamarac River and a trail system that encircles Florian Lake.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation has designated $180,000 of federal enhancement money for construction of the project in 2006, which leaves the Marshall Trail Committee with the daunting task of locating the remaining $92,000. An application for trail funding will be sent to the Minnesota DNR this winter in hopes of getting a portion of that amount.

Marshall County has the opportunity to utilize federal funding to enhance this scenic park by adding a paved trail. This is where it needs the cooperation of enthusiastic individuals and businesses. Monetary contributions are tax deductible and will help make Marshall County Park at Florian a recreation destination.

Kathryn Knuttila receives honor at Artists competition

Kathryn J. Knuttila, 12th-grade daughter of JoAnne and Steve Knuttila of Detroit Lakes, was awarded the distinction of honorable mention in the Greater Grand Forks Symphony Orchestra (GGFSO) 2005 Young Artists Competition at the Josephine Campbell Recital Hall at the University of North Dakota on Jan. 15.

Kathryn Knuttila

Knuttila memorized and performed the 42-page, 510-measure piano concerto, "Rhapsody in Blue" by George Gershwin. This was a duo piano arrangement with the band score transcribed for the second piano. Jillian Larson, 12th-grade daughter of Jean and Mark Larson of Thief River Falls, was the accompanist for Knuttila and performed the second piano part.

Knuttila, a pianist, and Amy Boese, a Central High School violinist from Grand Forks, N.D., were selected to receive the Page Towne Award. The Page Towne Award, named for a former Greater Grand Forks Symphony Orchestra executive director who helped found the GGFSO, was presented by Gary Towne, who chairs the University of North Dakota (UND) Music Department. This award is presented to the outstanding performer(s) under 19 years of age on the day of the competition. A monetary gift was included with this prestigious music award.

Judging the contest were Timm Rolek, music director and conductor for the Greater Grand Forks Symphony; local composer and UND faculty member Michael Wittgraf; pianist Lisa Anderson, and GGFSO violinist Suzanne Larson.

Knuttila has been tutored in private piano lessons for 13 years by her aunt, Marcia M. Knuttila of Thief River Falls.

Volunteers needed for Daffodil Days

The American Cancer Society (ACS) is raising money for cancer research, education and patient services through its annual Daffodil Days. Proceeds from Daffodil Days support the American Cancer Society research program that has made a healthy future possible for so many.

With research providing insights and new therapies, the future is bright for many cancer patients. By funding groundbreaking research, ACS has contributed to many important discoveries that have led to a better understanding of cancer and cancer treatment. Each year, the ACS spends approximately $100 million on cancer research.

Celebrating its annual Daffodil Days campaign, ACS is offering advance orders now through Feb. 21, 2005, with delivery the week of March 7-11. Individuals may order blooms for friends, family and co-workers to support the fight against cancer. Daffodil bunches (approximately 10 stems) are available with a $7 donation. With a $15 donation, the Gift of Hope bouquet will be delivered anonymously to a local cancer patient receiving treatment.

Companies can also spread the joy of spring to clients and customers by contributing to the Corporate Bouquet program. The bouquet features 60 daffodils and greenery arranged in a round glass bowl and is available with a $75 donation to ACS.

Volunteers are needed who will organize the campaign within their companies, schools, places of worship, or other organizations to collect orders for daffodils. Most donations come from Daffodil Days volunteer coordinators who organize the Daffodil Days campaign within their companies or other organizations.

To order daffodils or to volunteer your time, please call 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

ACS is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. Founded in 1913 and with national headquarters in Atlanta, it has 14 regional divisions and local offices in 3,400 communities, involving millions of volunteers across the United States. For more information anytime, call toll free 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Northwind Crossing to perform at NCTC Feb. 5

The Celtic music group Northwind Crossing announced plans last week to perform its new concert titled "The Road To Lisdoonvarna" on Saturday, Feb. 5 at 3 and 7 p.m. at the Northland Community and Technical College Theater in Thief River Falls.

The title of the concert stems from the centuries-old custom for holding an annual matchmaking festival in the Irish community of Lisdoonvarna. Every year, bachelors and bachelorettes journey to Lisdoonvarna in hopes of finding the love of their lives during the month-long celebration that includes much music and dance.

The Celtic band Northwind Crossing has assembled a wide array of Irish and Scottish music that is perfect for the Valentine season, including tunes that are likely to be heard on the streets of Lisdoonvarna during the annual matchmaking event. This concert includes love songs, friendship songs, tunes of celebration and dance inspired by the romantic tradition of expressing emotions with lyrics and musical notes. Few cultures have equaled the Irish and Scottish in mastering the art of using music to express the exhilara*tion of love* won, the heartbreak of love lost, the joy of friends reunited and the forlorn melancholy of friends long forgotten. With the wail and lilt of the Irish whistle and the cry and laughing "diddle-de-dee" of the Irish fiddle, Northwind Crossing evokes every human emotion associated with love and friendship in this two-hour concert.

Willis Mattison, booking agent and bass guitarist for Northwind Crossing, stated that the group has included Thief River Falls among several communities in northern Minnesota on its 2005 Celtic Valentine Concert Tour.

This is the second appearance in Thief River Falls for the popular Celtic band with their first concert "A Very Celtic Christmas" at the Lincoln High School auditorium in December 2003. This time, two two-hour Valentine's concerts are scheduled for the college theater with a matinee performance slated for 3 p.m. and an evening show to start at 7 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $8 for students (age 18 and under). Advance tickets are available for both concerts at Kezar Music in Thief River Falls (phone: 218-759-2347).

Northwind Crossing is a quintet of northern Minnesota musicians drawn together by their common love for performing traditional Celtic music. The bulk of Northwind Crossing's music comes from the past and is of some antiquity. Much of their repertory is known to have been current in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and some is of even earlier origin.

American folk music has been greatly influenced by this haunting ancient music that has roots not only in Ireland and Scotland but also Brittany in France, Galacia in Spain, and the Maritime Provinces of Canada. American bluegrass is clearly an offshoot of this ancient musical style. Northwind Crossing has researched and rediscovered 200- and 300-year-old tunes and songs that were played in the Irish and Scottish countryside on fiddle, harp, pipes and tin whistles in the 18th and 19th centuries. Some harp airs written by Turlough O'Carolan date back as far as the 17th century.

Northwind Crossing preserves some of the ancient sounds of Celtic music with traditional instruments of fiddle, tin whistles, Celtic harp, accordion and bodhran drum (a shallow one-sided Celtic drum that traces its origin to Celtic warriors who would rhythmically beat their spears on their shields to intimidate their enemy as they marched into battle). Northwind Crossing augments the Celtic instruments with guitar, mandolin, bouzouki, and bass guitar, adding something of their own American flavor to the traditional sounds.

Northwind Crossing, as with most Celtic bands over the years, consists of self-taught musicians. The five members of the band combine to perform on nearly two dozen different instruments in their concerts. Fran Gack from Akeley is featured on fiddle, viola, mandolin, guitar, bouzouki, cello and vocals; Tamie Jensen, who lives on Island Lake in Becker County is featured on Irish tin whistles, recorders, accordion, mountain and hammer dulcimer, Celtic harp and vocals; Larry Kimble from Walker, on six- and 12-string guitar and vocals; Elijah Jensen on bodhran, autoharp, Celtic harp, accordion and vocal, and Willis Mattison, (originally from Plummer) of Osage, who plays bass guitar and banjo also acts as the narrator/historian for the group.

Performances include "storytelling" that presents the historical contexts for many of the tunes and songs performed by Northwind Crossing. The stories provide brief glimpses into the rich cultural heritage of this art that is Celtic music.

Northwind Crossing was formed in 1999 and has performed throughout northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin at theaters, clubs, resorts, conventions, trade shows, ethnic and community celebrations, arts fairs, county fairs, coffeehouses, churches, weddings and parties.

Northwind Crossing has enjoyed five successful summer seasons performing regular concerts at the Woodtick Musical Theater in Akeley. More information about Northwind Crossing is available at the group's Web site, www.northwindcrossing.com.

Property owners reminded to clear snow from sidewalks

Property owners are being reminded to clear snow from sidewalks adjacent to their Thief River Falls properties. Under city ordinance, snow has to be cleared within 24 hours after a snow event.

If a property owner has not complied with the ordinance, he or she may receive a letter from the city. Last year, the Public Works Department sent 14 letters to property owners who were not in compliance, Public Works Director Ron Lindberg said. Of those property owners, he noted two still did not comply. As a result, the city hired someone to remove the snow, and the property owners were billed.

Given that it can be time consuming to check all areas of the city and send the letters, Lindberg urged residents and/or mail carriers to alert him about sidewalks that are not cleared in time. His phone number is 681-8506.

Youth snowmobile safety classes to be held in February

PARENTING TIPS
Conflict Resolution

The following are some ideas that may be helpful in trying to resolve conflicts:

- Take a deep breath when you are experiencing conflict. The old adage, "Count to 10" is useful not only to prevent impulsive reactions but also to give you time to listen to yourself and to observe others before reacting.
- Try to pinpoint the real issue. What is being discussed may not be the real issue.
- Use specific rather than general language. Confrontation is most effective when it is specific and timely. To generalize, "you always . . ." or "you never . . ." is not helpful. Rather be specific, such as "yesterday you did not pick up your clothes."
- Be willing to say "no." "No" can be a loving word. It is more loving for you to say "no" when something does not feel right than to say "Yes."
- Be aware that people handle conflict differently. Some are quick to temper and others are slow. Some want to talk about conflict right away, and some want time to reflect and think about it (including small children). Use the following list of suggestions as needed depending on the situation:

* smooth over
* listen
* blow up
* ignore it
* compromise
* talk it over
* be specific
* back down
* seek clarification
* seek alternatives
* ask for help
* count to 10

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

This time maybe we should listen instead of talk.

Area teachers nominated for Teacher of the Year

Three area teachers were among the more than 140 teachers in Minnesota who are eligible for the honor of 2005 Minnesota Teacher of the Year.

This year's program will name the 41st Minnesota Teacher of the Year, celebrating the tradition of excellence in teaching in Minnesota. Candidates include pre-kindergarten through 12th-grade teachers, from public or private schools. Education Minnesota, the 70,000-member statewide educators' organization, organizes and underwrites the Teacher of the Year program.

The three area teachers nominated for the award are Carol Guy of Roseau, Marcy Helling of Thief River Falls, and Judith Larson of Warroad.

The 2005 Minnesota Teacher of the Year will be announced Sunday, May 1, at The Northland Inn and Conference Center in Brooklyn Park. Over the coming months, a 22-member panel of community leaders will name a group of semi-finalists, and then finalists.

Altru recognized by North Dakota for its immunization rate

For the second consecutive year, the North Dakota Department of Health has recognized healthcare professionals at Altru Clinic - Family Medicine Center and Altru's Pediatrics Clinic for its impressive immunization rate.

According to Kristin Hertz, RN, North Dakota Department of Health's AFIX Immunization Program Coordinator, Altru Clinic - Family Medicine Center and Altru's Pediatrics Clinic met the program's goal by achieving at least an immunization rate of 85 percent for the 4:3:1:3:3 series. The 4:3:1:3:3 series includes four or more doses of diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis, three or more doses of poliovirus vaccine, one or more doses of any measles containing vaccine (MCV), three or more doses of Haemophilius Influenza type B (Hib), and three or more doses of hepatitis B vaccine (HepB). The Centers for Disease Control established a nationwide immunization goal of 80 percent for 2-year-old children.

June Lawrence, Nursing Supervisor of Altru Clinic - Family Medicine Center, and Dr. Eric Lunn, Pediatrician with Altru's Pediatrics Clinic, said, "The clinic nurses are proud of their achievement of immunizing children against vaccine preventable diseases."

The CDC Web site reports that while the United Sates has record or near record low levels of vaccine preventable childhood diseases, many of the viruses and bacteria are still circulating in this country or are only a plane ride away. That's why it's important that children, especially infants and young children, receive recommended immunizations on time.

Winter can be charming

Winter can be charming – if you overlook the near-fatal diseases, the nose-crinkling dry interior air, the grind of a reluctant starter on a sub-zero morning, the constant urge to sleep, the struggle to don layers of puffy clothing, the battle to get something done outside while cucooned in puffy clothing, the clunk clunk of boots on frozen pavement, the crunch of car tires on frozen, packed snow, the feeling of sliding slowly, inevitably towards the ditch, the raw roar of tires spinning on ice while giving off steam, the splat of salt brine on the windshield on the one warm day in January, the crack of a rock from the sanding truck on the windshield a day later, the silence of the gas furnace, the tank of which you forgot to fill, the sick-clicking of a dead battery, the white snowsnakes slithering across the highway during a ground blizzard, the dull poof of hitting a good firm drift, the whiteout panic of meeting a snowplow on an overpass, the feeling of snow down one's neck or on that spot on the wrists which no glove seems to cover, the burn of thawing feet, the thrill of turning an impromptu and involuntary cartwheel on an ice patch outside the bank, the struggle to take off snowpants before removing one's boots, the joy of pulling off wool socks covered with dangling lumps of wet snow, the puddles of water shaped like boot tracks in the entry, the chunks of firewood bark caught in the carpet, the stab of a pine needle from the Christmas tree hidden in the shag carpet shooting up through the sole of your foot, the realization that you need to wear long underwear but can't because you've put on too much weight since Thanksgiving to button your pants around them, the wheeze, howl and screech of a freshly started engine at 30 below, the long cold trek into the counter after the pay-at-the pump thing won't take your card during a blizzard, the challenge of replacing the gas cap with gloves on, the smell of gas on those gloves in the car after you get on the road again, the dilemma of whether to open the kitchen windows when you burn the bacon and it is below zero, the fury at people who pass you doing 80 on black ice, the letdown when you turn the faucet on during cold weather and nothing comes out, the ripping feeling when you pull a frozen pliers off your tongue after holding them in your mouth so you could pull your gloves on, the indignity of wiping your runny nose on your sleeve, even though you are an adult who is on many important committees and boards, because you don't want to take your mittens off to dig out the disintegrating half-frozen Kleenex in your jacket pocket, the memories of the days on the school bus when you chewed the knot on your hood string until it developed the texture of rare steak, or when you drew pictures in the frost on the bus windows until the underneath of your fingernails burned, or when you stood at the top of the driveway for 20 minutes without a cap before they called that the bus was stuck over at Nelsons, or the feeling across your back as the string which connected your mittens was pulled taut by the playground bully, or the struggle to get your snowboots off when your teacher refused to help because she wanted you to exhibit greater independence, or the inhumanely cold days which weren't quite cold enough to cancel recess because canceling recess would have been too much hassle for the authorities, or the warming house at the skating rink which wasn't warm enough to thaw feet jammed in skates a size too small, or the memories of crunchy frozen hair strands when you went up town to buy candy after wrestling practice in junior high when wearing a cap just wasn't worth messing up your hair and risking permanent and complete social rejection. If you overlook all that, winter really isn't so bad.

PARENTING TIPS
Visit the Public Library

Go to the library and show your children what is there. Help them become familiar with the children's area and the kind of behavior that is expected there. Children who are taken to the library regularly learn early that reading is for entertainment as well as for learning. This plays an important role in their success in school. Ask the librarian to recommend books suited to your child's interests. To show children that books are important, teach your child to handle books respectfully. Get your child his or her own library card and make a fuss over it. Take advantage of the programs offered at the library for children.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As you read to your child, give him/her time to look at and talk about each page. Ask questions about the pictures.

VIP receives funding for homeless

The Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls was among the many organizations in Minnesota to receive funding to be used to provide services to the homeless.

Sen. Norm Coleman has announced that counties throughout rural Minnesota will receive $4,332,956 in grants from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD) Continuum of Care (CoC) Homeless Assistance Program to provide a continuum of services to assist homeless individuals.

The CoC provides federal funding to support continuum programs in assisting homeless persons with a variety of services including transitional housing, permanent housing and a variety of supportive services to help America's homeless population get back on their feet.

"I am pleased that these HUD funds will be able to provide invaluable assistance that will have a direct and positive impact on the lives of so many Minnesotans," said Coleman. "These programs provide the essential resources of housing and support services that will significantly improve the quality of life for many in our communities. I commend the efforts of President Bush and the administration who have worked well with local and national agencies to provide these services to areas and individuals that need it the most."

Teddy Bear Band performs in TRF Feb. 15

The Teddy Bear Band will be performing at Thief River Falls Challenger Elementary and Preschool at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 15.

According to information on the band's Web site (www.teddybearband.com), the Teddy Bear Band performs with a very simple goal in mind: To entertain, inspire, and support children, families and educators. Started by an early childhood teacher and a group of talented musicians (and dads) in 1985, the Teddy Bear Band now plays upwards of 350 shows per year, as well as providing resource materials and early childhood workshops.

According to Joyce Froschheiser of the Challenger Preschool, children ages 2-10 will enjoy the performance.

Parents are encouraged to remind their children to bring their own teddy bears and blankets. The band plays developmentally appropriate music, and involves the children in many activities.

At the event in Thief River Falls, the first 100 families will receive a "Little People Touch Our Lives" tote bag filled with early childhood information.

Admission to this event is free of charge, but a freewill offering will be accepted. This offering will go directly to the Early Childhood Initiative to promote its vision of the future: "All of our youngest children in Thief River Falls will thrive and have a healthy life of learning, achieving and succeeding."

This event is sponsored by the Early Childhood Initiative, Challenger Preschool Programs, Title 1 Program, and the Family Advocacy Program in celebration of and to raise awareness about the Thief River Falls Early Childhood Initiative.

...Manners, anyone?

If you haven't done it yet, you're late and you'd better get to it. What am I talking about? Your Christmas thank you notes, that's what. If you haven't said thank you for the gifts you got at Christmas, or if you haven't written a little note to people you did not have a chance to thank in person or by phone, you are guilty of bad manners.

What? Thank you notes are old-fashioned? What? Nobody does that any more? What? You don't do them? What?

There's no excuse for bad manners. Gratitude is not old-fashioned and it is never out of style. It might change a bit, and even grow to include e-mails, but it will always be required of civilized people. No matter how grand and modern you get, showing your appreciation is never outdated. Proper etiquette is something that makes us different from monkeys - maybe.

I know someone who proved her point about thank you notes to her children by taking them shopping after Christmas. Yes, when they whined about writing thank you notes, she bundled them up and took them downtown. She had them keep track of the time it took them to go shopping for a couple of gifts from the time they left the house until the time it took them to actually mail the packages. Allowing the extra time it would take at a store and the post office during the pre-Christmas rush, the time came to two and one-half hours for three children to purchase, wrap and mail off two gifts.

Then she had the children time how long it took each of them to write a thank you note for one of the gifts they received at Christmas. That took them about three minutes. What a surprise!

Still moaning and groaning, the children wanted to know what would happen if they didn't write thank you notes to anybody. Along with the obvious answer a mother would give her children, which is "You'll get your rear tanned," Mom came up with a few other answers as well.

First of all, she said, the giver would not know whether or not the gift reached its destination and would worry that it got lost. Secondly, and most important of all, she added, the giver will decide that the children were thoughtless and ungrateful, as well as downright rude. Then, Mom added, the giver might decide if the child does not have three minutes of time to spend on writing a note, the giver might not have any time to spend on the child, and there would be no more gifts. That got their attention!

There is no excuse for not thanking people for gifts: Children can be helped when they are small, even have their picture taken with the gift, and then dictate a little note for Mom or Dad to write for them as a thank you. As children get older, they can compose their own thank you notes, drawing pictures, writing stories, learning proper writing and wording as they proceed.

The gift should always be noted by name, and, if possible, tell how it was or is going to be used. After that, the hardest part of the note might be a small sentence about what else is going on, such a comment about the happy Christmas that was had, or how the weather has been, or what the child is doing in school.

All of this might sound silly, but it is a part of civilized society. There are proper ways to do things, and saying "thank you" is a proper - and good - thing.

Then, too, what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and the same thing goes for adults as it does for children. Have you taken the time to say "Thank you" yet for that gift Aunt Sarah sent you? Better get at it, then, or maybe Aunt Sarah will decide not to give you another.

New year, new choices

FBM instructor, Ulen

We are in the planning stages for the 2005 crop year, and, as always, it is hard to see what the year ahead will bring. Of course, we would like to select the crop that will yield the best and sell for the highest price, so let's do some evaluation of some of the choices.

Most of us have raised barley at some point, but maybe not much lately. Each area has different pricing, so I'd encourage you to look at some of the contracts available in your area. In my area, the 2005 malting barley bids are at $2.95 and $3.00. With these contracts and the malting barley insurance coverage, I believe it is a good choice.

Corn can bring up some bad memories from 2004. Costs are up for both fuel and fertilizer and breakevens are higher. Fall cash prices are currently below the loan price. If you can get your breakeven price below $2.00, plan for loan deficiency payments (LDPs) and try some corn.

Soybean seed costs have gone up, and many farmers are planning for aphids and soybean rust so the breakeven cost has gone higher. We have a $4.85 forward price for the fall. Look for a $5.50 price to start selling and try to think back to a few years when we weren't spending as much on our soybean crop. There are a few food grade contracts for a dollar more.

New crop oil sunflowers seem to be overpriced in comparison with soybean oil, so if you are thinking of planting flowers, get a contract. The new-crop price in our area has dropped from $13.70 to $12.20 in the last few weeks. Don't expect these prices to hold. They are just to get you thinking about sunflowers. Sunflowers can use some of that unused fertilizer. Confectionery sunflower contracts are also worth checking into at $18.00 per hundredweight.

Here are some considerations to help you choose when planting wheat. Will you choose a variety that has good protein or are you going to go for big yields? What about scab and falling number characteristics? It seems every variety has some poor characteristics that should be considered. Our local cash price for fall spring wheat is $3.12. By my figures, we need 50 plus bushel yields to get our breakevens low enough. We can probably plan for LDPs on wheat.

Hopefully, these ideas will help you make some good decisions for a successful 2005 crop year. Happy New Year!

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: A recent car accident left me disabled. When I spoke to a SSA representative she said I would not be eligible because I left my job several years ago to raise my family. She said neither I nor my young children could now get SSA disability benefits. What should that have to do with anything? I'm hurt, cannot take care of my family and we cannot afford to hire help.

A: Social Security benefits are based on work. Having insured status means a person has enough work to receive Social Security benefits on their own record assuming all other requirements are also met. For retirement and survivor benefits the maximum amount of work needed to be insured is 40 credits, also known as quarters of coverage. Depending on age, varying amounts of work are needed to be insured for survivor and disability benefits. Once a person has at least 40 credits they stay insured for retirement and survivor benefits even if leaving the workforce.

Disability insured status is lost over time without ongoing work activity. This is what has happened to you. During the years you were away from paid employment whatever disability insured status you had faded away and, as you mentioned, if you are not eligible neither are your children.

The ending point for disability insured status, known in SSA jargon as date last insured, varies widely based on the persons age and work record before leaving paid work but generally is gone within about five years. No matter the severity, a disabling condition starting after the date last insured, such as your accident, will not qualify for SSA disability benefits on that persons own record.

You can certainly review the SSA record of your earnings for accuracy and file an application to get a formal decision with appeal rights. I expect you and the SSA representative already discussed Supplemental Security Income (SSI), a separate need based program administered by SSA. Family income, not your work record, is material for SSI.

Other readers about to leave the workforce for reasons such as raising a family, caring for parents or early work retirement should stay aware of disability insured status and consider part-time employment to keep SSA disability coverage or some private disability insurance option. The Social Security Statement, mailed annually to most employed people at least age 25, contains specific information about your own insured status. A Statement can also be requested online at www.socialsecurity.gov, by calling the SSA national toll-free number 800-772-1213 and from any SSA office.

Q: Can a man get Social Security widowers benefits? My deceased wife always earned more money than I did.

A: Yes. About 99 percent of the benefits we pay to spouses of retired and deceased workers do go to women. With that said, SSA requirements are gender neutral and men can receive benefits as a husband or widower if higher benefits are payable than on their own work record. Benefit requirements apply equally to men as well as women. You certainly could receive benefits as a widower if that would provide a higher SSA benefit to you, assuming all the usual requirements are met.

Emergency vehicles lit up Highway 59 as they responded to the scene of a fatal semi and train accident Friday night. The semi driver, Robbie David Gordan Johnson, 21, Arbog, Manitoba, Canada, was killed in the accident two miles north of Thief River Falls. Highway 59 was closed until Sunday night, according to the Minnesota State Patrol.

Ron Ray, vice president of operations at Arctic Cat, wrote, "Arctic Cat has no real interest in doing this project at this time."

However, the feasibility report indicated the company had agreed, at a meeting six days prior to Ray's letter, to pay the $25,000.

The council approved establishing a public hearing date for the 2005 Street, Sidewalk and Utilities Improvement Project. The hearing will be held Thursday, Feb. 17 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

Nate Dalager from HDR Engineering of Thief River Falls appeared before the council regarding the Southeast Area Drainage Study.

The $12,780 study, which looked at drainage adjacent to County Ditch 1 and Highway 59, is being funded by the city, Pennington County, the Red Lake Watershed District and Smiley Township. The study covered an area of approximately three square miles southeast of the city.

"The biggest problem in this area is it's very flat," said Dalager, who noted the area also has vegetation and debris problems.

Dalager presented the city with several options to reduce flooding in that area, which he outlined in a three-tiered format. Tier I pertained to immediate maintenance, including such things as ditch cleaning and cattail control. Tier II proposals included a long-term solution, such as a diversion. Tier III recommendations included improving infrastructure near County Ditch 1.

Estimated costs for the proposals ranged from $4,000 for annual cattail spraying to $350,000 for a diversion near County Road 8. Funding could come from benefited landowners, the city, Pennington County, Mn/DOT, grants and other sources, Dalager said.

No action was taken on any of the drainage options presented at the council meeting.

City Council approved a no-parking zone between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday for two Main Avenue parking spaces on the westside of the Thief River Falls Public Library.

Police Chief Kim Murphy noted the no-parking zone was needed to alleviate traffic congestion during that time period. Traffic congestion occurs on Main Avenue when Arctic Cat and Digi-Key employees are on their way home after finishing their shifts. Due to parked cars in those parking spots, it also can be difficult for people to turn right onto First Street at that time. As a result, drivers are stopped in traffic many blocks down the street, sometimes as far away as Emil Street or Arnold Avenue.

No-parking signs will be placed near the two parking spots in mid-February, Lindberg said.

Murphy noted the police department would institute a 30-day grace period in which drivers would not be ticketed for parking there.

The council approved a six-month trial change in the police department's work schedule. During the trial period, police officers would work 11-1/2 hour shifts as opposed to the current 8-1/2 hour shifts. Monthly progress reports would also be provided to the council during those six months. The trial period began Jan. 30.

Murphy said the schedule change would accommodate the training of two new police officers who may join the department to succeed two who are quitting. The change would also eliminate a three-month period of overtime.

City Council approved the Cooperative Agreement for Permitting Services with the Pennington County Sheriff's Department. Under the agreement that is retroactive from Aug. 30, 2004 to Dec. 31, 2006, the sheriff's department will handle city residents' permits to carry firearms. The department will also continue to handle permits for residents living elsewhere in the county. The permit costs $10, which is payable to the sheriff's department.

The agreement comes after a law governing permits-to-carry was signed in 2003. It required sheriffs to honor permit requests by all citizens 21 and over who are trained in the safe use of a pistol and who are not otherwise prohibited from possessing a firearm. Despite often being referred to as the conceal-and-carry law, the statute does not require the permit holder to conceal his or her weapon.

Later, a constitutionality issue arose since the Minnesota State Legislature can only approve single-subject legislation. A Ramsey County judge's ruling struck down the law since the permit-to-carry provision was attached to an unrelated Minnesota Department of Natural Resources bill. However, the Minnesota County Attorneys Association has determined that permits should be issued under the old law until the constitutionality issue can be resolved.

The council approved letters of agreement with the Minnesota State High School League to host the Section 8A Boys Hockey Tournament and the East and West Subsection 8A Girls and Boys Basketball Tournament. Quarterfinals, semifinals and the final of the hockey tournament are scheduled Feb. 17, 18, 19, 21 and 24. The other tournament's semifinals and finals are scheduled Feb. 26 and March 1, 5 and 8. Under the agreements, Ralph Engelstad Arena (REA) would provide personnel and security. The arena will be reimbursed through mutual agreement or in accordance with Region 8A Handbook policies.

City Council approved an agreement with Tim Bergland to sell advertising at REA and the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center from Nov. 1, 2004 to Oct. 31, 2005. Under the agreement, City Administrator Jodie Torkelson said, Bergland would be paid a $7,800 commission for $55,000 worth of signs he sold for the facility so far.

Torkelson noted the city had signed an agreement with REA Events Inc. of Grand Forks, N.D., for the sale of advertising. However, the person assigned to REA-TRF did not follow the contract. Torkelson added that the Parks and Recreation Committee then approved going forward with hiring Bergland, but a contract was never approved.

Bergland's contract is the same as the contract with REA Events. The contract calls for Bergland to receive a 20 percent sales commission for new advertising and a 13 percent commission for advertising renewals.

The council approved an agreement with the Thief River Falls Soccer Association for cleaning REA during the World Junior Hockey Championship. Torkelson noted the association would receive $2,000 for cleaning after the tournament games.

The next council meeting is scheduled Feb. 8 at 5 p.m. at City Hall.

County Board studies Co. Ditch 1

drain slowly after heavy rainfalls.

Dalager presented several recommendations for increasing CD 1's drainage, prioritizing them into tiers. Tier one recommendations include cleaning ditches top to bottom; annual inspection of the ditch; cattail control (spraying); development of a consensus with study partners; and holding a public meeting to inform the community of plans.

Tier two recommendations include evaluating and choosing a diversion; redetermining benefits; and providing an east outlet for the U.S. Highway 59 ditch. Dalager noted that accomplishing all three tasks of tier two will solve drainage problems, but accomplishing only two tasks, will not.

Tier three includes further planning and urbanization of the Highway 59 corridor. The urbanization plans of tier three would make the city portion of CD 1 into a storm sewer.

Tier one has a conceptual cost of $24,000. Tier two's conceptual cost ranges from $184,000 for the least expensive diversion option to $350,000 for the most expensive. Redetermination would be conducted during tier two at an estimated cost of $15,000, an estimate that the board seems to feel is too conservative. Tier three's urbanization of the TH 59 corridor would cost between $100,000 and $300,000 depending on which plan is chosen.

All three tiers are intended to alleviate the potential flooding of roadways along the ditch. The problem the Pennington County Board sees with the recommendations is that the area that would benefit most from diversion is not currently in the benefitted area.

The next step for improving CD 1 is uncertain, but a public hearing is likely.

Engineer's Items

• The board approved advertising for fuel, culvert and equipment bids for the summer 2005 construction season. Bid opening will be held on March 8.

• The board granted approval for County Engineer Mike Flaagen to attend the annual National Association of County Engineers convention in Bismarck, N.D.

• Flaagen told the board that the Highway Department had already used 200 tons of combined sand and salt to clean the county's 190 miles of paved roads during the 2004-05 winter season. Flaagen said that approximately 80 tons were used in each of the previous two winter seasons.

Department of Human Services seeks requests to participate in Parent Support Outreach Program (PSOP). Welfare Director Ken Yutrzenka presented plans for this and other counties in the region to participate in the PSOP, a pilot project in which the funding source is a $3 million McKnight foundation grant. Money can be used for various case management issues. Counties selected for the pilot program will be reimbursed for service costs up to $1,000 per family.

County Compost Facility meets all Pollution Control Agency (PCA) requirements. Pennington County Solid Waste Officer Howard Person reported that he received a letter from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency stating that the facility met all PCA requirements. With the PCA signing off on the building, the county is free to do as it wishes with the facility. Options discussed at the board meeting varied from selling the building and accompanying land to using for Highway Department and Sentence to Serve activities.

Board opposes Senate Bill 161. Person told the board that two bills dealing with septic system regulations were introduced to the Minnesota State Senate. The first bill introduced would stop septic system installers or designers from inspecting systems in an area where they are installing. No action supporting or opposing this bill was taken.

A second bill, Senate Bill 161, was introduced to the Senate. It would require that all county septic system ordinances match the state ordinance, meaning if a family needs to replace its septic system, it would have to follow all state regulations, regardless of location. The board unanimously carried a motion to send a letter opposing Senate Bill 161.

Board approves Sheriff Department fee schedule for 2005. Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby presented changes to the department's fee schedule. The first change is a $30 fee, up from $25 for serving a summons, warrant, writ, subpoena or any process issued by a court of record, for each dependent served and mileage. The second increase was in mileage paid, increasing the mileage payment to 50 cents per mile up from 45, with a minimum payment of $10.

Sheriff's Items

• The board approved the Sheriff department's hiring of Gerald Erickson as full-time corrections officer.

• The board approved the sheriff's department posting in office for a permanent part-time dispatcher position

• The board approved the sheriff department's purchase of a commercial grade dryer.

Auditor's Items

• The board approved a $50,000 transfer of funds to cover debts at Oakland Park Nursing Home.

• The board approved use of spam filtering on county computers. The program used will be purchased from the state of Minnesota.

Technology class may be added

Articulation agreements, which are in the process of being written, would make it possible for students to receive credit for the courses they take.

The Post Secondary Enrollment Option is not being explored. Melcher also said he would not be recruiting students from other high schools, although they would be welcome under open enrollment.

Melcher said students would benefit in several ways. In these introductory classes, they would learn problem solving, team work, and improve written and oral communication skills, as well as knowledge of manufacturing automation. These are benefits, he said, that would be applicable to many courses.

In the future, the manufacturing environment promises to become increasingly technical, and the United States needs to respond with increasing numbers of advanced technicians. Melcher said two key studies predict a severe shortage of trained, skilled technicians in spite of the current short-term deceleration of manufacturing. Unfortunately, the accelerating application of technology to manufacturing comes in the face of a steady decline in enrollment in programs that address these needs. This program has been developed to respond to that need.

When asked what kind of starting wages graduates might expect, Melcher said that in northwestern Minnesota, students could expect about $15 per hour. In the Twin Cities, they could expect to see about $25 per hour. In Europe, students might receive $55 per hour.

The board of education did not act on a resolution regarding this program. The information was presented only for discussion purposes. A formal proposal may be presented at a later date.

Staff Development Funds

Representing School District 564 Staff Development, ADawn Melbye requested that the board of education re-establish the funding for staff development at levels prior to recent budget reductions.

Staff development is any program or activity designed to influence the professional knowledge, skills and attitudes of educational personnel to enhance student learning and achievement.

The formal request that came in the form of a letter from the staff development committee, asks that the board of education reinstate the full 2 percent of funding the board had previously allocated for staff development.

The letter stated: "In times of need, our licensed staff voted to forego half of our allotted staff development money for the good of the district. This was agreed upon in good faith with the understanding that should funds become available, this issue would be revisited."

The board of education took the matter under advisement.

Next Meeting

The next regular meeting of the board of education has been scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 14, in the conference room of the District Service Center.

Alliance Higher Ed partnership provides training

The Alliance is a group of Minnesota higher education providers working together to strengthen individuals and organizations through innovative solutions. The alliance was formed in June 2003 for the purpose of establishing relationships among faculty, staff and administrators of four institutions: Bemidji State University Center for Research and Innovation, Northland Community and Technical College, Northwest Technical College - Bemidji and Minnesota State Community and Technical College. Since the Alliance was originally formed, Minnesota State University - Moorhead and Alexandria Technical College have joined in the partnership.

It is the intent of the Alliance to serve customers more effectively through non-duplication of services. By efficient application of joint resources and personnel, the Alliance is providing the individuals and organizations in the region with cost-effective, results-oriented solutions delivered at the right place and at the right time. Each partner institution has heard constituents clearly express that they want to see higher education providers working together to meet the needs at a savings to taxpayers. These partner institutions heard this desire from the community and have formed the Alliance as a response.

These six partners have developed systems and processes that enable them to work together to serve customers by delivering services through the customers' "local" institution. An individual or organization can still contact the same person at their local institution to discuss their specific need. The Alliance partner would then tap into the resources available at any of the partner institutions to meet that need in an efficient and effective means. For the constituent, the Alliance provides a greater pool of resources to meet whatever needs may occur. For the communities, the Alliance provides education for improved skills in the current workforce and more efficient service delivery to the customers of the organization.

experienced here are an enormous influx of people," Winjum said. "Knowing that was going to happen, serving all those people, while making mistakes. Keeping them happy enough so that they are going to come back."

To meet the initial demand, Cafe Rhombus started with a staff of 30, including 10-12 employees in the kitchen on a given night.

Winjum said there has been a good response from the community and he is confident that the restaurant is building a base of customers who enjoy a different dining experience.

Cafe Rhombus is open seven days per week, Monday through Thursday, 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Mr. Movies

The Thief River Falls Mr. Movies store opened its doors to the public on Nov. 5, 2004. It is one of 846 Mr. Movies stores located throughout the United States.

The store is managed by Hannah Schmidt, who previously served as assistant manager at the Crookston Mr. Movies location, and Assistant Manager Adam Tongen. Together they oversee a staff of six.

Mr. Movies opened Nov. 5 and was immediately met with enthusiastic support. Tongen said the store was quite busy when it first opened. He credited coupons and the newness of the store for early success. Now business [illegible] up and down [illegible] upon the weather.

"If you really think about it, it [illegible] proof of credit to rent movies," Tongen said. "Some people have had a hard time with that."

Tangen said another problem customers have had is knowing when movies are due back.

Tongen said that brand new movies are one day rentals, and are due back by 10 p.m. the day after they are checked out. After three weeks, new movies become four-day rentals. This means that a four-day rental, checked out on Monday, would be due back by 10 p.m. on Friday.

Currently, Mr. Movies has a special on old movies. All non-new releases can be rented for $2.65 each or five for $5.

Another way to save on movie rentals at Mr. Movies is by joining Club Super Saver. Super Saver membership costs $20 per year, but include seven free game or movie rentals. Plus, each Super Saver membership entitles its holder to free children's movie rentals, the privilege of reserving movies and a free movie or game rental with every seven paid rentals.

Tongen said that the free rentals can also come in handy when weather makes it difficult to return movies.

"It's kind of nice because of the bad weather we've had," Tongen said. "Just bring the movie back late and use the punch to pay for the late fee."

The Thief River Falls Mr. Movies store is open seven days a week: 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Cell Tech Communications

Cell Tech Communications Inc. [illegible]

With its three locations, Cell Tech Communications Inc. ranks as one of the 25 largest western wireless dealers.

Hron said that the new store has seen an excellent response, including four times the drive by traffic as its previous location. Hron credits good customer service for the store's past success and said that will continue to be a key at the store's new location.

"Our customer service is going to create our success," Hron said. "That's something we preach and strive to give each and every day. I really think that's got us where we're at."

The Highway 59 SE location will allow for additional services to be provided that were briefly provided before. Additional space has been filled by an installation bay and a PC repair area with enough space to repair 15 computers at one time.

Hron said he has noticed very few problems early on, most of which dealt with over crowding in the parking lot during the first few weeks.

"The only challenge we've had was when everything was brand new a couple of months ago," Hron said. "We filled 40-some parking spots every night. The restaurant business was crazy."

Hron said that the improvements to the property such as an exit on the north end of the parking lot, a barrier of shrubs in the back and landscaping for the property are likely this summer.

The three stores have only been open for a short time, but Hron is pleased with the early success of all three.

"It's been exactly what they wanted and exactly what I've [illegible]," Hron said. "I think that [illegible]"

The Thief River Falls TIMES

Pioneers play three key games at home

A three-game home stand that could go a long way in determining Northland's post-season fate starts tonight (Wednesday) when the Pioneers take on Mesabi Range in a 6 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball game.

Coming off a 77-69 Saturday win at Hibbing, Northland is 4-2 after the first swing through the Northern Division schedule — good for a second place tie with Mesabi Range and Rainy River, one game behind first place Vermilion and one game ahead of fifth place Central Lakes in a six-team race that sends its top four regular season finishers to the MCCC state tournament.

Vermilion will be in Thief River Falls Friday and Central Lakes arrives the following week for a Thursday (Feb. 10) match-up.

"These are three key games for us," confirmed Northland coach Rick Nikunen, whose team will follow the home stand with games at Itasca and Rainy River before finishing the regular season at home Feb. 19 vs. Hibbing.

Mike Howard scored 24 points, Juwaun Bowman had 18, Jason Koch 17 and Cyrin Shaffer 10 in the Northland win at Hibbing. The Pioneers led 35-31 at halftime

"Any road win in the conference is a treat – a bonus," said Nikunen.

Defense got much of the credit as Northland improved to 13-7 overall.

"We defended really well," noted Nikunen. "They've got three players who can really scare you. They've been scoring over 80 points per game lately, so to hold them to 69 is a nice accomplishment."

Corey Shepherd scored 22 points, Dan Helstrom 15 and Luke Carlson 14 for the Cardinals.

Northland shot 46 percent from the field (26/57) and took advantage of Hibbing's aggressive play that resulted in fouls for a 21-for-35 night at the free throw line. Hibbing shot only 39 percent from the floor (31/80) and had a quiet 6-for-10 free throw showing.

Howard grabbed 12 rebounds and Bowman 10 as the Pioneers beat the Cardinals on the boards 44-40.

Northland had more turnovers than Hibbing, 24-15.

"We had a few more turnovers than I would like," acknowledged Nikunen, "but a lot of that had to do with their (Cardinals) aggressive play."

Scoring

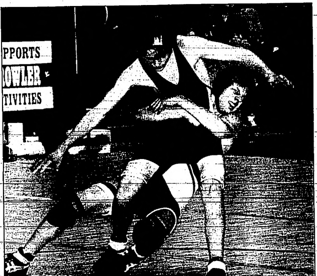
| | 1 | 2 | T |
|---|---|---|---|
| Northland | 35 | 42 | 77 |
| Hibbing | 31 | 38 | 69 |

Northland - Jason Koch 17, Kelvin Johnson 2, Matt Largis 4, Mike Howard 24, Juwaun Bowman 18, Cyrin Shaffer 10, Derek Shropshire 2.

Hibbing - Ryan Mattson 2, Corey Shepherd 22, Elroy Harris 7, Luke Carlson 14, Dan Helstrom 15, Blaine Turnbull 1, Aaron Turner 8.



Chris Laine of Hibbing held on, trying to prevent an escape by Kevin Fynboh of Thief River Falls during their 130-pound match in Thursday's wrestling action at the Lincoln High School gym. Fynboh won 10-1 and the Prowlers beat the Bluejackets 33-27.

Pelican Rapids able to hold on for win vs. TRF

Prowlers rally, but lose girls match-up 65-63

There are times when you can feel good after a loss. Saturday was one of those games for Thief River Falls as the Prowlers dropped a 65-63 girls high school basketball decision at Pelican Rapids.

Thief River Falls rallied from a 33-23 halftime deficit to take a 61-59 lead with 1:21 remaining. However, the Vikings finished with a 6-2 scoring edge at the end for the win.

"By far one of the best efforts we've had all year, especially in the second half," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "We went in at half down by 10, but I could feel the energy of the girls – they were ready to play. We just couldn't put it away."

The two teams played to an 11-11 first quarter tie before Pelican Rapids opened up that double-digit halftime lead. The Vikings had a 44-40 edge through three quarters.

Nichole Gryskiewicz scored 21 points, Jessica Gustafson 12 and Shawna Rogalla 11 as the Prowlers matched their biggest point total of the year. Casey Engelstad was a factor, too, with 7 points and 10 rebounds.

Gillian Bjerke had a 35-point, 14-rebound double-double for the Vikings.

"Gillian Bjerke is a premier player," noted Loe. "She is a 6-2 post, who I understand has signed a letter of intent to play at Iowa State. I know 35 points doesn't look like we defended her very well, but she got many of those off rebounds. She's a good athlete."

While the Prowlers collapsed on Bjerke, Pelican Rapids guards put up 17 shots from outside the 3-point line. "That would have worked well if we would have done a better job keeping her (Bjerke) off the boards," explained Loe.

Thief River Falls shot 37 percent from the field (24/65) and went 9-for-18 at the free throw line. Pelican Rapids shot 38 percent from the floor (25/66) while struggling through a 12-for-29 free throw game. The Vikings had a 40-33 rebound edge over the Prowlers, who topped the turnover numbers, 20-19.

The loss dropped the Prowlers to 6-11.

"I thought we played with a lot of intensity and confidence," offered Loe.

Scoring

| | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | T |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Thief River Falls | 11 | 12 | 17 | 23 | 63 |

Pelican Rapids - Kelcy Lass 9, Katie Woolever 6, Alison Stengrim 7, Jess Garrett 6, Lib Stoeves 2, Gillian Bjerke 35.

Bears goalie shuts down Thief River Falls' offense

Lake of the Woods goalie Jay Clark was the difference Saturday as the Bears shut out Thief River Falls 2-0 in Section 8A boys high school hockey at Baudette.

The Prowlers out-shot the Bears 35-11, but couldn't get the puck past Clark.

"We did everything we could have done to win the game," reported Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "We played very well for 51 minutes, but we ran into a hot goalie. We stormed the net. He (Clark) basically won the game for them. Goaltenders can do that."

Both Lake of the Woods goals came from Greg Beller, who scored at 4:28 of the first period and then hit an open net at 16:32 of the third period after the Prowlers pulled goalie Lance Klaven for an extra attacker.

It was the first time the 10-6-1 Prowlers have been shut out this winter.

Scoring

First period - LOW, Greg Beller, 4:28.
Second period - no scoring.
Third period - LOW, Beller, 16:32.
Goalie saves - TRF, Lance Klaven 5-1-3–9; LOW, Jay Clark 13-12-10–35.

TRF wrestlers extend win streaks at Northwest Tourney...

Anderson, LeDuc win titles

Continuation of winning streaks produced Northwest Tournament titles for Thief River Falls' Zach Anderson and Dan LeDuc during Saturday wrestling action at Fertile-Beltrami High School.

Both Prowlers beat Fertile-Beltrami foes in the finals as Anderson decisioned Jordan Gunnafson 5-2 at 140 pounds and LeDuc handled Evan Ranz 12-5 at 152.

It was the 31st straight victory for Anderson and the 29th straight win for LeDuc – the longest streaks in the Prowlers' books since Colt Bergeron and Jeremy Anderson both won over 40 matches in a row during the 2002-03 season.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River won team honors with 224 points, followed by Fertile-Beltrami at 177, Thief River Falls 164, Roseau 151.5, Park Rapids Area 98.5, Crookston 79.5, Mahnomen/Waubun 79, Red Lake County Central 77, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 66.5 and Blackduck/Cass Lake-Bena 62.5.

The Prowlers' Jordan Engen (103), Thain Abrahamson (145) and Andrew Peralta (heavyweight) joined Anderson and LeDuc in the finals.

Thief River Falls third place finishers were Kyle Iverson (125) and Adam Lian (171). Lian reached the 100-win milestone for his high school wrestling career with a 6-4 third place match decision over Austin Knoll of Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

Other Thief River Falls place finishes included a fifth by Josh Haverland (119), Kevin Fynboh (130) and Mancy Peralta (215), along with a sixth by Travis Bach (160).

First place swims add up to win

Grand Forks won 10 of the 11 races Thursday en route to a 116-54 boys high school swimming win over Thief River Falls at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Lone Thief River Falls first place finish against the Red River-Central cooperative came from Jon Kays in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The Prowlers fell to 0-5 in dual meet competition.

"Despite the score, the boys had 20 best-times," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Lacy Knott. "The new swimmers are really starting to step up and fill some holes."

Thief River Falls will close out its 2004-05 home schedule with a Tuesday, Feb. 8, double-dual vs. Moorhead and Bemidji that starts at 5 p.m.

Nick Spotts of Hibbing lifted Thief River Falls' Trevor Storey off the mat at 112 pounds during Thursday high school wrestling action in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers hosted the Bluejackets, Detroit Lakes and Fosston/Bagley in a triple-dual.

Prowlers have 2-1 triple dual

Five wrestling matches took place in the Lincoln High School gym Thursday as the Prowlers added a make-up contest against Hibbing to an already-planned double-dual vs. Detroit Lakes and Fosston/Bagley.

When the long day was completed, Thief River Falls had beaten Hibbing 33-27, lost to Detroit Lakes 34-28 and defeated Fosston/Bagley 50-21.

The results put Thief River Falls at 11-8 in dual meets.

It was the third and final home appearance of the 2004-05 season for the Prowlers, who will finish the schedule with a Thursday match at East Grand Forks.

The Prowlers also competed in the Northwest Quad at Crookston Tuesday and followed their Thursday matches with an appearance at the Northwest Invitational hosted by Fertile-Beltrami Saturday.

"This is a busy week," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Kenny Geiser. "The team as a whole is battling colds and the flu right now, and this brutal schedule doesn't help. Hopefully they will be back to optimum health by sections."

East and West Section 8AA team tournament matches will be held Feb. 8 at Hibbing and Detroit Lakes, respectively. Qualifiers will move on to the four-team Section 8AA semifinal/championship bracket Feb. 11 at Cass Lake.

Section 8AA individual tournament will be Feb. 18-19 at Fosston.

Halftime lead holds up in NCTC victory

Northland gave up just three first half field goals and a 39-16 lead at intermission carried the Pioneers past Hibbing 79-51 in Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball Saturday.

While the Northland defense was shutting down the Hibbing offense, the Pioneers put together their highest Northern Division point total of the year behind a 28-point afternoon by Chelsey Fering and a 19-point, 14-round double-double by Kamae Larson. Alisa Costin, Shannon Olson and Tara Blazejewski scored 9 points each for the winners, who improved to 11-8 overall and 4-2 in league play.

Lacey Clark had a 21-point game for the host Cardinals, with 20 of those come in the second half.

Northland was 28-for-65 from the field (43 percent) and 15-for-23 at the free throw line. Hibbing went 17-for-60 from the floor (28 percent) and 13-for-23 at the line.

Rebounds were even at 36-apiece. Hibbing topped the turnover figures 24-19.

"We played a nice game," said Northland coach Missy Majerus. "Any win this time of the year is nice, especially on the road."

The Pioneers begin their second swing through the Northern Division tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. against Mesabi Range. Vermilion will be in Thief River Falls Friday.

Itasca started the week as the Northern Division leader at 6-0, while Northland and Rainy River shared second place at 4-2 and Mesabi Range was a game behind in fourth.

"These are some very important games coming up," confirmed Majerus.

Nuggets impress in 56-25 win over TRF

A new foe left quite a first impression on Thief River Falls when Hawley registered a 56-25 Tuesday (Jan. 25) girls high school basketball win over the visiting Prowlers.

"Hawley has a very nice ball club," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "They put on a clinic on how to run an offense. They moved the ball around and looked for quality shots. They also played very aggressive defense. They have tremendous balance. The only thing they are missing is a big post player. But they spread the offense and shoot so well; it really doesn't affect them."

The Nuggets led at the quarters 20-27, 32-14 and 43-23.

Three Hawley scorers hit double figures, led by Katie Walden with 14 points. Thief River Falls did not have a double figure scorer.

Thief River Falls shot just 26 percent from the field (11/43). Hawley shot 45 percent (21/47). The Prowlers went to the free throw line twice, and missed both shots. The Nuggets had a 10-for-12 free throw game.

"I think we could have done a better job on offense," acknowledged Loe. "I think we still were still feeling the effects of the Roseau loss (51-43) the night before."

Fourth quarter rally lifts Vikings by TRF JV girls

Pelican Rapids overcame 38-20 third quarter deficit to beat Thief River Falls 40-43 Saturday in girls junior varsity high school basketball.

The Prowlers turned an 8-8 first quarter tie into a 23-14 halftime lead.

Mandy Thompson scored 13 points and Hannah Kainz had 9 for the Prowlers, while Dora Minney contributed 4 assists and 6 steals.

Grygla-Gatzke beats MCC 75-60...

Eagles start, finish strong vs. Nordics

Grygla-Gatzke started and finished strong for a 75-60 boys high school basketball win over visiting Marshall County Central Friday.

The Eagles led 22-13 at the end of the first quarter and maintained a 37-25 spread at halftime. After trailing by as many as 14, the Nordics pulled within a single point late in the third quarter, but gave up the final two baskets before the horn, and then lost ground over the final eight minutes.

"We got off to a good start," pointed out Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "They made that run at us in the third quarter, but we made some plays in the fourth quarter. We did a real good job running our offense when we had the lead."

Andrew Holte scored 21 points, Tomas Loberg 17 and Geoffrey Satre 11 as the Eagles won their 11th straight game and pushed their record to 15-1.

Dustin Monsebroten and Jay Maurstad scored 29 and 18 points, respectively, for the 9-5 Nordics, who lost to the Eagles a second time this winter.

Grygla-Gatzke had a 50 percent shooting night from the field (26/52) and cashed in on 18 of 26 free throw opportunities. Marshall County Central shot 47 percent from the floor (22/47) and had a quieter 5-for-10 free throw game. The Eagles out-rounded the Nordics 36-16. There were only 17 turnovers in the game – nine by Nordics, eight by the Eagles.

Low turnover figure aids Huskies

High turnover figures have plagued Goodridge throughout the 2004-05 boys high school basketball season. As the ball-handling mistakes mounted so did the losses. Friday, the Huskies turned it over a season-low 12 times and came up with a 51-45 win at Red Lake Falls.

It finished a busy week for the Huskies, who lost a 54-52 Tuesday game to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart when Mike Phaneuf hit a basket with six seconds left and fell to Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 63-36 Thursday after trailing 28-8 at the half.

"This was better," offered Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson, whose team is 3-10. "It might not have been a beautiful game to watch, but at least it was a win."

The Huskies led at the quarters 12-9, 22-17 and 36-33. The Eagles caught them at 38-38 early in the fourth quarter, but Nick Mickelson scored nine of his 13 points in the final eight minutes to seal the victory.

Cole Dahlen led the Huskies with 17 points. Ben Pahlen and Pat Leines scored 16 and 15 points, respectively, for Red Lake Falls.

The Huskies shot 41 percent from the field (22/54); the Eagles shot 42 percent (19/45). Goodridge went 7-for-14 at the free throw line, were Red Lake Falls was 5-for-12. Rebounds were even at 26-apiece. The Eagles turned it over 14 times.

Free throws ice Mustangs' win

Red Lake County Central went 15-for-19 at the free throw line in the fourth quarter to wrap up a 52-35 Friday girls high school basketball win over host Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

The Mustangs led 10-6 after one quarter, fell behind 16-14 at halftime, went ahead 26-20 in the third quarter, then doubled their offensive output over the final eight minutes.

"That's the best we've played so far," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koisito, whose team won for the eighth time in 18 starts. "We beat somebody who was pretty decent."

Courtney Halvorson completed a double-double for the winners with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Brittany Gustafson added 13 points to the Mustangs' offense. Katie Schmidt led the Ponies with 12 points.

Red Lake County Central shot only 33 percent from the field (13/40), but had a productive 25-for-33 free throw night. Warren-Alvarado-Oslo had an even tougher shooting night with a 24 percent 15-for-63 showing. The Ponies were 5-for-7 at the line.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo out-rebounded Red Lake County Central 41-25, but the Ponies also had more turnovers, 18-12.

Detroit Lakes girls post 5-3 win

Thief River Falls scored first and carried a 2-1 lead into the third period, but the Prowlers wound up losing a 5-3 girls high school hockey match-up with visiting Detroit Lakes Thursday to close out a 2-16-1 regular season.

McKenzie Kayser provided the Prowlers a 1-0 first period lead and Chasity Johnson gave them the one-goal edge at the second intermission.

Detroit Lakes tied it and went ahead on back-to-back third period goals by Ali Johnson and Hanna Grinaker at 9:18 and 9:39, respectively.

In their final four games the Prowlers tied Lake of the Woods 1-1, beat Eveleth-Gilbert 4-2 and lost to International Falls 3-2 on a goal in the final seconds before falling to the Lakers.

Kimbrough scores 44, Gators go 18-0

Minus two starters, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River relied on a 44-point night by Kierah Kimbrough for a 72-42 Thursday girls high school basketball win at Roseau.

Kaley Mekash, who suffered an ankle injury the previous week, was joined on the sidelines by Missy Bruggeman, out indefinitely due to mononucleosis.

"It's not what you want this time of the year," said Gators coach Tom Neibauer as he addressed his roster situation. "We'll take a 30-point win on the road without Kaley and Missy. Kierah played well. Forty-four is a good night."

Kimbrough completed a double-double with 12 rebounds. Lynsey Roppe dished out 10 assists.

The 18-0 Gators, who remain ranked No. 3 in Class A, led at the quarters 17-5, 38-18 and 55-30.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River shot 50 percent from the field (28/56) and went 16-for-23 at the free throw line, where Roseau was 8-for-16.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke fell behind 14-2 in the first quarter and never recovered, losing a 54-42 girls high school basketball game to Clearbrook-Gonvick Thursday.

The Bears were up 23-17 at halftime and had a 38-30 third quarter advantage.

Knights edge Mustangs

Climax/Fisher built an 11-point first quarter lead and held on for a 41-39 girls high school basketball win over Red Lake County Central Monday at Oklee.

The Knights led 19-8 after eight minutes, maintained a 26-15 halftime margin and started the fourth quarter with a 32-30 edge.

Red Lake County Central went ahead briefly down the stretch at 37-36, but couldn't finish the comeback and fell to 8-11 for the year.

Trailing 41-39, the Mustangs forced a Climax/Fisher turnover with nine seconds remaining, but promptly gave the ball right back to take away the possibility of a final shot opportunity.

"We got a little too far behind in the first quarter," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "They came out ready to play, and I guess we weren't. We played a good second half."

Red Lake County Central was 15-for-42 from the field (36 percent) and 5-for-9 at the free-throw line. Climax/Fisher went 17-for-39 from the floor (44 percent) and 5-for-6 at the line. The Knights finished with a 24-19 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 17-15.

TRF boys win at East Grand Forks...

Prowlers pick up a key 4-1 victory

Two weeks away from the start of Section 8A boys high school hockey tournament play, Warroad has a lock on the top seed. The real competition is for the second or third spot – a slot that would put you in the post-season bracket opposite the two-time defending champions.

Thief River Falls' bid for a second or third seed took a hit Saturday in a 2-0 loss at Lake of the Woods. Monday, the Prowlers were back in the picture after picking up a 4-1 win at East Grand Forks – a make-up game from a Jan. 18 weather-forced postponement.

"This was a big-time win for us," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "It was a great effort on our part. We've got a lot of kids who are sick right now, but they sucked it up and played a pretty good hockey game."

Alec Holen scored two goals and added an assist for the Prowlers, while Michael Forney had a one-goal, three-assist night.

Forney scored at 8:45 of the first period, and less that two minutes later Holen made it 2-0.

Holen scored again at 2:45 of the second period and, Corey Horien provided the Prowlers with a four-goal cushion 1:40 into the third period.

Thief River Falls goalie Lance Klaven lost his shutout bid when Riley Gregoire put the Green Wave on the board at 15:34.

It was the start of a busy stretch of games for the 11-7-1 Prowlers that included home games Tuesday (Feb. 1) vs. Bemidji and Thursday against Roseau, along with a road trip Saturday to Detroit Lakes.

Three more home games the following week will close out the Prowlers' 2004-05 regular season schedule as they face Grafton-Park River (N.D.) in a Monday, Feb. 7, make-up game; meet East Grand Forks in a Tuesday, Feb. 8 rematch; and finish with Fergus Falls Friday, Feb. 11.

Section 8A tournament starts with Tuesday, Feb. 15, first round games matching teams seeded 7-through-10 – two games at the home sites of the higher seeds.

The tournament quarterfinals, semifinals and championship game will be played at the Ralph Engelstad Arena in Thief River Falls.

Quarterfinals doubleheaders will be played Thursday, Feb. 17 (1 vs. 8 or 9; 4 vs. 5) and Friday, Feb. 18 (3 vs. 6; 2 vs. 7 or 10).

Single semifinal games will be played Saturday, Feb. 19 (Thursday winners) and Monday, Feb. 21 (Friday winners).

Championship game is scheduled Thursday, Feb. 24.

Tournament pairings will be announced following the Section 8A seeding meeting that will take place Wednesday, Feb. 9.

Mike Dowers selected Player of the Week by MIAC hockey coaches

Mike Dowers of Thief River Falls, a freshman goalie on the Concordia College men's hockey team, was named Player of the Week in the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference today.

Dowers, who came to the Cobbers from the Helena Bighorns of the North American Hockey League, earned the honors after stopping 64 of 67 shots he faced in a 4-1, 4-2 Concordia weekend sweep against Hamline.

"The wins pulled the Cobbers within two points of the fifth and final spot in the MIAC playoff race. Concordia is 3-5-0 in league play, 4-12-1 overall.

Dowers has been in the nets for 11 of those 17 games. He has a 3.03 goals-against average and a .900 save percentage.

Brett Johnson is another Thief River Falls graduate currently playing for the Cobbers. The junior defenseman had 3 goals and 3 assists.

DNR Question of Week

Q: When is a good time to start planning your lakeshore restoration project and what should a property owner know when planning?

A: Winter is a great time to start envisioning and planning a new lakeshore. The first step in any restoration project is to design a master site plan for the entire property. This includes figuring out the types of plants that can be used and are best suited to the conditions of the your site. The easiest way to figure out which plants will work is to look at the native plants that are growing in the water and along the shoreline of undisturbed property on your lake or river.

- John Hiebert, DNR Shoreland Habitat Coordinator.

DNR simplifies Beltrami maps

In an effort to better explain its proposal to designate routes for specific motorized uses in the Beltrami Island State Forest, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has simplified maps of the proposed routes. The maps are available for the public on the Department's Web site and were distributed to public libraries and area DNR offices in the northwest region Jan. 25.

The 2003 legislation directed the DNR to designate forest roads and trails that would be open to motorized uses and to change the Beltrami Island State Forest classification from "Managed" to either "Closed" or "Limited." Leaving the forest classified as "Managed" was not a legal option.

The new designation would mean that forest trails would be closed to motor vehicle use unless posted open. Forest roads (both maintained system roads and minimum maintenance roads) would be open to both highway-licensed vehicles and all three types of off-highway vehicles (OHVs) unless they are specifically posted closed. OHVs include all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), off-highway motorcycles (OHMs) and off-road vehicles (ORVs), such as four-wheel-drive Jeeps and trucks.

As a result of the proposed "Limited" forest reclassification, OHV riders would have access to the forest on managed and maintained routes, according to Mary Broten, Thief River Falls area Trails and Waterways supervisor. "By reclassifying the forest in this way, we will be able to provide more than 530 miles of riding opportunities for OHVs on state lands in the forest," said Broten.

"The designation process is going to make it easier for all OHV riders to determine which trails are legal for riding. So, I encourage people to take a look at the new maps and write in with their suggestions for additional trails that should or should not be open to motorized use by Feb. 28, 2005."

Much of the public concern so far has been about whether or not the proposed designation plans will limit access to some parts of the forest, according to Larry Long, Warroad area Forestry supervisor. He said the DNR has been listening to public input with interest. "I think if people look at the improved maps of the proposed routes, they'll see that much of the non-wetland areas of the forest have motorized access. We want the public's comments as we develop, revise and finalize the plan."

"For the most part, the routes the planning team has proposed closing to OHV use either dead-ended on non-state lands or wildlife management areas, went through wetlands or posed environmental concerns," said Long. "We also recommended closing some of the short spurs that accessed forest lands that had other motorized routes available to them."

The DNR will hold a public meeting on Thursday, Feb. 17, at the Warroad High School from 6 to 9 p.m.

"What we have here is a working draft of the plan-a place to start managing the many forest uses better," said DNR Northwest Regional Director Paul Swenson. "I've asked that our DNR staff come to the public meeting ready to listen to public recommendations with an open mind and an eye toward making the plan the best possible one for Beltrami Island forest users and the resources."

Copies of the proposals, road and trail designation plans and all of the related maps are available on the DNR Web site at: www.dnr.state.mn.us/input/mgmtplans/ohv/designation/status.html.

The DNR is encouraging public comments on the proposals until 4:30 p.m. Feb. 28. Written public comments should be directed to Helen Cozzetto, DNR Natural Resources Planner, 6603 Bemidji Avenue N, Bemidji, MN 56601; helen.cozzetto@dnr.state.mn.us; fax: 218-755-4063.

Copies of proposals and maps available at the public library's in Baudette, Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Roseau, Thief River Falls and Warroad.

Those copies are also available at DNR offices located in Baudette, Bemidji, Grygla, Red Lake Wildlife Management Area, Thief River Falls, Wannaska and Warroad.

DNR issues reminder saying snowmobilers should stay on trails

An abundance of snow has snowmobilers out in large numbers across Minnesota. In some instances, they are out in places they should not be, say officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"Complaints of snowmobilers not staying on designated trails has been high," said Conservation Officer Mike Shelden of Alexandria. "Due to the use of private property for grant-in-aid trails, snowmobilers are reminded to stay on designated state and local trails."

Conservation Officer Brad Schultz of Center City noted that trail riding behavior is the worst he has seen in years. "Some riders apparently feel the inalienable right to ride helter-skelter in fields and other open areas bordering designated trails," he observed. "Landowner patience wears thin after this type of behavior."

DNR conservation officers say this type of behavior could result in citations being issued for trespassing or, even worse, landowners closing trails to all snowmobile operators. Landowner permission is required before an operator can ride a snowmobile on agricultural land, even when it is covered with snow.

"Perhaps if the day comes when ditch riding is all snowmobilers have available, they will begin to understand that driving a snowmobile through every fresh snowfield next to a trail is not going to cut it," Schultz said. "We can't say it enough: Stay on the trails!"

To legally ride a snowmobile, residents born after Dec. 31, 1976, need a valid snowmobile safety certificate. Anyone under 18 years old must wear an approved helmet. A snowmobile safety CD-ROM is available for those 16 or older.

"People can review the information at home, fill out the exam, and send it in," Shelden noted.

For a copy of the CD-ROM or the 2004-2005 Minnesota Snowmobile Safety Laws, Rules & Regulations handbook, call the DNR Information Center toll free 1-888-646-6367.

Mattracks ships new models to national parks

Mattracks has announced the addition of the Model 200 Series truck tracks to its rubber track conversions line-up. The first two production sets have been shipped to Antarctica and were installed and are currently in use on firefighting units. Mattracks shipped another 200 Series set to a fire fighting unit for Yellowstone National Park Service. The Park Service will be using the unit during winter months when the park is closed to regular, tire-equipped vehicles.

Should we consider a new university in Rochester?

In his state of the state address delivered recently in Rochester, Gov. Tim Pawlenty outlined his priorities. Many of these priorities were probably acceptable to a vast majority of citizens, and perhaps they were designed to be just that, but there is one priority that probably has a lot of people in higher education scratching their heads and wondering - what was he thinking?

For the past several years, education has suffered mightily at the hands of the no new tax pledge and budget deficits. Resources dried up or were re-directed, and predictably, Minnesota's ranking among states supporting education slipped. That's a frustrating experience for all educators. In an effort to stop the slide and bolster bottom lines, record numbers of public schools have asked citizens to support referendums to increase their taxes. For the most part, citizens have agreed, even though the Legislature committed the state of Minnesota to financially support education in Minnesota a few years ago. Really, it wasn't so long ago that the state said that it would pay for education.

It hasn't been uncommon, either, to hear reports of colleges cutting millions from their budgets, or to hear reports that college students have seen double-digit tuition increases. In fact, letters have been written to this newspaper about that very subject.

So, at a time when existing educational institutions are scrapping for every dollar, and tuition is skyrocketing, is it responsible to call for the construction of a new university? You heard that right - a new university - in Rochester, which already has a university. According to its mission: "The University of Minnesota, Rochester, through a partnership with the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities, extends upper division undergraduate and post-baccalaureate degree programs to people in southeastern Minnesota."

But in his state of the state, Pawlenty's priorities included, "Bringing focus and innovation to higher education by creating a university in Rochester, allowing Winona State University to create a center of excellence and directing more higher education funding to students rather than institutions."

If there isn't enough money to supply higher education's needs now, how could we support a new university in Rochester? Is the governor planning to eliminate one or more colleges? If so, where and how soon? We've heard a lot of rumors about private enterprise and assistance from Mayo Clinic, is there any substance to the rumors? If not, how does he plan to pay for it?

There are too many questions about this proposal. There needs to be more debate and discussion about it before it passes muster. At this point, his priorities should be to address the problems that led to the budget deficit rather than to add to the problem.

Slip sliding our way through a mid-winter warm-up

You might be a Minnesotan if you think there's nothing strange about wearing a parka and a pair of shorts on the same day.

One nice thing about the recent weather is the higher temperatures. This "better than average" January weather has allowed residents to get outside and seek a cure for their cabin fever. During this much needed break from our typical January weather, some have taken the opportunity to go snowmobiling, cross-country skiing, or ice skating. Others have taken this as an opportunity to remove ice from sidewalks. Regardless, it's just plain nice to get outside without fearing frostbite.

The bad, however, is that this thaw has created some slippery conditions on roads. Worst of all, the ice is so clear that it's hardly noticeable on dark roads. Residents shouldn't allow themselves to be lured into believing that winter is over or that roads are safe to speed on. Winter is far from over, and roads are slippery. As all residents of northwest Minnesota know, a slippery road can put an end to any joy one might experience from this temporary warm up.

Pat Anderson: Local units of government must cooperate to improve service

by State Auditor Pat Anderson

Public officials at the state and local levels consistently face a difficult challenge. They must find ways to provide services the public desires at a cost the public can afford. This challenge is especially difficult in tight budget times like the ones we are currently experiencing. In tough times, the need for services remains the same while thrifty spending becomes even more crucial. In order to remain successful, state and local officials in Minnesota have to find a way to do more with the resources available.

Many local governments around the state have found a way to maximize the use of taxpayer dollars through cooperating with other entities. In order to encourage and promote this idea, my office recently released a best practices review of cooperative efforts among local governments.

The review highlights several successful examples of local government cooperation and points out those elements that led to the cooperative venture's success.

Completing such a review required that we closely examine local government cooperation in Minnesota. In doing so, I was impressed with the level of cooperation, the innovative nature of many cooperative arrangements, and the tangible benefits attained through cooperative arrangements.

The highlighted examples ranged from a school district/city library in Comfrey to a joint ambulance service provided by the cities of Apple Valley, Lakeville and Farmington to the sharing of administrative and other services between several school districts in Watonwan County. In addition to many specific cooperative programs, the report highlighted an organization - the Scott County Association for Leadership and Efficiency (SCALE) - that was formed with the express purpose of identifying opportunities for cooperation.

SCALE consists of representatives from Scott County; the cities, townships and school districts within the county; as well as the local Mdewakanton Sioux Community. The members of SCALE meet monthly to discuss ways the entities could provide collaborative services, share resources, or coordinate planning. In a short period of time, the arrangement has already fostered several successful cooperative efforts. The SCALE group and all of the other highlighted examples demonstrated a willingness on the part of elected officials to put in extra effort to make the use of taxpayer dollars more cost-effective.

Despite the widespread success of existing cooperative efforts, there are still significant opportunities for local governments to provide more services, improve their current service or lower costs through further cooperation. Significant opportunities exist because of the high number of local governments in Minnesota. Minnesota has 3,400 units of government within its boundaries. That ranks us seventh highest in the number of local governments nationwide.

A multitude of local governments ensures a high degree of local control and citizen representation, but it can also lead to unnecessary duplication of service. In cooperative efforts, the local control remains, but the duplication of service is replaced with a more streamlined approach. For such agreements to occur, however, elected officials and staff must be willing to be innovative and try something new.

Citizens can do their part to promote cooperation by encouraging their locally elected officials to discuss opportunities for cooperation with officials from other entities. Once initial discussions have taken place, citizens should urge their elected officials to pursue cooperative arrangements that will improve service and efficiency. Interested citizens can access a list of cooperative efforts already implemented by their local governments via an interactive clearinghouse of cooperative agreements at the state auditor's Web site.

I believe that more and more citizens realize that the borders that separate local governments from each other are becoming increasingly superficial. No matter their size, our cities, counties, townships and school districts serve many of the same citizens and deal with many of the same issues. If local governments address these issues together, Minnesotans can receive more, improved services with a lower overall tax bill.

In good times and in bad, tax dollars are a limited, valuable resource. Cooperation among government units has proven itself as a great way to maximize this resource. With the work of local officials and the encouragement of citizens, I look forward to seeing more successful cooperation among local governments in the years to come.

Rep. Brita Sailer: Town meetings help build budgets that work for all of us

by Rep. Brita Sailer

Over the past few weekends, I've been traveling around the area with State Sen. Rod Skoe and State Rep. Kent Eken of District 2A to talk with residents about what's going on at the State Capitol. I've been encouraged by the turnout, and I'd like to thank everyone who attended one of the meetings. I truly value all the input I've received and appreciate your involvement in the legislative process.

So far, most of the talk has been about the impact of cuts in the current state budget, particularly when it comes to health care, senior programs and education. It's pretty clear that those cuts had unintended consequences.

Take the cuts to senior programs like Meals on Wheels or Foster Grandparents. To save $5.5 million during the last budget cycle, the governor cut funding for Meals on Wheels, a program that remains a lifeline to many seniors. The program is staffed mainly by volunteers from church and community groups, and they provide fragile seniors with more than just a hot meal. In many cases they are the sole contact that many of these seniors have on any given day, and they help monitor the health and wellbeing of the people they serve. Even before the cuts were enacted, the program was already struggling to meet a growing demand. Without the state funding to Meals on Wheels and the Senior Nutritional Program (which provides meals at senior centers), an estimated 759,000 fewer meals were provided to seniors in the state.

Most of those seniors were then forced to rely on more expensive nursing home or assisted living programs for care. There's little doubt that shift has cost us more in the long run.

The same is true for community programs like the Foster-Grandparent program. Those programs provide seniors with a modest stipend for providing help to some of the more vulnerable members of our communities. The stipend averages out to a little more than a couple of bucks an hour for most seniors, but even that modest amount can mean a lot to someone on a fixed income. The volunteer work these stipends leverage, however, is significant and helps our already strapped schools and social service agencies stretch their own dollars. These kind of discussions are important now that the budget has begun in earnest because they go to the heart of what we're trying to accomplish. Everyone involved in the budget debate understands that cuts are necessary. The thing is, I think when most of us talk about cuts, we think of eliminating layers of bureaucracy, improving the way we deliver state services or eliminating waste.

These cuts to senior programs don't do that. Instead, they've eliminated efficiency and contributed to the deficit we face today. They've also hurt a lot vulnerable seniors. It's my hope that this year's budget solution avoids those kind of cuts.

Over the course of the legislative session, Skoe, Eken and I will continue to host meetings in the district, and I hope you get a chance to attend. This is a unique chance for area residents to share their concerns with us, and it also helps us identify creative, and community-based decisions to our budget challenges.

For more information on the meetings, you can contact me at (651) 296-4265, toll free at (800) 920-5867, 327 State Office Building, 100 Martin Luther King Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55155 or via e-mail at rep.brita.sailer@house.mn.

Our welfare money is going up in smoke

by Rep. Marty Seifert
District 21A

Being "on welfare" is described in Webster's dictionary as "receiving assistance from the government because of poverty or disability." this is not a dilemma anyone would wish for. If you are impoverished or are unable to work, you are obviously struggling to make ends meet and are depending on the government to assist you with some basic human needs: food, shelter and clothing.

I believe government welfare programs were established to help those less fortunate become productive and healthier citizens. Today, we are seeing an abuse of our health and welfare system. I heard a report recently that 20 to 40 percent of public welfare recipients may be tobacco users. Where are they getting the money to pay for this? Minnesota taxpayers.

What is even more unbelievable are the complaints many health providers hear from government assistance recipients who say they don't have enough money to provide for their families, yet have no problem spending hundreds or thousands of dollars each year on cigarettes.

Remember, we are talking about health programs here. How is subsidizing a pack-a-day smoker who subjects his or her family to the dangers of cigarette smoke improving the health climate in our state? It's a double-edged sword: We're giving the nicotine-addicted welfare recipient money to feed his or her habit, and then we're paying health care costs for their smoking-related illnesses.

Plain and simple, smoking is a detriment of the public's health and welfare. Because of this, I am proposing a new social contract for recipients of public health and welfare programs: The state will refer you to a current help-line to help you stop smoking. If welfare recipients are not interested in this, then there is another choice: stop smoking or face increased premiums, copays or possible economic sanctions from the state government.

It is hard for me to understand how someone who is a pack-a-day smoker and who spends at least $1,200 per year on such a bad habit can expect taxpayer subsidies. The good people of Minnesota deserve more for their tax dollars. It is a farce to expect them to see their money squandered on bad habits that contribute more costs to the health care system. As uncomfortable as this proposal is for defenders of the status quo welfare state, I think this legislation is worth discussing. If one welfare recipient stops smoking or refrains from starting due to hearing about this proposed legislation, it's worth it.

Our welfare health care system is so out of control that if it continues to grow at current rates, it will consume almost all of the state's budget within 15 years. In other words, income tax revenues would have to double every eight years to pay for health and welfare programs at this pace. Is it that unrealistic for taxpayers to expect some accountability for their tax dollar?

Ending the subsidies for those who smoke away their welfare funding seems like a good place to start.

Rep. Marty Seifert (R-Marshall) is the House Majority Whip. He is serving his fifth term in the Minnesota House of Representatives.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

ST. HILAIRE, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA FEBRUARY 4, 1905

News Items

"If you don't want your thermometer to freeze up, you'd better take it in the house these days.

"Township 153, Range 42, on the reservation east of Rocksbury is the first to organize and will be known as Big Bend.

"A social dance and supper was given at the St. Hilaire Hotel last Saturday night and was enjoyed by a good-sized crowd.

"If the groundhog came out of his hole last Thursday he not only saw his shadow, but froze his toes and ears as well and it will take him fully six weeks to get over it.

"Manager Pettibone and James Foss had a hurry-up call very early Monday morning. The water pipes at the planer started to freeze and they had to run out at one o'clock with a crew of men.

"While the present winter was a little backward about asserting itself, it has at last got down to business and is making a record. We are not the only ones, however, as the whole country is experiencing very cold weather.

"George L. Austin, the new buttermaker, has taken charge at the creamery and takes to the work like an old hand. Mr. Austin ran the creamery at Red Lake Falls last year and comes here with good recommendations.

"Someone slipped a charge of dynamite into the big artesian well at Crookston which was to supply that city with pure water. Several thousand dollars worth of damage resulted and it will go hard with the parties who did it, if they are caught.

"A petition was circulated last week asking the trustees of School District No. 102 to organize it into an independent school district. The trustees have the matter under advisement and will probably call an election for the near future. The state superintendent has been written to in regard to whether the change will effect the special law which gives one half of the liquor license receipts of the village to the school district. If this is not changed it is very probable we will change to an independent district."

Injunction Denied

"The hearing on the application for a permanent injunction restraining the county officials from buying the court house was heard by Judge Watts Tuesday evening, Ira C. Richardson and H. W. Lee, representing Thief River Falls and Charles E. Boughton and County Attorney Germo presenting the Red Lake Falls side of the question. The Judge held that there was not sufficient evidence offered to grant an injunction. It is reported that Thief River Falls parties will bring the matter up in a different way."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER FEBRUARY 2, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Election Called

Matter of Issuing $28,000 Worth of Bonds to Be Voted Upon

"At the meeting of the city council held Monday night the matter of calling a special election to vote upon the proposition of the city issuing $28,000.00 in bonds to contract a system of water works and sewerage was attended to. The election is called for February 27 and polling places have been designated as follows: First ward, the basement of the Evenson block; Second ward, city hall; Third ward, Rayson's store. The bonds are to draw 4 1/2 per cent interest.

"There is little if any opposition to the issue, although it is said that people living in some parts of the city that will not be benefitted by the water works or sewerage will vote against the issue. It will be impossible to extend the water and sewer mains to all parts of the city the first year, but this can be accomplished later."

Big Bend Organized

"Some fifty settlers in Township 153, Range 42, voted to organize Big Bend township. This is the first town of the eleven townships to organize but at the next meeting of the county board petitions from a number of other towns will be presented."

The Injunction Proceedings

"The matter of securing the injunction restraining the county officials from paying for the court house was denied Tuesday night. This was to be expected. In fact, as the money for the court house has already been paid out, there is no need of any injunction and it would not be of any effect if granted.

"The case will now come up before the court sometime within the next twenty days to test the legality of the contract and, if it is found void, the officials of Red Lake county will be held responsible in the matter and their bondsman made to pay for the illegal act.

"While there was some criticism of the action of Chairman Johnson in signing the warrant which was for the purchase of the court house and of Treasurer Hansen in paying the same, we are glad to say that there is no foundation for this. The legal limit had expired and Chairman Johnson had no other alternative in the matter. Treasurer Hansen refused to pay the warrant until the county attorney ruled that it was legal. This does not make Treasurer Hansen in any way responsible as the law provides that when the county treasurer follows the advice of the county attorney it relieves him of all responsibility in the matter and had he failed to follow the advice of the county attorney, he would have been personally liable for damages for refusing to pay the warrant."

Contest Is Settled

Council Elects D. B. Bakke and City Now Has a Mayor

"The Minnesota supreme court last week handed down a decision sustaining Judge Grindeland in the Richardson-Kratka election contest case and declared that Ira C. Richardson was elected mayor of this city in November 1902. While the case has been in the courts for some time about the only question involved was the one of paying the costs of the proceedings in the matter. Mr. Richardson took the oath of office after the decision of Judge Grindeland was rendered and at once resigned. Louis Hanson was appointed in his place and about two months ago he too resigned and M. C. Harlow, president of the council, has been acting mayor.

"At the meeting of the council Monday evening, D. B. Bakke was elected to the office of mayor on the third ballot. On the first two ballots, S. T. Johnson received two votes and C. M. Evenson one vote. On the third ballot, there were three votes for Mr. Bakke and two for Mr. Johnson. The new mayor is a member of the city council and will have to resign his position as a member of that body. This will have to be filled by the council at the next meeting.

"Alderman Higgins, who has taken a claim on the eleven townships, will soon resign from the council also."

Thief River Falls Fire Department Disbands

"The members of the Thief River Falls Fire Department have announced that they will disband the first of March, having served notice to that effect. The reason assigned is that the council has refused to turn over the money secured from the state to their relief association and they also have other grievances against the council. It is hoped that the matters can be adjusted and pleasant relations maintained between the two bodies. The local fire department as a body is an exceptionally good one and it would be hard to organize another department that would prove as efficient."

Town Meeting

Sen. Stumpf hosts town hall meeting Saturday

Seven people attended a town hall meeting Saturday hosted by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Plummer and sitting on the right) at the Thief River Falls City Hall. The meeting, which Rep. Bernie Lieder (DFL-Crookston) also attended, was held to discuss Gov. Tim Pawlenty's budget proposal and other legislative issues.

Crime, city funding, education and senior programs were the focus of a Saturday town hall meeting hosted by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Plummer).

The meeting was held at the Thief River Falls City Hall. Seven people attended the meeting, including, among others, Rep. Bernie Lieder (DFL-Crookston), Thief River Falls City Council member Harriet Worker and Thief River Falls City Administrator Jodie Torkelson. Lieder joined Stumpf at other town hall meetings throughout the region. The meetings were held to discuss Gov. Tim Pawlenty's budget proposal and other legislative issues.

Crime

Recalling similar meetings in Oklee and Warren, Stumpf said citizens and law enforcement were concerned about the growing number of drug users, including those using methamphetamine. He noted drug usage, especially the usage of meth, is leading to full jails and prisons.

"There doesn't seem to be an answer," said Stumpf. "This is a challenge to everybody."

Some attendees voiced their beliefs that youth/after-school programs may lead some people away from committing crimes.

Saying money for meth lab cleanup is coming from somewhere, Worker noted that legislators need to weigh that cost against funding youth programs for communities. Legislators are "bankrupting rural communities" for methamphetamine lab cleanup, she said.

Stumpf pointed to a successful after-school program in Duluth. The program contributed to a dramatic decline in crime in one area of that city, Stumpf said.

The governor is focusing on more meth and sex offender programs and should be focusing on youth programs, Lieder said.

City funding

Agreeing with Lieder, Worker said there needed to be after-school programs. She suggested a youth program at the Old Arena, but she noted the city didn't have funding for such a program and there would be probably opposition to it as well.

Worker added that there was opposition to turning off mid-block city streetlights even though the city had to make some cuts. That money is "saving $24,000 a year in our city budget," she said. Remarking that she hated to say it, she noted that $24,000 will be used to help clean the streets.

Raising the property tax levy wouldn't necessarily raise that amount. A one-percent property tax levy increase nets $17,000 in Thief River Falls, Torkelson said. (In December 2004, the city passed a 1.5 percent property tax levy increase for 2005.)

Across Minnesota, under Pawlenty's proposal, Stumpf said that residential property taxes would go up about 10 percent. He noted the only statewide decline would be business tax.

The portion of property owners' taxes for school districts would go up 23 percent under Pawlenty's proposal, Lieder said.

Regarding the city, Torkelson said that the city is fortunate because some communities are deferring maintenance. "The town is not dying. It's growing," said Torkelson, referring to Digi-Key, Arctic Cat and other prosperous companies.

Yet, citing needs for infrastructure at the airport and a decrease in city lots, Worker said, "Five years down the road, I don't know where that's going to come from because you don't have that tax base."

Creating jobs, and having infrastructure such as schools and the airport, will help lure people to this area, Stumpf noted. He recalled talking to younger people who had moved away and visited Thief River Falls for the World Junior Hockey Championship. Many of them wanted to come back to locations similar to the Thief River Falls area to live and raise their families.

"What happens when all these rural communities are bankrupt?" asked Thief River Falls resident Shannon Olson.

Education

By keeping schools open, that potential for bankruptcy may be avoided. "It really hurts a downtown when a school closes," said Stumpf, who used the examples of the cities of Alvarado and Oslo, whose school districts consolidated with Warren.

Stumpf also noted schools are the Five set off on a snowmobile adventure of a lifetime

Let's ride our new sleds home

But it's a 2,300- to 2,500-mile ride

Five adventurers set off on a trip Saturday from Thief River Falls to the East Coast. Four of the five purchased new snowmobiles at RV Sports in Thief River Falls and then decided to ride their snowmobiles home. Home is in Pennsylvania and Maine. Five 40-year-old men from the East Coast are about to take a test - a test of their endurance, a test of their snowmobiles, and quite probably, a test of their friendship. Saturday, the five left on a 2,300- to 2,500-mile snowmobile trip from Thief River Falls to their homes on the East Coast.

One hesitates to call it a "trip." They described it as a "mission," but many might think it lacks purpose and perhaps reason.

Dale Forrester, third-generation owner of Forrester Lincoln-Mercury in Chambersburg, Pa., said planning for this event began last March. "I've always wanted to buy a sled and ride it home," said Forrester.

When it comes to buying a new vehicle or snowmobile, there's riding a sled home, and then there's really riding your sled home. A trip of this length falls in the category of what could be classified as inconceivable, that is, except to close friends.

Friends since they were 18 years of age or younger, all five decided that the trip sounded like a good idea, too. No, they aren't lemmings, but friends have been known to jump off cliffs, too, just because they're friends.

After some searching, they found RV Sports in Thief River Falls. Four of the five then ordered Arctic Cat Snowmobiles - Two Saber Cat 700s, a Saber Cat 600, and a Turbo Cat. The fifth...and there's always one in every crowd...spoiled the Arctic Cat royal flush by buying a Ski-Doo. He had to have it shipped to Arlene Thune of Thief River Falls has been awarded Minnesota Gardener of the Year by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society. This is the second successive year that a member of the Moccasin Garden Club of Thief River Falls has been selected as a recipient of the award

Thune named Minn. Gardener of the Year

Arlene Thune believes you're never too old to enjoy playing in the dirt

Special to The Times

> If I had to give up my gardens, I believe the vegetable garden would be the last to go, she said. I love flowers for their beauty and variety, but I think more people should be raising and eating home-grown vegetables for better health and nourishment.

For the second successive year, Moccasin Garden Club of Thief River Falls has had one of its members selected as a recipient of the Minnesota Gardener of the Year award presented by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society (MSHS). Arlene A. Thune was announced as the winner of the award for 2004 at the annual awards presentation Saturday, Feb. 5, in St. Paul.

Last year, the Moccasin Garden Club was named Club of the Year by the state society and club member Beattie Mickelson received the state Gardener of the Year award.

Because Arlene Thune and her husband Norrie are currently spending some time in Florida, the award was accepted for her at the state awards program by two of her daughters, Jackie and Susie.

"Our club is proud to have its second member selected for this prestigious award," stated Kay Steiger, 2004 Club president. "We are especially pleased that this statewide recognition has now been given to another of our members who also has given extensively and unselfishly of her time and expertise to benefit and beautify her community. Arlene and Beattie are both very deserving of the awards they have received."

Arlene Thune has been a member of the Moccasin Garden Club for 18 years and served as its president for three years, vice president for two years and historian librarian for four years. She has also chaired club committees on youth activities, spring clean-up day at the Falls Day Activity Center flower bed sponsored by the club, and Valley Home floral arrangements provided by club members.

A representative from District 13 to the Minnesota State Horticultural Society from 1998 to 2001, she won the MSHS Outstanding District Service Award in 1997. She has also received the 13th District Gold Medal, Award of Merit, District Gardener of the Year and Outstanding Gardener of the Year awards. She has attended every 13th District spring and fall workshop and exhibited each year at the horticulture shows and Pennington County Fair.

The Thunes are past recipients of the rural Beautification Award presented by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District in recognition of their farmstead beautification. The yard includes numerous flower beds, including a large rose garden and about 200 varieties of hostas, as well as an area for native grasses and flowers. In addition, the Thunes have planted and maintained approximately 70,000 trees of various species.

"While Arlene is well known in our area for her exceptional gardens," Steiger said, "she is admired for her generous sharing of plants, produce and her considerable horticultural knowledge. An enthusiastic mentor, she has encouraged many to begin gardening and to join our club, and is always willing to pass on her knowledge to those with questions or interest."

A master gardener since 1999 and a 4-H Club leader for five years, Arlene has been involved with youth education in a number of areas. She prepared the soil and planted flower beds with children at Challenger Elementary School, helped the children with planting and provided instruction to children on growing plants. She also presented "Soil and Life" programs to 6th-[illegible]

Juvenile has charges pending for fleeing a peace officer

Theft and fleeing a peace officer: On Feb. 4 at 3:59 a.m., police received a report of a theft from Kum & Go. A driver allegedly failed to pay for $15 worth of gasoline. The suspect vehicle was located in the 300 block of Red Lake Blvd. N., and police attempted to initiate a traffic stop north of Long's Bridge. When the officer exited the squad car, the driver allegedly drove away. Police engaged emergency lights and signals for half a mile, and the driver allegedly did not stop. A low-speed pursuit reaching speeds of 10 to 20 miles per hour occurred for approximately three miles. The driver allegedly maneuvered between two squad cars, which were in front and behind his vehicle. The pursuit continued for approximately two miles. At 4:45 a.m., police terminated the pursuit. A sheriff's deputy and the State Patrol continued the pursuit into Marshall County. They were assisted by the Marshall County Sheriff's Department. Stop sticks were placed on the roadway, but the driver turned a mile before the stop sticks. A state trooper attempted to pull over the vehicle. The driver turned south onto an unplowed narrow gravel road, and the vehicle got stuck. The trooper initiated a felony traffic stop in which a gun is drawn. The suspect was apprehended without incident. A 17-year-old Middle River male has charges pending for theft and fleeing a peace officer.

According to the report, it appeared the driver walked toward Greendale Manor. Police then found two men walking toward the vehicle. Upon seeing police, the two allegedly ran. A foot chase ensued, and the two people were caught. The report stated one of the people told officers he was not in the vehicle at the time of the alleged theft. He allegedly told officers he ran from them because he was scared. The report further indicated he also said he was merely going to help push the vehicle out of the snowbank. # TRF man pleads guilty to sex charges, other charges

Nicholas Aune

A Thief River Falls man pled guilty Thursday to a felony sex charge and a felony possession of stolen property charge, according to Assistant Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla.

Nicholas Donald Aune, 27, pled guilty to third degree criminal sexual conduct as well as possession of stolen property.

In addition to those felony offenses, Aune pled guilty to gross misdemeanor offenses of invasion of privacy and fifth degree criminal sexual conduct. In a plea agreement, charges of disorderly conduct and trespassing were dismissed according to Rogalla.

A sentencing date has not yet been set, Rogalla said. Pre-sentence investigations and a sex offender evaluation have been ordered.

The third degree criminal sexual conduct charge stems from an incident in November 2003, according to the criminal complaint. At that time, Aune allegedly inappropriately touched and had sexual intercourse with a female under the age of 16 at C'Mon Inn. That charge was filed after an investigation into other unrelated charges.

The fifth degree criminal sexual conduct charge stems from a Dec. 27 incident at the Best Western Lounge. Aune allegedly touched a woman's buttocks underneath her clothing. That incident was reported while police were investigating other charges against Aune.

The interference with privacy charge stems from an incident in the 2000 block of Greenwood St. E. Aune allegedly knocked on a window. When the resident looked outside, she found he had allegedly exposed himself. Aune, who was wearing dark clothing and a face mask, made a suggestive [illegible] to the resident and masturbated.

After an investigation, a search warrant was executed at Aune's residence in the 900 block of Reserve Ave. in Thief River Falls. Black clothing and a black face mask were allegedly found there.

During the execution of that search warrant, 256 DVDs, 19 Playstation games, 2 Xbox games and nine pornographic movies were also allegedly found. The items belong to Lake 2 Video. Aune was then charged with felony possession of stolen property.

According to the criminal complaint for the privacy charge, Aune has a 1998 conviction for a felony offense of harassment/stalking in Stearns County.

Aune also has misdemeanor convictions for indecent exposure and harassment in Stearns County, Rogalla said.

The maximum penalty for felony third degree criminal sexual conduct is 15 years in prison [illegible]

Respite Plus: another choice for family caregivers

Lutheran Social Service Caregiver Support and Respite Program is launching a project that will provide additional choices for family caregivers in rural Minnesota.

The new project is called Respite Plus and will involve recruitment of certified nursing assistants to provide in-home respite for caregivers who want help with personal care for their loved one.

"Ninety-four percent of Minnesotans prefer in-home services to nursing home care," explained Virginia Hanson, program manager for Lutheran Social Service (LSS). "This new project will help us meet consumer preferences and bring added value to the people that we serve."

The Caregiver Support and Respite Program has been in operation since 1992 and is funded under contract with the Minnesota Board on Aging and the Area Agency on Aging as a part of the Older American's Act. Services offered include non-medical, in-home respite care, monthly caregiver discussion groups, individual and family coaching, and public education on caregiver issues. The only criteria for respite enrollment is that the care receiver be 60 years of age or older. The caregiver can be any age. A sliding fee is available for respite hours.

Costs associated with program development were afforded through a grant from the Otto Bremer Foundation. Both the commitment from the Foundation to strengthening the nonprofit sector and the LSS commitment to reducing caregiver burden in rural Minnesota greatly facilitated the development of Respite Plus as another choice for family caregivers. ### Conscientious Encouragement

In life, everyone feels obligated to do something. We create things for ourselves and for others to do. Why do we do this? Because people need something to make life worthwhile. Here is a fun activity to find the meaning of your life: Think about what you've made of your life. Then think about the things you've done, and ask yourself why you did each one. Each answer will refer to an earlier event or task. If you do this until you can't remember why you did something, you've come to the question to which the answer is your purpose in life. If you remember the answer to it, then that becomes the new question for which the answer will tell you everything. See how that works?

The meaning of life can also be found by looking to the future. This is done not by asking why things have been done, but why things should be done. Why should we protect the environment? Because if we don't, our small and diminishing supply of drinkable water will be contaminated with mercury and other hazardous chemicals, which will spread disease and death throughout not only the human race, but all others as well. This answer implies that the purpose of life is to sustain life. That could very well be; if life is not sustained, how could it possibly have a purpose?

But for many, thinking ahead is equally as hard as thinking back. Too many people are just driven from task to task without knowing where they are going; plodding endlessly in one direction – forward in time. Often, things are overlooked that seem trivial. This could result in a lack of moral thought. The state of the world is such that morality is sometimes frowned upon. Lies from large to small are justified with simple replies: "It was easier," "It didn't really hurt anyone," or "What, you'd like it better if Saddam were still in power?"

I'd just like to encourage everyone to think more about what we're doing. We may not know why we're here, but we might as well make it as pleasant for ourselves and others as we can.

What You Must Do to Meet This Family

My eldest daughter, Christie, and her husband, Brian, celebrated their wedding anniversary recently. They eloped and were married at Disney World four years ago. Nonetheless, we met her husband some time before that wedding.

Before we met Brian, my younger daughter, Shannon, had written some requirements for anybody who was interested in Christie. I mentioned them at Christmas and Brian said he didn't remember them. To refresh his memory, here they are again:

Basic requirements for any male dating my sister and wanting to meet this family:

1) Must be a Vikings Fan!
2) Must be able to wear flannel and chamois shirts.
3) Must know the difference between a socket wrench and a monkey wrench.
4) Must be able to change oil with eyes closed.
5) Must be able to hold nose in air and still look dignified.
6) Must be able to lend a vehicle to Christie at any given moment.
7) Must be able to hold a conversation on subjects other than cars, sports and ex-girlfriends.
8) Definitely must be able to take care of Christie and be gentle, kind, caring and willing.
9) Should be able to take decent pictures of family gatherings.
10) Must love to be around crowds because of all our family members.
11) Cannot be shy around us and must be able to act a little crazy just to fit in.
12) Must love Christmas and anything associated with it, including Midnight Mass and opening Christmas presents on Christmas Eve.
13) Must love and be able to tolerate any kind of animal known to man because we usually have one of each.
14) Must be able to fix all sorts of cars, including Fords, and enjoy working on them with other members of the family and also enjoy demolition derbies.
15) Should be able to identify what is wrong with a car just by listening to Christie make that noise over the phone with her mouth and have her tell you what end of the car it is coming from, as best she can.
16) Must be able to eat tons of food at holiday get-togethers, especially Christmas, and must love chocolate.
17) Definitely must be able to paint an entire house with every member of the family in one weekend and baby-sit at the same time.
18) Have to love children, especially nieces and nephews.
19) Must be able to give flowers, notes of affection, and any other show of affection, without hesitation.
20) And last, but not least, must be able to take care of my sister, because she's the only one I have.

If you meet at least 15 of the above requirements, you have passed the test and are allowed to meet this family - AT YOUR OWN RISK!

I must admit, Brian seems to have met almost all of the above requirements. Since he owns his own body shop and also sells cars, that takes care of a whole lot of the transportation requirements - not only can he fix cars, but he can paint them too, and if he can do a car, he can do a house, right? And he is tall and thin and can eat like a horse and doesn't gain an ounce, and that takes care of a couple of those other things too.

Can we make money farming in 2005?

by Betsy Jensen
FBM instructor

Suddenly, it all seems so clear. We should have sold a lot more of our crop in 2004, instead of holding it until 2005. We should have even sold more of our 2005 crop back in 2004. The outlook for prices appears grim, and attempts to put together a cash flow for 2005 are sobering, to say the least. So is there any hope for 2005? Can we make money farming in 2005?

I too agree that the 2005 crop year is not off to a good start. With high input costs on fertilizer and fuel, and low output values, there are few opportunities to make profits, but that doesn't mean there are no opportunities for profits. Last year, we had a huge window of opportunity, but this year the window is going to be much smaller. We're going to have to fight for every penny of profits in 2005.

The best advice I can offer for 2005 is to make sure you are prepared to take advantage of any opportunity. It's still early in the marketing year, and if we're fortunate enough to have a rally in commodity prices, you need to make sure you get some of your crop sold. Your marketing plan for 2005 might not look nearly as profitable as your 2004 marketing plan, but you still need to have a plan ready to take advantage of price rallies.

We haven't even started planting yet, so I'm still optimistic that we'll have at least one price rally. We always seem to have at least one or two chances to sell at profitable prices, but this year those chances might be here and gone before you even realize it. There is a very good possibility that we'll be able to add a loan deficiency payment (LDP) to any sale we make this spring, which would probably put those sales above our cost of production.

Last year, it was much easier to sell our crop because we were clearly above the cost of production, assuming average yields. Right now, we're in limbo; too high for a sizeable LDP, but not high enough to make money. If we sell here, hopefully prices will move significantly higher, or lower. We can either collect an LDP and add it to our price, or we can sell the rest of our crop at higher prices.

If you would like more information on developing marketing plans, please contact a farm business management instructor at 1-800-959-6282.

Down on the Hacienda

Greetings from Guanajuato, Mexico, a city promoted with ample justification as the most beautiful colonial city in the Americas.

For the past week, I have been chasing around Mexico with a tour group sponsored by Pipedreams, a public radio program hosted on Sunday nights for the past 30 years by Michael Barone.

Barone provided the impetus for the trip, but most of the heavy lifting of the tour has been performed by an able local guide, a professional historian and several local organists. Even so, it is novel to hear Barone's familiar baritone purr over the bus sound system to announce the details of a bathroom break.

The purpose of the tour is to listen to pipe organs built in the 1700s. That somewhat obscure pursuit has been accompanied by history lectures from a well-known scholar, visits to archeological sites, museums, performances, concerts, as well as stays in opulent hotels and meals at top notch restaurants.

Who would go on a pipe organ tour? Pipe organs tend to draw eccentrics, and we have our share. However, at least half of the people are just like me - they like music and thought the trip sounded kind of interesting.

There are several accomplished musicians on the trip. Musicians are at their most tolerable when playing their instrument. An orchestra will keep a bunch of them busy enough to prevent spats, but a pipe organ only allows one player at a time, and that has sometimes resulted in bruised egos.

Plus, you have the cultural differences. Language hasn't been much of a problem, but I think our group has inadvertently offended the highly formal Mexicans a few times as we have marched in their churches and snapped pictures of statues of their favorite virgin as if she were little more than a statue.

No, the many and various virgins are the center of Mexican popular Catholicism, and shrines to her are crowded with people crossing themselves, bringing offerings, and praying aloud.

On Feb. 6, Mexicans celebrate the official end of the Christmas season. We happened to spend that late afternoon at a church in Cholula.

As our bus wound through the narrow streets, we passed several processions of worshippers carrying plastic baby Jesus dolls and bundles of rosemary. At the front was a portable shrine.

After the bus parked, we climbed 180 feet where we found the brilliantly painted church of Los Remedios. The exterior was a mustard color which shone brightly in the bright sun at 9,000 feet. The interior was covered with gold.

From the peak of the pyramid, we had a 360 degree view of what must be one of the most beautiful valleys in the world. Surrounded by three enormous volcanos, one of them which was sending up plumes of steam as we watched, the enormous valley contains over a million inhabitants.

While the organ afficionados did their playing, I walked around the outside of the church looking at the valley below. Not only could I hear the brilliant 17th century organ, but I could hear perhaps a half a dozen brass bands playing in the streets below, celebrating the end of the Christmas season.

One of our group found the stairwell to the top of the church. I was so eager to get up there that I cracked my head against the entry to the tiny spiral staircase and got knocked good and woozy.

But when I got to the top of the church, I saw one of the more memorable sunsets I suspect I will ever witness. It was accompanied by a sense of history - geological, ancient, colonial and modern - music, both classical and folk, architecture, and every now and then, a waft of scent from good Mexican cooking.

As the pluming 15,000-foot volcano which towered above us 50 miles to the west slowly faded into the dusk, and as fireworks popped off in the streets below, I had a sense that I had experienced one of the world's remarkable places.

ACTIVITIES

Feed the Birds

Your child will love making these feeders to feed the birds outside your window. You will need: empty toilet paper rolls, peanut butter, birdseed (spread on a plate or cookie sheet), a plastic knife, yarn

Punch two holes at the top of each roll and string it with yarn. Have your child use a plastic knife to spread peanut butter on his or her roll. After the roll is completely covered with peanut butter, instruct your child to roll the tube in the birdseed. When finished, hang the feeder outside. What a fun, clean and easy way to feed those winter birds!

PARENTING TIPS

Showing Your Love To Your Child

With Valentine's Day just a week away we are reminded of the need to show our love to family members including children. So how can you tell your child you love her? You can show her through your actions.

Touch her gently and often. Hug her, put your arm around her. Hold her hand, put your hand on her back. A child who is used to being touched in love learns to use touch lovingly.

As often as you can, get down to her level so you can look into her eyes, especially when she is talking to you. Even (or especially) when you have to talk to her about something that you don't like, look her in the eyes as you explain your feelings. Try to keep your voice calm and firm. You'll communicate whatever messages you deliver to your child better when your voice as well as your words make her feel safe rather than anxious or afraid.

Be aware also of what your facial expression communicates. No matter what mistake your child makes, you'll best be able to teach him improved behavior in the future if you can stay calm and keep the expression on your face as well as your body language loving and supportive.

Keep these ideas in mind not just for Valentine's Day but all year long.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

You can also show your love through your words. Be sure to tell her "I love you" often.

Thune named Minn. Gardener of the Year

and for eight years donated plants and taught about plant life to first and second graders at St. Bernard's Catholic School.

Her teaching also extended to teaching about plant life to children at sessions in the Thief River Falls Public Library and assisting Latch Key children with planting a "pizza garden" of tomatoes, green peppers, herbs and onions. She also helped a Boy Scout earn his Eagle award through helping design, donating plants and demonstrating how to plant flowers for a project at the Violence Intervention Project facilities in Thief River Falls.

Family has not been forgotten in the educational aspect of gardening, as Arlene continues to teach her 16 grandchildren how to plant vegetable and flower gardens and to prune trees. Her grandson Aaron has been an expert at pruning since the age of eight and has accepted responsibility for all the pruning of trees in his yard at home.

Arlene's efforts in horticulture extend throughout the community. In 1999, she and Master Gardener Betty Kezar of Thief River Falls designed, donated plants and planted a large flower bed at Oakland Park Nursing Home. Along with other volunteers, they continue to maintain it by dividing perennials that become overcrowded and renovating it each spring.

At the Falls Day Activity Center, Arlene designed, donated plants, planted and maintained a flower garden for the enjoyment of clients and staff. She planted trees and maintains them with 4-H Club members at the Pennington County Fairgrounds, and has donated plants and shrubs to Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village where she helps maintain a flower bed. For three years, she planted and weeded flowers at Red Robe Park and she helped design, ordered, and donated plants and coordinated workers to provide a new landscape for St. Bernard's Catholic Church, a project that required 50 hours of her time.

"Arlene generously donates plants to organizations, public gardens and homeowners," Steiger said. "She invited the public to her gardens for a Master Gardener tour, served as a guide for other master gardener tours and often welcomes our club, other groups and individuals to tour her gardens. She has extensive offerings at our club plant sale each spring.

"Many programs have been presented by Arlene on roses, ornamental grasses and drying flowers to other garden clubs and homemaker clubs," Steiger added. "She helps with displays at the public library for Horticulture Awareness Week and promotes gardening through articles in the newspaper and on radio. Her interest in gardening and sharing with other exemplify the spirit of this state award."

While Arlene says she appreciates receiving the state recognition, her greatest enjoyment comes from interaction with other gardeners from beginners to experienced experts. "Gardening has given me the opportunity to meet other people with similar interests, exchange ideas and share their enthusiasm," she said.

"If I had to give up my gardens, I believe the vegetable garden would be the last to go," she said. "I love flowers for their beauty and variety, but I think more people should be raising and eating home-grown vegetables for better health and nourishment. I try to grow vegetables organically as much as possible because I believe that is the healthiest for me and my family. There is also a lot of satisfaction in caring for and preserving the food that God provides the means to grow. You're never too old to enjoy playing in the dirt."

LHS bands plan Feb. 14 Winter Concert

The Concert Band will start its portion of the program with "Pageant of Light." This work is characterized by excellent solo work on flute, alto sax, clarinet, timpani, horn and temple blocks. Andrew Lloyd-Weber's "Phantom of the Opera" has been a Broadway hit for about 20 years. The recent movie release puts those famous melodies back in style. The Concert Band will do its part to bring this glorious music to the Lincoln High School stage. The last selection by the Concert Band is a great standard in band repertoire - "Dedicatory Overture" by Clifton Williams.

"I am thrilled by the maturity that this group of young musicians is playing with at just over the halfway point of the year," said Bruce Felt, Lincoln High School director of bands. "This is not an easy work and they are handling it extremely well."

The Wind Ensemble portion of the concert will open with a new work for band, "Wind Dancer." This performance will feature intricate timpani work by All-State Percussionist, Luke Kenner.

"Yes," said Felt, "I did pick the next song during our recent cold weather, but not just for the title. It's a fantastic piece of band music."

Gustav Holst's "In the Bleak Midwinter" features clarinet soloist Ashley Leister.

Felt noted that it is also Valentine's Day, so said he felt compelled to offer something romantic. He went with Puccini's "La Boheme," one of the most-loved operas in the world.

"The wonderful melodies, unabashed romanticism, and touch of tragedy, make this perfect fare for Feb. 14," said Felt.

The Wind Ensemble will close the concert with a couple of English folk songs set as a march by Ralph Vaughn-Williams.

"This concert provides an excellent chance for everyone to hear what these young musicians can do besides rock the gym and the "Ralph" for basketball and hockey games. Come and check it out," said Felt.

largest employers in some area communities, including Goodridge and Grygla. At the same time, Stumpf said, educational quality has to be good and there has to be enough students to continue to operate the school.

Stumpf also referred to a task force Pawlenty created two years ago. Stumpf, the chairperson of the E-12 Budget Division, said that the task force has not determined the amount of funding that would adequately cover some inflationary costs.

"I want to finish that study," said Stumpf, who noted he wanted to find the costs for all day everyday kindergarten and other services, such as counseling. He added that some schools, such as Clearbrook, don't have a school nurse or library.

If that study were completed, Stumpf said, he supported having those services funded by the state and also through property tax equalization.

About higher education, Stumpf noted that he favors a college tuition freeze. "Students are dropping out because they can't go to school," said Stumpf, who added that Northland Community and Technical College was tuition-free when it began offering classes.

With regard to universities, Stumpf noted, two legislators had brought up closing the University of Minnesota, Crookston and U of M, Morris. While remarking that U of M President Bob Bruininks was not in favor of closing rural universities, Stumpf said that the Legislature will soon elect four new regents. He noted that he intends to ask the regent candidates about their feelings regarding the closure of rural universities.

Senior programs

Olson, director of the Heritage Community Center in Thief River Falls, was concerned about cuts to senior programs. Some senior programs had been cut, she said.

Olson pointed to some diabetic seniors who used to be able to go to the hospital to have their blood sugars checked. Some are afraid to check their own blood sugars, and some don't know how to read their blood sugar numbers, said Olson, who noted she helps some of those diabetics at the Heritage Center. Inter-County Nursing Service provides blood sugar tests once a week for seniors at the center as well, she said.

"There should be something to help these people," added Olson. "They've paid their taxes for 75 years."

Stumpf said his goal was to help people live better. Referring to a similar meeting in Warren, he recalled the story of a 78-year-old man who needed eye drops four times a day. The man wasn't able to put in the eye drops by himself. The man could've been put in a nursing home, but the Living at Home/Block Nurse Program made sure he was able to get his eye drops and stay in his own home. As a result, there was a decreased cost to the state since the man was not living in a nursing home.

"A program saved thousands of dollars," Stumpf said.

Thief River Falls.

Randy Adamson, owner of RV Sports, described the "mission" as "gutsy," especially since they don't have a support crew.

Adamson said he had been working with the group since last March. He said they seemed to know what they were doing because they ordered spare parts and clothing, too.

This merry brotherhood of adventurers had indeed been on long snowmobile rides before, including a 1,600-mile trip that took them along the St. Lawrence seaway. "This, though" said Forrester, "will be the longest ride by far."

They seem like rational people. They have respectable jobs - dealership, campground and golf resort owner, service station owner, and logger. They also have families.

Joe Edwards, who operates a campground and golf resort in Maine, said that before he could go he had to promise to take his wife to Hawaii.

Steve Forrester, owner of Forrester Logging in Shippensburg, Pa., said he didn't have to make any promises. He said when he walked out the door, his wife said, "go, and take your time," which brought a lot of laughter from his so-called friends.

Dale Forrester said none of them had ever been to Thief River Falls or northern Minnesota, so they had spent a lot of time looking at maps and checking out weather reports. The last cold spell had them a little worried. They were pleasantly surprised with the weather when they flew into Thief River Falls Wednesday night. Die-hard Arctic Cat fans...that is, all except one..., no trip to Thief River Falls would be complete without visiting the Arctic Cat manufacturing plant. After registering the purchase of their snowmobiles, the four had scheduled a tour the plant.

The trip would officially begin on Saturday morning. In order to cross the border into Canada at Baudette, the five had contacted officials in advance and received certificates, but that was about it. They pretty much plan to play it by ear, stay in motels and ride when they feel like riding. Once across the border they will make their way across Canada, and snow conditions permitting, hopefully into New York and Pennsylvania.

Sometimes the reasons why we do things are elusive. Watching the five, Adamson smiled and said, "It's not always the destination."

I'm sure they will have stories to tell when they get home.

The Lincoln High School Winter Concert on Feb. 14 will be a toe-tapping fun time. Band students have been rehearsing day and night for the concert, but it was really a coincidence that brought students to school in their pajamas and fuzzy slippers on Monday. Monday was the first day of Sno-Fest activities at Lincoln High School. The fuzzy slippered, saxophone player is Kayla Grahn. Seated next to her in holiday pajamas is Kristi Joppru.

Happy 50th Anniversary

Weighty Issues: obesity and overweight

Overweight and obesity are serious and growing health problems in our society. Obesity is a complex, multifactor disease that develops from the interaction between genetics and the environment.

An estimated 97 million adults or 64.5 percent of the adult population in the United States are overweight or obese. Obesity is a disease that affects nearly one-third of the adult American population (approximately 60 million).

- Each year, obesity causes at least 300,000 excess deaths in the U.S., and healthcare costs of obese American adults amount to approximately $100 billion.
- Obesity has increased over the last decade for adults, adolescents, and children among all ethnic and age subgroups.
- Obesity is a chronic disease with a strong familial component.
- Obesity increases risk of developing high blood pressure, diabetes (type 2), heart disease, stroke, gallbladder disease and breast, prostate and colon cancers. Higher body weights are also associated with an increase in mortality from all causes. Obese individuals may suffer from social stigmatization and discrimination. It maintained, even weight losses as small as 10 percent of body weight can improve one's health.
- The tendency toward obesity is fostered by our environment: lack of physical activity combined with high calorie, low cost foods.

"Weighty Issues: Obesity and Overweight," a learning session presented by the University of Minnesota Extension Service, will be presented at several sites in the region:

- Feb. 24 at Crookston [illegible]
- Feb. 28 [illegible]

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I expect to get a tax refund this year. Will it count against how much I can earn and still get my SSA retirement?

A: No. Annual earnings test amounts involve only the amount of your gross wages or net self-employment. Income such as other government benefits, investments, interest, pensions, annuities and capital gains are not included. For details about the 2005 annual earnings test read booklet "How Work Affects Your Benefits" (SSA publication 05-10069) online at http://www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10069.html from the SSA website.

Q: I have Medicare coverage questions. Where can I call for more information?

A: The Medicare program is administered by Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), not the Social Security Administration. Call the CMS national toll-free number 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) for [illegible]

Q: [illegible] Social Security [illegible] My deceased wife always earned more money than I did.

A: Yes. About 99 percent of the benefits we pay to spouses of retired and deceased workers do go to women. With that said, SSA requirements are gender neutral and men can receive benefits as a husband or widower if higher benefits are payable than on their own work record. Benefit requirements apply equally to men as well as women. You certainly could receive benefits as a widower if that would provide a higher SSA benefit to you, assuming all the usual requirements are met.

Another financial education tool: Operated by the Financial Literacy and Education Commission, a group composed of 20 federal agencies including Social Security, the mymoney.gov site is a coordinated entry point to all federal financial literacy and education programs. [illegible]

Northern Lights Sons of Norway to meet February 12

Tasting Night has been scheduled for the Northern Lights (Nordlys) chapter of Sons of Norway at their regular second Saturday meeting at 7 p.m. on Feb. 12 at North Star Apartments in Roseau. Visitors interested in Scandinavian cultural heritage are welcome to attend.

Members (and visitors) who wish to make and bring Scandinavian food are encouraged to bring recipes and to be prepared to tell a bit about the food they brought and why it was chosen. At past tasting nights, some members connected their delicious foods to their own family histories. Members can write short follow up reports about their participation in tasting night about cooking/baking Scandinavian foods to serve elsewhere. Such reports can be submitted to earn points leading to cultural skills awards from Sons of Norway.

Karin Loven, a special guest from Warroad, will demonstrate the making of a Swedish smorgastorta (savory sandwich torte). Before the tasting begins, a Norwegian table grace will be learned.

The Solom family, including Arlette and Deaun Solom, will present special music.

Members who have children or grandchildren interested in attending Norwegian language camp at Skogfjorden near Bemidji next summer, should inquire soon if they wish to apply for a scholarship to assist with expenses.

Two simple service projects are ongoing. Canceled postage stamps may be brought to any meeting. These are relayed annually to a rehabilitation hospital in Norway.

Campbell product labels (front only) and Box Tops for Education may also be brought to any meeting. These are transferred to Roseau Elementary School to help purchase equipment for use by students.

At the January meeting, Norse bingo was the featured activity. The games took several humorous twists when winners claimed or reclaimed certain popular prizes previously won by others. This annual activity helps participants brush up on pronouncing and understanding Norwegian numbers.

As the New Year progresses, the continued generous hospitality of the management of North Star Apartments is greatly appreciated by the organization, which lost its meeting place at the time of the 2002 flood. This site in Roseau is a central meeting place since Nordlys Lodge of SON serves a large area - all of Roseau County and the neighboring areas including the border area of Manitoba. For information about member benefits and dues, contact Co-Chairpeople Marion Solom or Leanne Johnson, Secretary Roxanne Lee or Treasurer Lou Hermansen
